Bonus Expansion Trend Downward; 207 Names on Lemke Bill.

Provision for Tax Is Held Necessary

Texan Plans Resumption of Attack on Federal Reserve System.

By Robert C. Albright.

Shaken by the Administration's solid front against new moves for inflation, currency expansionist drives in House and Senate, given recent stimulus by bonus and farm appropriations, were on the verge of collapse last night.

Despite strenuous efforts by a steering group headed by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, a check on the petition circulated by Patman to force a House bonus inflation vote, showed only 25 members have signed it.

While still in a threatening position, the Lemke petition, seeking a show-down ballot on the $3,000,000,000 inflationary farm mortgage refinancing bill carried only 207 signatures, compared with the 214 peak it reached a fortnight ago. Before a vote can be forced, 218 names are necessary.

Expansion Hope Slight.

More significant in pointing the present trend were admissions by House and Senate bonus inflation leaders that currency expansion has little chance of Congressional approval this session, unless taxes to finance bonus payment are included in the Administration's forthcoming revenue measure. Administration spokesmen have said they will not be.

"There will be no great incentive for members to sign the Patman petition, unless members feel they can escape new taxes by so doing," one member of the House inflation bloc admitted last night.

Nevertheless, Representative Patman has completed the draft of the bill he would like to substitute for orthodox Treasury plans for financing the "baby" bonus bonds, it was learned. The new Patman draft would make mandatory the permissive authority granted the President under the AAA Thomas inflation amendment, to issue $3,000,000,000 in new currency. Patman will submit it to his steering committee in the next few days.

100% Tax on Profits Urged.

Meanwhile, the Texan plans to resume his attack on the Federal Reserve System and banks generally, by going before the House Ways and Means Committee with a proposal to levy a 100 per cent tax on all Federal Reserve Bank "profits" in excess of 6 per cent. Under the banking act of 1933, this surplus was made payable into the Federal Reserve surplus fund.

Patman said he will present his tax plan as soon as the committee receives the Administration's revenue-producing suggestions, and goes to work on them. House leaders look for the President's revenue recommendations late this week.

A similar proposal to levy a "franchise tax" against net earnings of the Federal Reserve Banks has been advanced by Representative T. Alan Goldsborough (Democrat), Maryland.

Provisions of Bill.

The Goldsborough bill provides: "After all necessary expenses of a Federal Reserve Bank shall have been paid or provided for, the stockholders shall be entitled to receive an annual dividend of 6 per centum on the paid-in capital stock, which dividend shall be cumulative. After the aforesaid dividend claims have been fully met, the net earnings shall be paid to the United States as a franchise tax."

Patman claims the Federal Reserve banks should pay the tax in return for being allowed to use the Government's credit." The Texan also plans to ask Congressional review of all Federal Reserve administrative expenditures, despite the fact that this cost is paid entirely by the banks.

Inflation sentiment, fanned into flame again when reports reached the Capitol that the President would seek taxes to pay the $2,000,000,000 bonus, has been steadily on the decline since leaders brought back word that the President had no such intention.

Even had bonus taxes been recommended, it was dubious whether the Patman petition could have garnered 218 signatures, and now that bonus levies apparently are out of the revenue picture, many of the Patmanites concede the futility of their efforts. The 25 names now attached to the petition are less than the number of members actually serving on the Patman steering committee.

Farm inflationists, however, led by Representative William Lemke (Republican), North Dakota, have not given up hope. Yesterday, Representative Lemke reiterated the prediction he has made on several previous occasions that his $3,000,000,000 farm mortgage refinancing petition "will be signed up in the next week or two."

But every time new signatures are added to the Lemke petition, other signatures mysteriously disappear. In fact, loss of names has far more than counter-balanced the additions made, in the last two weeks.

House Whip Pat Boland, with the backing of the Administration, has been instrumental in persuading a

You CAN Arrest Me!

Borah Insists on Senate Floor Congressmen Have No Immunity Under Law in Traffic Violations; King Promises Inquiry.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

IN a scathing attack on law-breaking lawmakers who stand on their "Congressional immunity" to flout defiance at District traffic regulations and referring to recent stories in The Washington Post, Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, Republican candidate for the Presidential nomination, yesterday took the Senate floor to strike at Congressional "rights" and "privileges."

Citing a recent Supreme Court decision, Senator Borah declared that members of Congress have no "special privileges, no exemption, no immunity from arrest or punishment" and, despite a constitutional provision, are subject to the "same laws and regulations as any ordinary citizen of the United States."

Several Senators, called to the chamber by a special roll call, took part in subsequent debate. Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, joined Borah by announcing he would "clear the atmosphere" with a resolution demanding an immediate investigation.

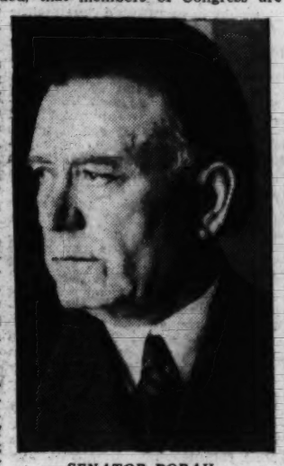
"If members of either the House or Senate are deceiving the public by hiding behind 'Congressional immunity,' we want to know about it," the Utah Senator said.

A quorum had been called before Borah started to speak. As he took the floor, the din of debate and voices suddenly ceased. Senators settled in their chairs to listen with rapt attention.

He opened his remarks by calling attention to The Post stories, showing that members of Congress "take advantage of certain privileges, disregard traffic laws, endanger travel and greatly inconvenience persons who have property by parking across alleys and across paths and streets leading to the property of private citizens."

"I am interested in the fact that all these articles close with the sentence: 'You Can't Arrest Me!'" Borah declared.

It has been assumed, he continued, that members of Congress are privileged to violate the law by reason of a constitutional provision.



SENATOR BORAH—struck at Congressional privileges.

"But a member of Congress has no other right or privilege than that of the ordinary citizen when using the streets of the city," the Idaho Presidential candidate said. "There is no immunity from punishment. There is no immunity from arrest. There is no privilege which he can claim which entitles him to enjoy the streets in a way different from that of the ordinary citizen."

It was here that Borah cited the recent Supreme Court ruling, holding that members of the House or Senate are not immune from criminal action of any type. Their only "immunity" comes in civil cases and this only while attending or en route to or from sessions of Congress, he pointed out.

"The country believes that Congress takes advantage of some constitutional provision to the detriment, if not to the menace, of travelers upon the city streets—but the Constitution does not give any such privilege." (And here he again quoted from the Supreme Court ruling.)

During his speech, Borah was interrupted by Senators King, Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky; Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, and Duffy (Democrat), of Wisconsin.

A transcript of the proceedings follows:

Mr. Borah: Mr. President, I desire to take a few moments to refer to a matter somewhat apart from the measure before the Senate, but nevertheless a matter which seems to me worthy of a few minutes' consideration.

There have been appearing in one of the leading newspapers of this city, during the last few days, several articles on the subject of traffic regulation in the city, and the violation of traffic rules and laws, and they present a feature of the question which may be of some interest to the Congress. The purport of these articles is that members of Congress, assuming to have privileges which the ordinary citizen does not have, take advantage of these privileges, disregard traffic laws, endanger travel, and greatly inconvenience persons who have property by reason of parking across alleys and across paths and streets leading to the property of private citizens.

Mr. President, of course, I do not know anything about the facts except as they appear in these articles, but I am interested in the fact that all these articles close with the sentence:

"You can't arrest me!"

Assuming that to have been said by a member or members of Congress, and that the presumption or supposition prevails that members of Congress are privileged to violate these laws by reason of some provision of the Constitution.

Mr. President, as I understand, a member of Congress has no other right or privilege than that of the ordinary citizen when using the streets of the city. There is no immunity from punishment. There is no immunity from arrest. There is no privilege which he can claim which entitles him to enjoy the streets in a way different from that of the ordinary citizen.

SENATOR KING—asks quiz on traffic rights.

I do not know whether or not the claim has been made, but I do know that the privilege is supposed to protect him, and that the country believes that Congress takes advantage of some constitutional provision to the detriment, if not to the menace, of travelers upon the streets of the city.

I thought it worth while to call attention to the fact that if any such supposition prevails, either among the officials in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, it is a supposition based upon an erroneous view of the Constitution.

The Constitution does not give any such privilege, and I am going to take a moment or two to read some extracts from the latest opinion of the Supreme Court upon that subject.

Mr. King: Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. Borah: I yield.

Mr. King: I assent entirely to the view of the Senator, and I may say that I have prepared a resolution which I intended to offer today which would make it very clear that no Federal official can claim immunity or has any greater privilege on the streets in respect to traffic regulations than any other citizen.

Mr. Borah: I was coming to the Capitol this morning and met one of the policemen whom I happen to know and asked him about this matter, and inquired why he did not arrest members of Congress if they

Mother's Breath of Life Saves Child Dying of Pneumonia

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 24.—A mother's presence of mind in breathing down her 3-year-old son's throat was credited today with saving the child from death from a pneumonia attack.

Dr. Mark Hollander said he believed the action of the mother, Mrs. Ellen Shields, of Dundalk, 29-year-old former Detroit nurse, kept the child, Earl, from dying.

Stricken Tuesday with pneumonia, the baby grew steadily worse. While Dr. Hollander was treating him, he suddenly became blue and his respiration very faint.

The physician held the baby's tongue after calling the Sparrows Point fire department to bring resuscitation equipment, and the mother breathed into her child's mouth until the firemen arrived.

Resuscitation apparatus was used until other members of the fire company brought oxygen tanks. This treatment renewed the patient's pulse, and the child began to recover, although it was not entirely out of danger today.

3 Die in Effort to Aid Non-Existent Airplane

Copenhagen, Denmark, Feb. 24 (AP).—Three fliers were killed today in an attempt to aid a non-existent pilot.

Sounds heard on the ground led to belief that an airplane was seeking a landing in a snowstorm and the trio went up in one plane to escort it to safety, and crashed.

Italy's Stand Is Seen Fatal To Arms Cuts

Bid to Naval Parley Is Rejected Because of Sanctions.

British Fleet Additions in Mediterranean Are Also Cited.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Bluntly, they told the British delegation their government is not interested in a naval arms agreement until League of Nations sanctions against Italy have been abolished and British fleet reinforcements have been withdrawn from the Mediterranean.

The Italian move followed recent similar action by France in informing Britain that enforcement of any new naval treaty must be contingent upon conclusion of a western European air pact and other safeguards for French security.

Hope Dwindles Rapidly.

Hope of a four-power agreement as a result of the naval conference, which has been proceeding since December 9, dwindled rapidly in the face of the Italian position.

The Italians revealed their attitude officially for the first time in a two-hour conference with British naval conference delegates at the admiralty.

The British and Italian delegates will confer again Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the French delegation is awaiting fresh instructions from Paris before resuming negotiations with the British.

Norman Davis, chief U. S. delegate, was informed fully of Anglo-Franco-Italian conversations during the past four days when he was closeted for nearly two hours with Viscount Monsell, first lord of the admiralty.

France Awaits Reply.

The French, it is understood, alleged the Franco-American dispute over battleship tonnage and gun caliber remains in abeyance, while France awaits the Washington Government's reply to French proposals that battleships be limited to 2,500 tons and 13-inch guns.

American delegates were surprised by the French statement. They contend the French have been told definitely of United States insistence upon battleships of 35,000 tons armed with 14-inch guns.

"The American position stands," Davis said.

The earlier Anglo-Italian consultation was attended by Monsell, Sir Ernle Chatfield, admiral of the fleet, foreign office attaches and ranking Italian delegates and naval experts.

Warning to France Seen.

Paris, Feb. 24 (AP).—Certain diplomats said today they believed Italy again has warned France that heavier sanctions against Premier Mussolini's nation would lead to "serious consequences."

This warning was said to have been conveyed directly to Pierre-Etienne Flandin, foreign minister, today by Ambassador Vittorio Cerruti of Italy.

A similar warning was said to have been delivered to the British government by Ambassador Dino Grandi of Italy after Anthony Eden, the British foreign secretary, told him British public opinion had been aroused by Italian victories in Ethiopia and the Italian publication of a British secret document. (The Maffey report, discussed today in the House of Commons.)

French authorities expressed the fear that Italy would resign from the League of Nations if further sanctions were imposed upon her.

The French war council announced tonight it is studying a program designed to modernize home defenses during 1936 and the following years.

Gen. Louis Feliz Maurin, minister of war, told the cabinet he was well pleased with the forces along the German frontier after a tour of inspection.

Eden Stresses World Security; Shuns Oil Issue

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 24.—Anthony Eden laid down a plan today for a universal system of "collective security," in his maiden speech as foreign secretary to the House of Commons, but failed to satisfy government opponents on the more immediate question of an oil embargo against Italy.

Before packed galleries, including European diplomats, the erstwhile "White Knight of Geneva" staunchly defended rearmament, and emphasized that Great Britain must be strong and fearless in taking the leadership to prevent another world war.

"Our final objective," he told the tense house, "must be a world-wide system of collective security, which embraces all nations, in an authority which is unchallenged and unchallengeable."

In what was interpreted as an effort to reassure Germany, Eden declared, "the British government will have no lot or part in encirclement."

Oil Sanctions.

Eden sidestepped a definite commitment on oil sanctions which caused immediate criticism of his speech as vague. His address was the subject of frequent interruptions.

The United States' policy toward an oil embargo was frequently mentioned by Government opponents, who argued that Great Britain and the League must first set an example, if they want support from across the Atlantic.

Of an oil sanction, Eden asserted: "The sooner oil is discussed and a decision taken, the better, in the view of the British."

He said exports of oil from the United States to Italy had increased last year.

Discussing his world-wide system of collective security, he asserted: "We are far from that objective at present. We can only hope to realize it by strengthening the authority of the existing system, and facilitating, by agreement based on wide understanding, the co-operation of other nations in our work.

"In a true system of collective security, the door must always be wide open for the entry of others.

Asks Confidence of Others.

"If we are to succeed, we shall have to bring others along with us. We shall not be able to do that unless other nations are convinced of our sincerity and strength, and unless we can gain their confidence. This we can do only if we pursue a consistent and constructive policy."

"I fear that unprovoked aggression can only be eliminated by a gradual strengthening of collective security, until every nation is convinced that in no circumstances can aggression be made to pay.

"The road to disarmament lies through the increased power and authority of the League of Nations," he said, adding that the League, in turn, depends to a considerable measure upon "the arms and strength of our own country."

Snowslide Kills 3, Entombs 40 In Famed Colorado Gold Mine

Woman Cook, 2 Workers Die in 3-Mi. Avalanche; Employes Trapped for Hours in Shaft; Property Founded T. F. Walsh Fortune.

By the Associated Press.

Ouray, Colo., Feb. 24.—A three-mile-wide snow avalanche killed a woman and two men today and imprisoned two score miners in the famous old Camp Bird gold mine for several hours before they could be released.

The snow pack roared down before noon from the Devil's Slide of Chicago Cliff upon workings of the properties eight miles from here—the source of the bonanza fortune of the late Thomas Walsh, father of Evalyn Walsh McLean, Washington socialite.

The body of Mrs. Rose Israel, Camp Cook, was dug from the snow near where she was thrown from the front porch of the Cook shack. The bodies of Cappy Wood, mill foreman, of Denver, and Ralph Klinger, blacksmith, still were buried beneath the slide.

Entrance Blocked.

The avalanche piled a barricade of snow, rock, ice and debris at the mine entrance. Crews worked throughout the afternoon to bore through the packed slide.

They forced an entrance tonight. None of the entombed miners was reported hurt, but two other members of the camp suffered injuries. Richard Dunn, superintendent, was buried under snow for about three hours. An unidentified woman was thrown across the cook shack when the slide struck. Dunn's condition was reported serious from cold and exposure.

The snow crashed into the lower story of the bunkhouse building, tearing it away from the foundation, but left the second story, where some of the night-shift men were sleeping.

News of the Camp Bird avalanche was telephoned from the properties to George F. Warren, Ouray telephone manager, but a second slide destroyed the communication facilities and delayed further information for hours.

Found Gold in 1895.

The Campbird properties, 90 miles southeast of Grand Junction and 250 west of Pueblo, are in the heart of ragged mountains in what was known as the silver-lead country until the spectacular Walsh, a carpenter, went there in 1895 and found gold samples in deposits that other miners had disregarded as valueless because they contained no evidence of silver and gold. He took first samples from the old Gertrude mine, later part of the Campbird properties.

Walsh was blocked by heavy snow, which covered the ground for 12 years, from extensive exploration work until 1896. Then his old friend and fellow prospector, Andy Richardson, broke through the snow and brought out samples which ran $3,000 to the ton in gold content.

Walsh took out $2,500,000 from the property and then sold it in 1905 to an English syndicate for $5,100,000. The syndicate was reported to have taken out millions of dollars worth of ore.

'Red' Activities Laid to 2 Seized On Battleship

Women Arrested on Coast Linked to Wide 'Subversive' Campaign.

Los Angeles, Feb. 24 (U.P.).—A widespread campaign of young radicals to salt the United States battle fleet with communistic propaganda, was believed uncovered tonight, following the arrest of two women aboard the battleship Mississippi.

Naval and Federal authorities said they had five other persons, including two women, under surveillance, in a move to balk efforts of young radical groups to breed disloyalty among men of the fleet.

Department of Justice agents questioned Lucy Wilkes, 34, and Carol Brandit, 32, reported by naval police to have concealed copies of a small pamphlet-like newspaper entitled, Shipmate's Voice, in places aboard the Mississippi where they could be found by members of the ship's personnel.

The pair were held on suspicion of violating a California law against criminal syndicalism, and were lodged in county jail. Naval investigators, who turned the women over to State authorities, said other copies of the pamphlet, assertedly a radical political publication advocating communist doctrines, were found in possession of the two women.

Follow Investigation.

Police said the arrests were the result of an extended investigation.

The pamphlet in question urged sailors to join the Third International, International Communist Party. It contained articles attacking the naval service and reviling officers. Police said sailors were urged not to re-enlist.

Specific reference was made to sailors' salaries, urging sailors to "work for $30 per month wages for seamen and marine privates, restoration of a $36-per-year clothing allowance, free cleaning and pressing and Government maintenance of dependents of enlisted men" and also urged "free access to advancement for enlisted men."

Sabotage Reported.

Police, co-operating with Department of Justice and Naval Intelligence officers, sought to connect the spread of propaganda with asserted efforts to sabotage naval and military aircraft operations in this area.

Capt. William F. Hynes, head of the Los Angeles "red squad," turned over to United States Attorney Pierson M. Hall voluminous files of his office on "red" activities, chiefly in connection with supposed propaganda in naval and military units.

Included were reports of two unsolved airplane mysteries—the crack-up of a new type of Vultee bombing plane at the municipal airport September 13, in which Pilot Dougal Blue and Fred Van Stone, crack Navy flier, were killed, and disappearance of a Northrop Army fighter, reportedly the fastest military airplane in the world, and its pilot, Lieut. Arthur H. Skaer, on a flight July 30.

'Breath of Spring' Blows on District

A breath of premature spring swept into the winter-weary District yesterday, with the temperature reaching its highest point since January 13, 50, at 5:15 p. m.

Remnants of ice and snow turned to slush in the streets, and the Weather Bureau predicted that today will be even warmer, with overcast skies and a strong possibility of rain.

Yesterday low mark was 30 at 6 a. m. On January 13, mercury was in the 50s, but for more than a month the cold wave that gripped the District brought freezing temperatures.

Gen. Hagood, WPA Critic, Put on Army Inactive List

'Direction of President' Order Stirs Bitter House Criticism.

Impeachment of 3 Asked by Blanton

Dern, Woodring, Craig Should Be Removed, Asserts Texan.

Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, who recently called WPA funds "stage money," and otherwise criticised Administration policies, was peremptorily suspended from duty last Friday, it was revealed yesterday, and sent home to "await orders."

Immediately Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, said on Capitol Hill: Secretary Dern, Gen. Malin Craig and Harry H. Woodring ought to be impeached and removed from office," and in the House promised "to see to it that the War Department does not get away with it."

In the general uproar on the Hill cries were heard of "Hitler policies," and Representative Blanton described the action, which War Department officials termed "routine," as an "infamous, dirty, damnable and inexcusable outrage."

The Congressional critics held that the apparent removal of the thrice-decorated third-ranking senior general officer from active duty came about directly as a result of his criticisms of the Administration before a House Appropriations sub-committee.

Phrase Called Routine.

Much of the controversy which bombed Congress out of its Monday morning apathy centered about the phrase with which the order began: "By direction of the President. . . ."

Officials pointed out that this was the routine phrase on such orders, while the critics answered that it meant exactly what it said in the most literal sense.

The World War hero, who has been outspoken in frank criticisms in many directions during his 35-year career, is now at San Antonio, Tex. He is relieved, by the order, of his assignment as commander of the Eighth Corps Area and from further duty at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and placed in the "awaiting orders" class. Army men said yesterday that this group usually end their service in chairs before club-windows, or in puttering about their homes.

Democrats Join.

The removal at once moved into the class of political incidents. Although Republican criticism predominated, several Democrats in the House came to the defense of the general and joined in criticism of his suspension.

Blanton's outspoken demand for the impeachment of Secretary of War Dern, Gen. Craig, chief of staff of the Army, and Assistant Secretary of War Woodring was contained in a statement titled "a damnable outrage," which follows:

"If God will let me live long enough, I shall see to it that the War Department does not get away with its arrogant attempt to perpetrate this damnable outrage upon one of the ablest, most efficient, keenest minded, most courageous major generals we have in the whole United States Army.

Assails "Gag."

"If high Army officers are permitted to testify before appropriating committees of Congress only such words as are put into their mouths by the general staff, then Congress should adjourn and turn the Treasury of the United States over to the War Department.

"Before we called Gen. Johnson Hagood before our committee, we had Gen. Malin Craig, the chief of staff, to issue an order releasing Gen. Hagood and other major generals who were to appear before us, from the usual restrictions which the War Department has thrown around all Army officers who testify before Congressional committees, and allowing them to speak their minds and judgments freely in answering questions asked them in hearings, and they shall not punish Gen. Hagood for giving Congress his honest, conscientious opinion about appropriations. The opinions expressed by Gen. Hagood are my own, and are entertained by 95 per cent of the good people in my district whom I have the honor to represent.

"Secretary Dern, Gen. Malin Craig and Harry H. Woodring ought to be impeached and removed from office. They have matched a scrap that means a fight to a finish. If they are allowed to get away with such childish antics they will cause our Ad-

One Dormitory Total Result of PWA Housing Division Building After Three Years; Low-Income Families Unable to Pay Rentals.

Following is the second of a series of articles based on an investigation of the housing problem. The status of present Federal efforts to encourage building will be revealed and probable new legislation explained.

Copyright, 1936, by The Washington Post.

By Felix Bruner.

LAST November President Roosevelt went to Atlanta and dedicated a dormitory occupied by college students. It was perhaps the first college dormitory ever dedicated by a President. But this was no ordinary dormitory. In fact, it was the only building actually completed by the Government under its so-called slum clearance program.

After three years of constant work and discussion, the housing division of the Public Works Administration has succeeded in completing a total of one dormitory. A number of buildings have been erected by private concerns partially financed with public works money, but the dormitory is the only building actually completed in any city by the Government itself.

The history of the housing division of the Public Works Administration is one of false starts and stops, of turmoil, difficulties and bickering. Its original purpose was elimination of slums and the substitution of housing units that could be occupied by families with low incomes, paying rents within those incomes.

Some 50 projects are now in various stages of construction or planning. Some of them actually will supplant slums. Many others are being built or will be built on land never before occupied. None of them can be occupied by families in the low income brackets if the Government charges rents in proportion to the cost of the buildings. They are not in any sense low-cost housing, if by low-cost housing is

Inventor Informs U. S. He Has Material for Bomb-Proof Ship

By the Associated Press.

Stamford, Conn., Feb. 24.—Lester P. Barlow, Stamford inventor, said today he had devised a material possessing shock-absorbing characteristics which would make warships virtually immune to explosives.

Barlow, inventor of a type of depth bomb used in the World War, declined to disclose the nature of the material, but said its use had been suggested to him by one of the leading chemists in the United States.

Data on the material, Barlow said, had been submitted to Republican and Democratic members of Congress with the proposal that a commission be named to study its possibilities in naval construction.

Barlow said he was ready to offer use of the material to the United States Government as a "lever" in effecting world-wide reduction of naval armaments.

"The heaviest bomb," he said, "would do little more than scar the point of contact. Fragments of a bomb or the shock of the explosion would kill persons in unprotected zones of the ship, but vessels would be little damaged.

"The material utilized in armor protection in much of the hull and superstructure is not composed of steel or other metallic substance."

Barlow said construction of battleships 1,500 feet long would be possible with the material as against the present length of 500 to 600 feet. These bigger ships, he said, would operate at a lower speed, but he explained this reduction in speed would be offset by the craft's immunity to explosives.

Choose Words, Young Advises Radio Speakers

By the Associated Press.

Winter Park, Fla., Feb. 24.—Urging speakers to guard their radio utterances, particularly on politics, Owen D. Young warned today that "freedom of the speech for a man whose voice can be heard a few hundred feet is one thing," but for a "man whose voice may be heard around the world" it is another.

The present political campaign, the chairman of the advisory committee of the National Broadcasting Co. said in a Rollins College "founders' week" address, has become so vital, the issues so important and the radio audience so large that "the choice word and measured phrase" are needed lest great harm be done.

He quoted from recent radio addresses by former President Hoover, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Senator Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and mildly cautioned each of them, "whom I much admire."

He asked if it were necessary, if it did any real good for Hoover to say "that the currency of the United States revolves around the British gun," for Smith to say "that the people of this Nation must now choose between the Stars and Stripes and the Red flag of Moscow;" for Robinson to say that Smith's "great sympathy with and understanding of the common man have been impaired because he moved from the East Side to Park avenue."

Must Use Wise Discretion.

If the right of free speech is to be preserved, Young declared, the man "who undertakes to speak before this giant reflector of his voice," must use "wise discretion," must speak "with malice toward none and charity toward all."

The country, he said, is "facing a political campaign of wide interest and vast importance. Politics for the time being is dominant. It may decide whether government is a servant of the people or whether it is their master. Never before in our time have we faced such momentous political questions; never before has there been a more eager or sensitive audience."

After his address, which was broadcast, Young was made an honorary doctor of literature by Rollings College.

John Martin, conference leader, and consultant on international relations at Rollings, and Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Church in New York, also received honorary degrees. Martin was made a doctor of laws and Reiland a doctor of humanities.

Georgia Test Called Off.

Rochelle, Ga., Feb. 24 (AP).—The first test by ballots of President Roosevelt's strength for renomination, a county preference primary contest against Gov. Eugene Talmadge, was called off today over the protests of a close political friend of the latter.

Chairman T. J. Dennard of the Democratic committee of Wilcox County in rural south Georgia, where the contest was slated for Wednesday in connection with the regular primary, said:

"We have heard reports that the Talmadge forces had up a good-size campaign fund in the county in the Presidential race and the county candidates felt that some of the campaign material might be used in the local races." The county election will be held as usual.

The State committee, Talmadge-controlled, has not yet announced its plans for selecting Georgia's delegates to the Democratic national convention, although the Roosevelt forces in Georgia have demanded that they be picked in a primary, and not by the committee.

Comstock Assails Party.

Detroit, Feb. 24 (AP).—Former Gov. William A. Comstock, leader of the Democratic party in Michigan for nearly three decades, virtually withdrew from the party today in a statement sharply criticizing the patronage policies of national party leaders.

Declaring he would "take no active part whatever in the political activity of the Democratic party in Michigan in 1936," the former Governor predicted that the party would receive a "deserved rebuke from the voters next November."

Comstock charged that the recent nomination of Arthur F. Lederle for Federal judge in the Eastern District of Michigan "furnishes further and final evidence that the national leaders of the Democratic party deliberately disregard the opinions of organization Michigan Democrats in making Federal appointments."

"In as much as the President and Mr. Farley have broken their political promises and assumed the right to dictate in Michigan party affairs, * * * I shall not consider myself a 'regular Democrat.' He said, "I shall join the large number of independent voters who * * * cast their votes for principles and individuals, not party."

"The Hogskis and the O'Piggys, in their mad scramble for jobs, have upset the trough," he said.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 24 (AP).—Former United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch said today that Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, would have "some one of national prominence" as his Presidential running mate in the battle for Ohio's 52 delegates to the Cleveland convention.

McCulloch, who is one of the Idaho Senator's chief Ohio backers, declined to disclose the identity of the second choice candidate for Borah delegate candidates. He said, however, that it would not be an Ohio man.

Rumors have been current that Borah's Ohio running mate might be either Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, or United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota. McCulloch said the slate of Borah candidates for delegate-at-large probably would be announced within 48 hours. He reiterated that a complete slate of district delegate candidates would be put into the field.

Politics and People

Ritchie, New Deal Foe, Was Torn Between Intellectual Honesty and Party Loyalty.

By Franklyn Waltman

ALBERT CABELL RITCHIE died an unhappy man—torn in his attitude toward the New Deal by two of the virtues which made him a popular and unusual figure in American political life. On the one side was his intellectual honesty. On the other his sense of loyalty to friends and supporters and to the Democratic Party. The triumph of one meant the defeat of the other.

Maryland's former Governor had been caught between the clash of the forces of practical politics against principle. Such clashes have haunted American public life from the beginning of the country. It is because so many leaders have compromised on the side of partisanship and of expediency that the Nation has its present absurd and meaningless party system.

* * *

Having devoted a political career of many years sincerely preaching a doctrine of State rights and assailing centralization of power in the Federal government, Mr. Ritchie could not be but hostile to the New Deal. It was the antithesis of all he believed in the way of fundamental principles of government.

From the first he looked on the New Deal with suspicious eyes, but he was tolerant of it in those early days because he believed President Roosevelt should have a chance to deal with the forces of depression which had defied the previous Republican regime. Furthermore, he conceded that extraordinary measures were justified in meeting extraordinary conditions. Indeed, he made a Nation-wide appeal in the summer of 1933 for support of the NRA—as a temporary measure.

* * *

But as the depression slowly was overcome, Mr. Ritchie believed that the Democratic regime at Washington should retreat from some of its policies, which he regarded not only as unsound but as dangerous to the fundamental structure of the American form of government. When this did not happen, his hostility became more apparent and stronger.

For a time he cherished the hope that the Roosevelt Administration might turn away from its experimentation and back to the historic principles of the party and to the 1932 platform. He declined invitations to speak in various parts of the country and he spurned invitations to join the American Liberty League because of this hope.

But, finally, intellectually honest and courageous as he was, Mr. Ritchie believed it to be his duty to speak out against what was transpiring at Washington. Speech by speech he became more critical—and then the question arose as to what should be his attitude toward the renomination and re-election of President Roosevelt.

* * *

There is no doubt that Mr. Ritchie would have controlled the Maryland delegation to the Democratic National Convention—that it would cast its vote for him, or Al Smith or Franklin Roosevelt as he desired. There is no doubt that it would have supported him in any course which he undertook to pursue at the convention.

Mr. Ritchie fully realized the futility of a fight to prevent the nomination of the President. But he believed that perhaps the President and the party could be led back to the 1932 platform. It was his desire to have the Maryland delegation lead such a fight and he was planning a series of speeches throughout the State and country to arouse support for such a stand.

* * *

But here entered the forces which clashed with his honesty. Dozens of the lesser Democratic leaders in Maryland, some personal friends, came in secret to the former Governor and pleaded with him not to pursue such a course. What would it avail? they asked. If he fought hard and the convention rejected his proposals, would he not be required to bolt the party next November to keep his self-respect? Why stir up a fuss, anyway, when the Roosevelt faction was in the saddle and would punish the party in Maryland through withholding patronage.

But, replied, the former Governor, he could not agree with New Deal principles. Should he not be honest? Yes, but it was not so simple, asserted those who argued with him. What was to be gained by helping to elect a Republican, perhaps a reactionary, they said. While the Republicans now might pay lip-service to Jefferson's principles, they would soon abandon them on reaching an office, Mr. Ritchie was told.

The Democratic Party was his party—the party which four times had elected him Governor of Maryland, he was reminded. Leaders from dry counties recalled that they had supported him despite his anti-prohibition views and despite the risk they ran in keeping a hold on their constituents. They would support him now, but why should he subject them to the risk of punishment by the New Deal?

These arguments disturbed Mr. Ritchie. He always had an abiding faith in the superiority of the Democratic Party as an instrument of government. As so many Democrats, he was caught on the horns of a dilemma—radicalism versus reaction. Yet he could not reconcile himself to wearing the "mantle of hypocrisy."

The former Maryland Governor went to the American Liberty League dinner, not because of any particular enthusiasm for that organization, but to honor his friend, Al Smith. He left that dinner more disturbed than when he came. Al Smith's reference to the "mantle of hyprocrisy" being worn by those who disagreed with the New Deal, but failed to "take a walk" hurt, hurt Mr. Ritchie because he had always been true to his convictions.

* * *

What Ritchie finally would have done does not matter now. Those who know him best believe that he would have been true to his convictions, but that he would have tried to find a way to relieve his followers of any embarrassment resulting from his course of action.

His death does not mean that the New Dealers can now regard Maryland as safely in their column. The principles preached so long by Mr. Ritchie have left an indelible mark on the people of Maryland—many of whom are more antagonistic to the New Deal than he. The leader of those forces is gone, but Maryland remains a doubtful State.

$161,863,147 Agriculture Bill Starts Journey

Near-Record Appropriation Measure Facing Farm-Conscious Congress.

By the Associated Press.

A bill carrying a near-record appropriation of $161,863,147 for ordinary agricultural activities of the Government yesterday started through a farm-conscious Congress.

Before opening debate, the House appointed conferees to seek final agreement with the Senate on legislation carrying an additional $500,000,000 for subsidies to farmers for soil conservation.

The 1936-37 supply bill for the Agriculture Department proper proposed spending $21,635,563 more than in the current fiscal year. In addition, some $18,000,000 was reappropriated out of unexpended funds in the Treasury.

A reduction of $28,625,857 under the President's budget estimate was claimed by the Appropriations Committee, but this did not take into account the $18,000,000 reappropriation. Among the eliminated items was $1,000,000 for continuing the shelter-belt tree-planting project in Plains States.

Other Developments.

These other developments marked an agriculturally important day in the Capital which started off with publication of testimony at subcommittee hearings on the supply bill:

1. Senator Robinson, the majority leader, reported he would seek to have the $50,000,000 Congress authorized for seed loans to farmers cut to $30,000,000 because of President Roosevelt's objection to the larger sum.

2. Farm Administration officials, anxious to get the AAA substitute program into operation in time to influence this year's crop-planting, announced plans for regional meetings of farmers next week to discuss details.

3. The Census Bureau reported a 10,000,000-acre reduction in the 1934 corn harvest compared with 1929.

4. Weather Bureau officials testified they were unable to render efficient airway and other service under current appropriations.

5. Testimony was given Congress that nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals had been made obsolete by improved methods of manufacture.

6. The supply bill carried $60,000,000 for previously contracted Federal aid road-building, and continued an authorization to contract for an additional $125,000,000 road program.

Conferees Are Named.

Chairman Jones (Democrat), Texas, and Representatives Fulmer (Democrat), South Carolina; Doxey (Democrat), Mississippi); Hope (Republican), Kansas, and Kinzer (Republican, Pennsylvania, of the Agriculture Committee, were designated by Speaker Byrns to meet with a similar Senate group in an attempt to iron out differences of the two branches on the soil conservation bill.

(The House had substituted its own bill for the Senate version, with amendments to which the other branch refused to concur. In a general way, the bill as passed by both, would permit payment of $500,000,000 in subsidies to farmers for soil conservation or "economic use" of land, either directly or through State programs.)

Recognizing the necessity for speed if the AAA replacement program is to sway farm activities this year, leading House conferees said they believed a single day of conference might result in final agreement.

Howard R. Tolley, soil expert and director of the Giannini Foundation at Berkeley, Calif., arrived in the Capital yesterday to help AAA officials perfect details so that the program can be started as soon as President Roosevelt signs the bill.

Seed Loan Before President.

The seed loan bill has been on Mr. Roosevelt's desk for a week. Senator Robinson said the Executive had indicated he would veto it, but that backers of the legislation had agreed to a compromise whereby appropriations for the loans would be limited to $30,000,000, and the amount lent to individuals would be held to $200 instead of $500. The money then would be taken from Farm Credit Administration funds rather than relief funds. With this understanding, it was indicated, the President would sign the $50,000,000 bill to permit immediate loans.

The Agriculture Department supply bill allowed $22,469,265 for the soil conservation service, which previously had been financed through emergency funds. This accounted for a big slice of the increase in the department's funds over the current year, although $27,500,000 had been asked in the budget.

In addition to the $161,863,174 total, the measure would appropriate $4,000,000 for the Farm Credit Administration, the same sum as allowed this year.

In continuing the $125,000,000 authorization for roads under the Hayden-Cartwright act, the committee overrode the Budget Bureau, which had sought to postpone until the 1938 fiscal year permission to contract additional road work.

Followed Previous Policy.

The appropriation committee's action in disallowing the shelter-belt funds was in line with its policy begun in the War Department bill, when it turned down $29,000,000 for the Passamaquoddy tidewater dam, Florida ship canal and other projects started under emergency funds, but not previously authorized by Congress.

Moreover, to make certain soil conservation or other funds are not diverted for the shelter-belt, the full committee wrote in a last-minute stipulation against use of any other money in the bill for the tree-planting, originally conceived to halt erosion.

Heeding pleas of Weather Bureau officials, the committee allowed this service $3,810,724, a $371,520 increase over this year. The additional funds are intended to provide better weather forecasts, flood and forest-fire warnings, and wider meterological service for commercial airways.

Allowing $1,537,459 for the Food and Drug Administration, the committee ignored a budget request for a $521,200 increase.

Landis, Gay Study Boom On Market

Increasing stock market activity again came under official study yesterday at a two-hour conference between James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock Exchange.

The announced objective of the conference was a discussion of the SEC bill to continue unlisted departments on stock exchanges, but it was learned the present market activity was also a topic.

Both men refrained from comment, but it was reported that the conference dealt to some extent with possible ways of avoiding any "excessive" market trading. In this connection it was recalled that Mr. Landis recently referred to the "increasing tendency subtly generated to induce people to pour their savings into the market with the same heedlessness" as in 1928 and 1929.

The stock exchange position, it was said, involves enforcement of its rules and co-operation with the Government, but on the matter of curtailing a bull market, the exchange is said to take the position that it is not the judge of prices and sees nothing it can do now, aside from its ordinary activity.

Wallace Asked For 'Undeleted' Cotton Report

Statement Revised on AAA Complaints, Says Gore Resolution.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace yesterday was called on by the Senate to supply an original copy of a cotton report by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, allegedly "revised" on complaint by AAA officials that it "would likely result in a great deal of unjustified criticism of the programs which have been carried out."

The Senate adopted a resolution proposed by Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, calling for an original copy, while Representative Allan T. Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, was charging in the House that the report on cotton production had been "doctored" to keep the facts from the public.

Treadway offered a House resolution asking for an "unexpurgated" copy printed before the alleged "deletions" were made. Charging that sections omitted might have caused an adverse backfire on the AAA, Treadway said:

"The Democratic Administration is so obsessed with its blame fool notions that it will go the limit in doctoring reports."

Only "Minor Changes."

At the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, it was said that both drafts of the report are available, and that only "very minor changes" had been made.

The changes allegedly were made following a AAA memorandum contending that in its original form it would have resulted "in intensifying the criticism of the entire principle of adjustment of production" on which the New Deal's farm program is based.

Said to have been deleted from the final draft was a section indicating that though the AAA had succeeded in raising cotton prices by reducing production, the farmers actually did not benefit. Three cotton plantations were used in this study.

"Although the prices received in 1934 with the (AAA) adjustment program," read the deleted section, "were about 3.6 cents per pound higher than the estimated price that might have been received without the program, this difference was not enough to offset the smaller quantity of cotton available for sale, so that the estimated 2gross returns from cotton and cottonseed were less with the program than they would have been without the program."

The revised report was issued February 4, five months after the original report was said to have been completed.

When the final report was released a summary for the press was issued, beginning as follows:

"Continued cotton production adjustments are needed, in view of the uncertainties as to the demand outlook, foreign competition and conditions of production in the South, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in a report issued today."

Reporters Taken to Task.

After news dispatches were sent out to Washington holding this summary to be a distortion of the actual contents of the report, Secretary Wallace, at a press conference, called reporters who had written the dispatches to task. He denied that the AAA had anything to do with preparing the summary, but challenged reporters to show him anything in the report which conflicted with the bureau's summary.

Comparison of the two drafts, however, were said to have shown that the matter contained in the summary had been inserted in the report in place of a section deleted.

Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, said yesterday that 25 copies of the original report were prepared, and although six criticisms of it were received, only one came from an AAA official, and no comment was submitted by Secretary Wallace.

Tugwell Is Granted Leave Extension

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Columbia University said today that Rexford G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture, had been granted an extension to June 30, 1937, of his leave from a professorship.

Tugwell's further absence from the campus was approved, the university said, on his own application and at the request of President Roosevelt.

Center of some of the criticism launched at the Administration for its advisory recourse to college and university faculty members, Tugwell had obtained one leave of absence, then had it extended to June 30, 1936. A delay in his reply to the university's recent querry as to his plans for the next year had caused conjecture.

Hoffman Holds Up Facts, Says KidnapCounsel

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 24.—Gov. Hoffman's charge that important information in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case was being suppressed and that one of the chief State witnesses was "lying" stung prosecution officials into action today.

Replying to the Governor's accusation that Millard Whited, one of the witnesses who placed Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate about the time of the kidnaping, had not told the truth, Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, jr., of Hunterdon County, charged the Governor himself with withholding facts.

Perjury Evidence Cited.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, joining the fight, said "there is sufficient evidence to warrant perjury proceedings" against Whited. He said that "failure of the State authorities to act in Whited's case is a clear violation of the New Jersey criminal statutes."

Legislators criticized Gov. Hoffman tonight for his activities in behalf of Hauptmann during a turbulent session of the State Assembly.

Assemblyman J. Parnell Thomas, a Republican, as is the Governor, demanded from the floor that the Governor take his office seriously and "give up his will o' the wisp idea of justice."

In his cell, Hauptmann, convicted of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder and doomed to die the week of March 30, took hope from the latest developments.

Fisher said the condemned man was "greatly encouraged," though the Governor reiterated today he has no intention of granting a second reprieve unless circumstances warrant.

Hauck and other prosecution officials will muster forces to answer the Governor's allegations when Attorney General David T. Wilentz returns from a Florida vacation tomorrow.

Whited, in a statement to two detectives in 1932, said he had seen no suspicious cars or persons near the Lindbergh estate before March 1, 1932, the day of the kidnaping.

Two and a half years later, in the Bronx, he swore he had twice seen Hauptmann prowling near the flier's home.

"I did not question this man upon whose identification Hauptmann was brought from the Bronx to stand trial in New Jersey because I thought he was not telling the truth, but because the printed and written records show that he was lying," said Gov. Hoffmann.

"In Line" for Share.

Fisher, who visited Hauptmann with Hauptmann's wife Anna, was critical of Hauck's failure to start perjury proceedings.

"Wilentz says he does not believe Whited told the Governor of the promise of a part of the reward if he would testify, but it is in the record," Fisher said.

Hauck said that Whited had not been promised a share in the $25,000 reward, but that a State trooper had told the lumberjack he "might be in line for part of it."

Officially, Hauck said, Whited had never been promised anything.

Hauck said the Governor and Fisher asked him Saturday to bring perjury charges against Whited and he had refused, but promised to call the grand jury if someone else made the charges.

Explaining Whited's statement in 1932, that he had seen no strangers near the Lindbergh estate, Hauck said that Whited had actually told Col. Charles A. Lindbergh himself a few hours after the kidnaping he had seen a man prowling in the woods a few days before.

Marland 'Love Death' Clemency Stand Backed

Oklahoma City, Feb. 24 (AP).—Gov. E. W. Marland, whose suggestion of clemency for "love slayers" brought criticism from some of the Nation's criminologists, replied tonight, agreeing with one of them.

"I agree," Marland said, "with the statement made by Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the Cook County (Chicago) Behavior Clinic, as reported to me: 'Whether love killers actually are insane is a moot question, both in law and medicine.'

"I have a number of expert alienists in this State and I will depend upon their findings in cases of this kind that come to me for clemency."

3 Felons Trapped, Slain, Guard Tells Inquiry

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 24 (AP).—Arthur Weiss, a discharged guard, told a citizens committee investigating Illinois prisons today that three escaping convicts were shot to death from ambush in 1931 on an official order.

He testified he was sent to Collins street, adjoining the old Joliet Penitentiary, on February 22, that year, to "shoot three men who were going to come over the wall."

The fleeing felons were killed by a band of guards armed with rifles.

Senator Long Is Named To Postal Committee

By the Associated Press.

Mrs. Huey P. Long, whose late husband was a bitter critic of Postmaster General Farley, was appointed yesterday to the Senate Committee which considers Postoffice affairs.

Democratic Leader Robinson named her also to committees on interoceanic canals, public lands, immigration and claims. Her assignments number one more than those formerly held by the slain Senator, whose unexpired term she is serving.

Borah's Blast at Britain Pleases Italian Chiefs

Rome, Feb. 24 (AP).—Italian officials expressed pleasure today over the speech Saturday night by Senator William E. Borah in which he criticized the motives of nations which judged Italy the aggressor in the East African war.

They noted particularly Senator Borah's declaration that "certain sections of American opinion realize that British propaganda has been intense."

Grasso Death Car Driver Hunt Leads D. C. Detectives to South

ANTHONY J. GRASSO.

Two Homicide Squad detectives left last night for Charlotte, N. C., to question a Negro in connection with the hit-and-run death of Anthony J. Grasso, lawyer and the father of ten children, who died yesterday in Sibley Hospital as the result of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Fourth and H streets northeast last Wednesday.

Inspector Bernard Thompson, chief of detectives, said the colored man had been heard telling companions in front of a Charlotte store how he had "struck a man in Washington" on Wednesday and escaped.

The death of Grasso, who lived at No. 6 Carroll Manor circle, Takoma Park, Md., brought the District's toll for 1936 to 17—1 more than it was at this time in 1935.

Grasso's first born was the godson of the late Senator Thomas Walsh, and members of the Grasso family recalled last night that "Old Tom," who was to have been President Roosevelt's Attorney General, had promised Grasso a place in the Department of Justice.

A few days before Grasso was struck down by the hit-run automobile he had told his family that his long hunt for work appeared ended, that he had received assurances of employment from officials of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Although he had made some success of his legal career, Grasso, who was 63, had recently been forced to live partly on relief.

You CAN Arrest Me

violated the law. His reply was, "We cannot arrest them. They are protected."

Mr. Barkley: I know they can be arrested, because I have been arrested. (Laughter.)

Mr. Borah: Well, I am sorry they got the wrong man.

In the case of Williamson vs. The United States, in 207 U. S., the court had this specific question to consider; and in the opinion it is said: (He read from records of the case.)

Of course, the clause in point is that they shall, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses.

Those terms—treason, felony and breach of the peace—cover all infractions of criminal law. The only exception known to parliamentary history in England, and the only exception contemplated by the framers of the Constitution, was freedom from arrest for debt or civil arrest. It was believed in England, and perhaps believed in this country, that if members of Congress could be arrested for debt, it would greatly interfere with the affairs of the Government. (Laughter.) At any rate, the only exception as it is now construed by the court is in reference to arrest in civil cases, for debt, etc.; and since we have no arrests for debt in this country at this time, it may be regarded that this provision of the Constitution is obsolete.

In other words, the member of Congress walks the streets and uses the streets of the Capital just the same as the humblest citizen who visits the Capital from another part of the country, or just the same as the citizen who resides here in the city, and has no other privilege and no other immunity than that of the ordinary citizen.

(Here he read from Supreme Court rulings.)

There has been no modification of that view that I know of—in fact, I assume there could not be—by the Supreme Court.

Mr. President, the citizen of the District of Columbia is in some respects rather unfortunate. He has practically no voice in the affairs of the Government. He is surrounded by immunity of foreign diplomats and supposed immunities of members of Congress of the United States. It ought to be understood that there are no immunities upon the streets either for foreign diplomats or for members of Congress. The immunities of foreign diplomats relate to their property while they are in possession of or enjoying their embassies, etc.; not while they are traveling upon the streets of the city. That, however, is not important, because there is no complaint in that direction. I refer to it only in passing. But if it be true that the rules and regulations of the District of Columbia or the laws of the District of Columbia are being violated by members of Congress, they are amenable to the law precisely as is the private citizen.

Mr. Barkley: I agree to all the Senator has said with reference to the matter. I think this, however, ought to be said also:

I do not know to what extent any member of Congress is violating the traffic law by parking his automobile in front of a water plug, or a stop sign, or any other prohibitive space on the streets, nor to what extent any member of Congress deliberately goes through a red light when he ought to stop. I doubt very seriously whether violation of traffic regulations in the City of Washington by members of Congress, either of the House or of the Senate, is, in proportion to membership, any greater than it is among other people. We all realize how delightful it is to find something against members of Congress in order to make public some alleged scandal with respect to their conduct—for instance, regarding the drinking of water here in the Senate. It may be that Senators do not drink enough water, but every now and then some newspaper complains because we drink too much water. So it is easy to find fault about what goes on here; but it ought to be said that some years ago, when in front of all the public buildings in Washington there were signs prohibiting anybody from parking except on official business, there was no way to tell whether a Congressman's car was officially parked; and finally the District Commissioners provided a tag which each Congressman might put on his car to identify it so that he might stop in front of a public building, go in that public building, transact his public business and come out without molestation.

Mr. Borah: There is no exemption, there is no privilege, there is no immunity in regard to those things and I think as soon as that is understood by the public the better it will be for all concerned because the impression prevails that such immunity does exist and that we take advantage of it to the disadvantage of the private citizen. I do not know of any instances in which members of Congress have actually taken or assumed to take advantage, but it ought to be understood that they cannot do so if the officers desire to enforce the law.

Mr. Duffy: Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. Borah: I yield.

Mr. Duffy: I did not have the benefit of all the Senator's discussion, but does the Senator contend that a violation of a city ordinance which is not a crime or a felony is considered a breach of the peace under the three terms that are used in the Constitution?

Mr. Borah: I think the violation of any rule or regulation which would be considered as a fine if violated by a private citizen would be a fine if violated by a member of Congress.

Mr. Duffy: That is true, but the constitutional terms being "crime, felony and breach of the peace" except in those three cases, I did not understand that a statute passed by a municipality would come under any of those categories.

Mr. Borah: I think so. I have no doubt about it.

Mr. Norris: I should like to have the Senator discuss also in connection with his remarks the violation of a traffic rule or any other breach of the peace by others than members of Congress, high officials, for instance, or in the diplomatic service, representatives of foreign governments and so forth, as to whether they are entitled to any preference over members of Congress or anyone else in this respect.

Mr. Borah: I do not think they are. Upon the streets of the city or with reference to the laws and regulations of the city, I think they are on a level with private citizens.

Mr. Norris: I entirely agree with the Senator, but one of the causes of complaint as I get it from reading the newspapers is that these violations take place oftener by people who are not members of Congress and especially representatives—not high representatives, I mean the lower class of persons who are working or who have minor positions under a foreign legation or something of that kind. I think they do sometimes violate the regulations on the theory that they are free from arrest, violate these traffic regulations.

Mr. Borah: I have heard that complaint, but if they do violate the regulations they are subject to the law of the land, if they are not upon territory owned by the foreign governments, such as an embassy. Upon the streets they are no different from citizens of the United States.

Mr. Barkley: Mr. President, will the Senator allow me to read into his remarks or into my own the law with respect to these tags of which I spoke a moment ago? It is very brief.

Mr. Borah: I yield.

Mr. Barkley: This is an act approved December 19, 1932, Public Document No. 308, Seventy-second Congress.

(He read from the act providing members of Congress with special "Congressional" auto tags.)

Mr. Borah: Mr. President, I do not understand that the articles to which I have referred complain of that law. They complain of a violation of it.

Mr. Barkley: Probably so. It may be that chauffeurs are more guilty than owners of cars, taking advantage of these Congressional tags to park their automobiles in prohibited places, for which, of course, there can be no justification.

Mr. Borah: In view of the many, many accidents which are constantly happening on the streets of Washington, I think members of Congress above all people should be exceedingly careful in observing the laws which prevail in the District of Columbia. I am not assuming that they have been violating the laws, but I do say that if they have been, there is no reason in the world why the violators should not be punished.

13 Die in West As Warm Winds Release Floods

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Feb. 24.—Snowslides floods and grinding ice floes—loosed by warming winds that swept a major part of the Nation—took a reported toll of at least 13 lives today.

The same winds, rushing in to fill low-pressure areas over western Nebraska and northern Wisconsin, scooped up soil from bare fields in the Southwest, creating scenes reminiscent of last year's blighting series of dust storms.

Swift melting river ice and headwater snows combined with forecasts of watershed rains to carry flood threats to a dozen States. Ice gorges were blasted and blasting preparations made throughout the Middle West.

Four were reported drowned and many driven from their homes by high water in the Stockton and Oakdale district of California. This region bore the brunt of early flood troubles with 35,000 acres under water and agricultural damage estimated near $1,000,000. The Sacramento River began falling today.

Farmers in rich lowlands in other sections were warned to be prepared to evacuate. Reading, Pa., made plans to care for 1,200 refugees in anticipation of floods along the Schuylkill.

Danger was averted in the Ohio River Valley near Evansville, Ind., where even more serious difficulty had been feared. Giant ice gorges above and below Evansville broke—freeing many miles of the river and virtually ending serious flood threats.

States preparing for trouble in the event thaws continue included Illinois, Indiana, Idaho, Iowa, South Dakota Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kansas.

The second dust storm in as many days fogged skies over parts of the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and Kansas and Colorado. Wind velocity rose at times as high as 50 miles an hour. Visibility ranged from one-quarter to three-quarters of a mile.

A new flood danger point developed in Nebraska where the Nemaha ran bank full, and Walnut Creek overflowed after more than 2 feet of snow melted in two days. The muddy river rose rapidly.

Pittsburgh temperatures rose to 50 degrees, breaking up huge gorges in the Ohio River near there. Much snow melted in the Pennsylvania mountains and rivermen warned West Voirginia panhandle shore residents to be ready to evacuate in case of additional rain.

Recluse's Brother Willed $100,000

Laughlin died Sunday. First estimates placed the estate roughly at $1,000,000—although late yesterday it was reported the amount did not exceed $100,000.

The brother, for whom the money is held in trust by the Washington Loan & Trust Co., is believed to live in Harrisonburg, Va. Upon the death of this brother—H. B. Laughlin—the bulk of the estate is to go to the Associated Charities.

Funeral arrangements for Laughlin were completed late yesterday.

He left explicit orders that his body was to be cremated and the ashes scattered over the Potomac River.

Hitler Returns to Hall Where He Began Career

Munich, Feb. 24 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler met his old comrades tonight in the beer hall where, exactly 16 years ago, he proclaimed his program for Germany.

"We are now masters of this reich," he declared in a speech on the anniversary of the formation of the Nazi Party.

"Our victory was a turning point for Europe. Whatever others may think of us, they cannot think us to be nonexistent, although they would like to."

Cutter Leaves to Repair Fire Damage at Sitka

Juneau, Alaska, Feb. 24 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Tallapoosa was en route to Sitka today with replacement equipment for the government radio station, reported damaged when fire swept the historic Russian log building housing several Federal offices.

An amateur radio report from Sitka said the fire followed an oil explosion. The building was erected by the Russian government before the United States took possession of the territory in 1867.

Spain Halts Politics For Carnival Season

Madrid, Feb. 24 (AP).—Confetti and gaily-colored serpentines replaced political handbills tonight as Spain enthusiastically entered the spring carnival season.

Apparently forgotten were the eventful past eight days which saw a left government win in the general election, widespread disorders are the liberation of thousands of political prisoners.

With the new government of Premier Manuel Azana seemingly in firm control, there is but little interest in runoff parliamentary elections to be held Sunday.

4 Face Wilson Killing Charge In Court Today

Heavily Guarded Prisoners to Plead Not Guilty in Montgomery.

In a courthouse bristling with police guns, the four alleged Wilson killers today will be arraigned on charges of murder in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., before Judge Charles W. Woodward.

Albert McDermott, alias John "Slim" Dunn, a Federal prisoner who was returned from Alcatraz for the hearing; Albert S. Sutton, Washington gambler; Ernest S. Myers and William Cleary, are charged with murder of Allen B. Wilson, newspaper carrier who was shot down at dawn of the morning of October 23, 1934 while delivering a newspaper at the home of Edward (Mickey) McDonald, also well known in Washington sporting circles, near Takoma Park, Md. Police contend that Wilson was mistaken for McDonald.

The four also are charged with an attempt to kill McDonald by placing a large quantity of dynamite in his automobile October 2, 1934, and for conspiracy to murder McDonald. McDermott, Cleary, Myers and Dewey Jenkins, a State witness, are charged with carrying concealed weapons.

The procedure today is expected to be short. The prisoners will be brought into the courtroom and the charges read to them. They then will be given an opportunity to plead. Since the crime is one requiring capital punishment their plea will be not guilty. Pleas of guilty are not accepted in capital cases.

Mrs. C. J. Opheim Found in Hospital

Mrs. Charlotte J. Opheim, 35, daughter of Julien Johnson, of Pierre, S. Dak., missing from her home, 6610 Fifth street northwest, since Saturday, was located in Gallinger Hospital last night.

The daughter of Judge Johnson, who was the object of a wide police search, walked into the hospital Sunday midnight and asked to be admitted. She gave the name of O'Brien, hospital officials said.

Her disappearance was reported to police by Mrs. Francis Davis, who said Mrs. Opheim came to her home, at 6610 Fifth street northwest, a week ago and begged her to rent a room, saying she was being pursued by a "mystery man" who was "gunning for her" at a Peabody street address where Mrs. Opheim had been living for some time.

Verdict Reserved In Shooting Case

Sheriff Gochenour testified that he received a call on January 14 to Cedar Creek Valley to arrest Wetzel on a charge of threatening Chester Orndorff. The officer declared that Wetzel attempted to shoot Deputy Sheriff Paul Borden, and that he had then fired through a partition in the Wetzel home, wounding Wetzel in the groin.

Wetzel's attorneys claimed that the arrest was illegal and that the officers had no right to invade Wetzel's home without a proper warrant.

Biscuit Plant Fire Destroys $30,000 Foods

A three-alarm fire swept through a section of the warehouse of the National Biscuit Co., in the 300 block of Randolph place northeast, late yesterday, destroying thousands of cartons of crackers and breakfast foods.

Damage to the stock alone was estimated at $30,000 by John M. Cox, branch manager of the company.

The fire, starting in the rear of the warehouse, was discovered shortly before 5 p. m. It spread rapidly as the flames roared through the paper-wrapped cartons of biscuits and other widely advertised foods.

Truck drivers, salesmen and officials tried to head off the fire with buckets of water, but dense smoke drove them back.

The fire apparatus meantime had been summoned by an employe in the office.

The apparatus had difficulty in reaching the scene. Government employes were on their way home from work, and the thoroughfares were clogged with traffic.

Because of the stubborn nature of the fire and the proximity of other valuable property, two additional alarms were "pulled" in rapid succession.

The offices of the National Geographic Society are directly across the street from the warehouse. Most of the society's 300 employes were on their way home when the fire broke out.

The new McKinley High School is a block away.

After the firemen extinguished the blaze, they had a difficult task clearing the building of the soggy cartons of crackers.

For many children in the neighborhood the fire was a gastronomic event. They salvaged many of the slightly scarred cartons and enjoyed a feast.

The cause of the fire could not immediately be determined.

Body of Ritchie To Lie in State At Baltimore

Last Services for Former Governor to Be Held at 3 P. M. Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 24.—The body of Albert Cabell Ritchie, for 20 years the dominant figure in Maryland politics and the State's Governor for four terms, who died early this morning, will lie in state in Christ Episcopal Church here tomorrow until his funeral at 3 p. m.

The last offices of the church will be given the former Governor by Bishop Edward T. Helfenstein and the Rev. S. Thorne Sparkman, rector of the church.

Flags fluttered at half-staff over the entire State a few hours after Gov. Ritchie's death became known. Both Democrats and Republicans were quick to pay tribute to his executive ability and his adherence to the principles he thought right.

The career of the silver-haired, smiling, former Governor was ended at 1:45 a. m. today by a stroke of apoplexy. The attack came as he apparently was recovering from a long spell of ill health. He was in his sixtieth year.

Ritchie was an outstanding figure in opposition to New Deal measures. His death left a gap in the ranks of anti-Administration Democrats and caused speculation as to the outcome of an intra-party fight to "go back to the platform of 1932."

Roosevelt Pays Tribute.

Despite Ritchie's opposition to his Administration, however, President Roosevelt spoke of him as a "personal friend." In a telegram to Ritchie's law partner, Stuart S. Janney, the President said:

"In the death of Gov. Ritchie Maryland has lost a distinguished citizen who for an unprecedented period rendered the State eminent service as its chief executive. I regret the passing of a very old personal friend."

Anti-New Dealer, defender of States' rights, proponent of prohibition repeal and three times a Presidential candidate, Ritchie was stricken in the midst of a fight for what he deemed the true principles of the Democratic Party.

His death ended the speculation he either would be put forward for the Presidency himself or would be a leading figure in opposition to the renomination of President Roosevelt.

He definitely had planned, however, at the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia to fight "within the party" for a return to the platform of 1932, which he helped write.

Led Repeal Fight.

It was through his ardent defense of States' rights and his role in the fight that led to repeal of prohibition that Ritchie attained to national prominence. He was an avowed candidate for the Presidency in 1924, 1928 and 1932.

Ritchie proved his executive ability and his political acumen through four terms as Maryland's Governor. His hopes of serving a fifth term were blasted in 1934 by Nice.

After the defeat, Ritchie returned to his law practice. He did not retire altogether from the political scene, but appeared frequently as a speaker at public gatherings to advance his ideas.

In his last address he criticized centralization of government at Washington as opposed to the intent of the Constitution. He spoke at a church meeting across the street from his home a few hours before he died.

Ritchie was alone in his apartment when stricken. His personal secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Smith, summoned from her home about midnight, found the former Governor semiconscious in a chair near the telephone.

He was unconscious upon the arrival of Dr. Cecil Bagley and Dr. Richard Coblentz. Mrs. Smith had succeeded in locating them after failing in attempts to reach nearby physicians.

The efforts of the physicians were useless, though they administered artifical respiration, Dr. Bagley having ordered tanks of oxygen from the fire department. Eight were administered, but Ritchie failed to rally.

Burial will be in the Greenmount Cemetery plot of his mother and father.

Ritchie was an only child. He married Elizabeth Catherine Baker, of Catonsville, Md. They were divorced, and Ritchie never remarried. They had no children.

Arlington Burial For Mrs. Sternberg

Mrs. Sternberg, who was an honorary vice president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died Sunday in Ann Arbor, Mich.

After their marirage in 1865, Mrs. Sternberg accompanied her husband throughout the Indian campaigns and his subsequent work in search of a cure for yellow fever, which took him to several foreign countries.

She was a resident of Washington until 1925 and was very active in the Army and Navy Relief Corps Society. Surviving are six nieces.

Dr. C. B. Craig Is Dead; Famed As Neurologist

Had Been Ill for 5 Months; Served in France During World War.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 24.—Dr. C. Burns Craig, 52, associate director of the Neurological Institute of New York, died there today after a five-month illness. He had been associated with the institute nearly 25 years.

Graduated from the College of Wooster in his native Ohio, Dr. Craig continued his studies at the Medical School of Western Reserve University at Cleveland, being graduated in 1911. He was studying psychiatry at the University of Munich when the World War broke out.

He returned at once to America, but soon went to France with $10,000 worth of tetanus serum donated by an anonymous American woman for use among French soldiers. He served as neurologist to the American Ambulance Corps through 1914 and 1915, returning to America in 1916.

He was chief of the clinic at the Neurological Hospital when the United States entered the war. He returned to France as a major with the Seventy-seventh Division.

In addition to his duties with the institute, he was consulting neurologist at Fordham Hospital, Rockland State Hospital at Orangeburg, N. Y., and the Paterson General Hospital at Paterson, N. J.

His wife, whom he married in 1926, survives. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

President Hurries Back for Funeral

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt spent today at his home here, but boarded a special train at 10:22 p. m. to return to Washington to attend the funeral of Henry Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and a cousin.

The death of Albert C. Ritchie, former Governor of Maryland, was noted by Mr. Roosevelt with a public expression of regret.

The President remained throughout the day at his home and spent the time working on routine business. He brought with him some plans for financing the new farm bill.

Miss Marguerite Le Hand and Miss Grace Tully, of the secretarial staff, were present.

By the United Press.

St. Louis, Feb. 24.—The men who direct the country's schools were urged tonight to adopt an educational program allowing unhampered discussion of controversial issues, divorced from partisan politics.

Resolutions presented to the annual convention of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association cited "special privilege and ignorance" as "enemies menacing to democracy."

"We insist that public education should be free from partisan politics," one resolution said. "We favor that sort of academic freedom which permits the teacher complete liberty of political conduct. At the same time, the teacher should be allowed to present all facts in controversial issues . . . without the bias of any individual or group."

Jesse H. Newlon, of Columbia University, exhorted delegates to allow teaching of socialism, communism and fascism in secondary schools and colleges, or fail in their "responsibility to give youth understanding."

Teachers Face Choice.

"Teachers of the country face the necessity of making a choice, the most momentous decision in the history of American education," he said. "Shall we, through indifference or fear, permit our educational system to degenerate into an agency employed solely for social control, by the most reactionary interest in the country?

"We must strive to keep the schools open intellectually as well as physically. Whenever freedom of teaching is threatened, Democracy is threatened."

United States Commissioner of Education J. W. Studebaker said the American educational system, by avoiding these issues, "must be responsible for shunting the real problems into the arena of mass emotion."

"It may as well be known," he said, "that the teaching profession of America is not to be bribed by appropriations, or frightened by attacks, into acting as the carriers of propaganda for any faction, vested interest, political party or pressure group.

"Democracy, like charity, begins at home . . . the place to stop growth of attitudes which prepare people for satisfactory cogs in the great machine of dictatorship, is in the classroom of the public schools."

Six Public Enemies.

Meanwhile, delegates discussed an address by Dr. George S. Counts, of the Columbia University Teachers' College, who branded William Randolph Hearst, Frank Belgrano, former commander of the American Legion, Alfred E. Smith, Father Coughlin, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Liberty League, as the "six greatest public enemies of education."

His speech was delivered before the John Dewey Society, a teachers' group unconnected with the larger body.

Counts said Smith had "sold out to privilege." He asserted that Father Coughlin was spreading confusion and falsehood, and called the purpose of the Liberty League "to protect the great fortunes obtained through exploitation of the American people."

President Roosevelt, in a message expressing regrets at being unable to attend the conference, defined the principal duty of schools and colleges as giving the public "an understanding of widespread social and economic changes."

"I wish to express the deep conviction that in your hands, and in the hands of America's teachers, resides the destiny of our country," he stated.

Stand on Communism.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 24.—Ray Murphy, national commander of the American Legion, today defended the legion's stand on teaching of Communism and Fascism, declaring "the legion as an organization has never opposed academic freedom."

Commenting on a statement made in St. Louis by Jesse H. Newton, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University, Murphy said:

"The legion does not oppose dissemination of knowledge relative to Communism, Fascism or any 'ism,' but it believes the study of such 'isms' in secondary schools and colleges should be approached with care, and with certainty that information relative thereto is not the product of any school of anti-American propaganda.

"If the study of such 'isms' is from an American angle, well and good," he said. "If not, why not invite the agents of such 'isms' to chairs in our colleges, instead of taking their doctrines second hand?"

Newton told a National Education Association meeting in St. Louis today that Communism and Fascism were "facts in a contemporary world, facts of tremendous significance, which modern education can not ignore."

Recital by Friskin Scheduled at Howard

James Friskin, pianist, who is a faculty member of the Juilliard Graduate School in New York, will give a recital tonight at 8:30 in Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University. This recital is a part of the concert series sponsored by the school of music. The following program is announced:

Prelude, Fugue and Variations (Franck-Bauer), Sonata in F sharp minor (Schumann), Ballade in F major, Etude in C sharp minor, Fantaisie, op. 49 (Chopin), Intermezzi in A major, C major and E major; Capriccio in C major, Book 2 of Variations on a theme by Paganini (Brahms).

Suicide Is Feared In Ella Diltz Case

A search under all bridges was W. Brown, chief of police, in an W. Brown, Chief of Police, in an attempt to ascertain whether Ella Diltz, 27-year-old National Radio Institute secretary who disappeared February 15, had committed suicide.

A Nation-wide radio broadcast is planned for tomorrow if the search here should fail, Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, said. The police radio has carried the lookout several times since the girl's disappearance.

Detective Sergts. Michael Dowd and Steve Brodie, assigned to the case, were searching for a man known only as Glenn Curtiss, who phoned Ella's home, 1713 Eighteenth street northwest, ten minutes before she vanished. They admitted, however, they were without a clew to Curtiss, whereabouts.

The suicide theory was advanced by police after learning that the girl was in poor health for nearly a year.

Lewis Scores Pacts With U. S. Debtors

By the Associated Press.

Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, told the Senate yesterday the United States should decline to negotiate a trade treaty with France or any other nation "which deliberately cheats us out of the billions they owe us on the war debts."

Reading press accounts of French efforts to negotiate an extension of the Franco-American most favored nation treaty and of a tripartiate loan arrangement between Great Britain, France and Rumania, Lewis said:

"Instead of reciprocity, the hour of retaliation is at hand."

He said the United States Senate should announce a policy whereby it would decline to enter any commercial treaties with any nations which "rifle our treasury while lending to other nations for profit or for war."

Lewis read press dispatches saying Great Britain had agreed to lend $200,000,000 to France, one-fourth of which France was to lend to Rumania to enable the latter to increase her army strength.

2 Local Measures Go to White House

Two local bills were passed by the House yesterday and sent to the White House. They had been adopted previously by the Senate.

One measure authorizes the District Commissioners to name only the last owner of record when suing to obtain title on property bid in by the District at a delinquent tax sale.

The other amends a present law to allow the police property clerk to sell property worth up to $100 instead of $50 without a court order after remaining unclaimed for six months. The amendment also permits the sale of unclaimed automobiles after three months, but provides that the money must be retained for an additional three months.

Senate Passes Tax Exemption On RFC Stocks

Measure Is Voted Despite Charge of $90,000 Pay for Democratic Chief.

By the Associated Press.

Despite a bi-partisan attack, during which a Democratic chieftain was charged with receving salaries of $90,000 a year from RFC borrowers, the Senate yesterday voted to exempt bank stocks held by the RFC from State and local taxation.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, joined by Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, led opposition to the Administration measure. It was Couzens who asserted that Walter J. Cummings, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, was receiving big salaries from agencies borrowing from the Reconstruction Corporation.

A 38-to-28 vote sent the bill to the House, where early consideration appeared likely under a rule adopted yesterday limiting debate to two and a half hours.

Drafted After Ruling.

The measure was drafted after a recent Supreme Court ruling in a Maryland case that bank stocks held by the RFC were subject to local taxation.

As passed by the Senate it contained an amendment proposed by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, calling for a reduction from 4 to 3½ per cent the interest charged by the RFC on loans to closed banks.

Opening his criticism, Couzens asserted Cummings was receiving $75,000 a year as chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago, to which the RFC has lent $50,000,000.

"If these banks can pay these salaries," he said, "they can certainly pay taxes on these preferred stocks."

Attack Broadened.

The Michigan Senator broadened his attack to a general criticism of Cummings' position as the representative of the RFC on the bank board as well as on the board of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, for which latter service Cousens said he received $15,000 a year.

He maintained he was not critical of the salary, but after recalling that Cummings also held an office in the Chicago City Railroad, the American Car & Foundry Co., and possibly the Brill Car Manufacturing Co., he asserted it "takes no imagination" to understand how he could "parcel out purchases of railroad equipment" to favored firms.

Couzens read a letter sent him by Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Corporation, asserting Cummings had been appointed to the Continental Bank Board before he became Democratic treasurer. The Michigan Senator commented, however, that the "more vicious" appointment to the railroad post came while he held the party treasurership.

Ashurst Also Opposed.

Senator Ashurst joined Couzens in asserting he was "very much opposed" to the bank stock bill, but Senators Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, and Adams (Democrat), Colorado, replied with assertions that the interest rate paid the corporation on the preferred stock was kept purposely low at 3½ per cent as an aid to the banks, and that payment of taxes was not contemplated.

Presently a half-dozen Senators were on their feets, questioning and debating.

Couzens persisted in his attack, describing Cummings' position with the railroad, with banks, and with car manufacturing firms as "a step in the direction of favoritism in the form of interlocking directorates to which I have always been opposed."

"I want to refrain as much as possible from politics," he said, "but as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee there is no saying as to what extent he (Cummings) might ask for contributions."

Senator Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, leaped to his feet to ask if Couzens knew of any requests made.

"Oh, no, I wouldn't have access to that," Couzens responded, laughing, only to add a moment later:

20-Year Primary Race Given Up by Bryan

By the Associated Press.

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 24.—For the first time in 20 years Nebraska's primary election ballot this year will not carry the name of former Gov. Charles W. Bryan.

Brother of the late William Jennings Bryan, the 69-year-old Mayor of Lincoln announced today he would not seek his party's nomination for any office. He plans to devote his time to municipal affairs.

"The Commoner" was one of the few men ever nominated three times for President. "Brother Charley" broke all State records by running for Governor eight times. He was elected thrice. In 1924 he was nominated by the Democratic National Convention for Vice President as running mate of John W. Davis.

2 Bandits Attack Grocer, Take $35

Sauntering into a chain grocery store at 1018 North Capitol street yesterday afternoon, two colored bandits accompanied by a colored woman, attacked the manager and escaped with about $35 in cash.

John E. Bittle, 35, the manager, was alone in the store at the time. When he resisted the bandits, they knocked him unconscious with the butt of a sawed-off shotgun.

Police were searching the city for the robbers last night. Bittle, who lives at 916 Ninth street northeast, was taken to Sibley Hospital, where physicians said his condition is not serious.

Inquiry by U. S. Before Island Slayings Shown

By the Associated Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Feb. 24.—An investigation into activities of Nationalists against "Yankee domination" of Puerto Rico has been made by two agents of the United States Department of Justice, it was reported today, as insular officials began their own inquiry into the latest disorders.

The Department of Justice agents left to report to Washington, shortly before the assassination of two police officials yesterday, and the killing in turn of the two slayers of one of them.

Nationalists, led by Pedro Albizu Campos, lawyer and Harvard graduate, have urged voters not to register for next fall's election. They want independence from the United States.

Police said the killing of Col. E. Francis Riggs, chief of insular police, and of a district police chief, came yesterday after a long-laid plot.

Mrs. Riggs, who arrived today from the United States, decided that her husband, a former Army colonel, would be buried in Puerto Rico.

Nationalist Riot.

Two Nationalists who shot Riggs were later killed by police, who said they attempted to draw guns. Meanwhile, Francisco Velez Ortiz, a district police chief, was fatally wounded trying to quell a Nationalist riot in a cafe at Utuado.

Attorney General Fernandez Garcio, who is directing an investigation into the killings, at the direction of Gov. Blanton D. Winship, said the inquiry would include activities of Albizu Campos, president of the Nationalists, as well as those of other party leaders.

The official asserted speeches in which Albizu Campos preached violence were a matter of public record.

Nationalists countered with the announcement that they were making an investigation into the killing by police of Riggs' slayers.

To Lie in State.

Riggs' body was taken late today to police headquarters, where it will lie in state, draped with a flag and attended by a changing guard until 10 a. m. tomorrow. It will then be taken to the cathedral for a requiem mass, followed by a private burial.

Elias Beauchamp and Hiram Rosado, youths who killed Riggs, were buried this afternoon only a few yards from the spot where Riggs will lie, although in different cemeteries.

Gov. Winship said he had talked with Riggs only a few hours before the assassination regarding Nationalist activities, and was told that police at the time did not have adequate evidence to proceed against them on charges of violating the law.

The Governor indicated Riggs did not want to act hurriedly in fear of making "a Sandino" out of Albizu Campos.

RefinanceNeed Fixed at Billion By Morgenthau

March Borrowing Would Retire Securities That Have Matured.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., yesterday announced a billion-dollar refinancing program for the month of March.

The March 15 borrowing, he said, will consist of $450,000,000 to retire securities maturing then, $559,000,000 to retire securities maturing on April 15, "plus whatever new cash we will need."

This latter sum is not expected to be large.

New features of the announcement yesterday were that it was made so far ahead of the date of the actual transactions, and the fact that the Treasury plans to provide for the obligations maturing April 15 a month in advance.

Explaining this, he would only say:

"We think it's good business."

Observers in some quarters held that the Secretary was telling the money markets of the Nation of future plans far enough ahead that they could plan for them effectively.

There is the additional angle that a large borrowing may follow later in anticipation of the bonus payments beginning in June, and that Secretary Morgenthau wishes to clear the path for the later transactions.

The Secretary told reporters that estimates of the national income receipts for March contained "no significant changes, up or down," thus indicating that the Treasury expects increases in other items to offset the loss in processing taxes. This follows the predictions that collections would be much larger this year, due to better busines, for the loss of the processing taxes was a heavy blow to the Treasury.

The Secretary refused to estimate how much new borrowing would be required. The working cash balance of the Treasury is at present in such shape, however, that the amount is not expected to be large.

About $400,000,000 of the $1,400,000,000 in the balance is now slated to be used to retire national bank notes. Although $1,000,000,000 remain, the Treasury usually carries a working cash fund of about $700,000,000.

In some circles it was believed that due to the traditional Treasury conservatism in the estimates of income, the total March revenue may actually run considerably above the Secretary's apparent expectations to as high as $650,000,000. March revenue for last year was $601,000,000, but $47,000,000 of this was in processing taxes.

Meanwhile it was learned from an authoritative source that Eugene R. Black, jr., for personal reasons, has declined an invitation to become Undersecretary of the Treasury to succeed Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, who resigned.

Gross Tax Scored InPrince Georges

The Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce last night accepted the report of Emanuel F. Zalzak, chairman of the special committee on sales tax, opposing gross receipts taxation to meet emergency relief conditions in Maryland.

The committee asked that the county be left to take care of its own relief problems and urged that strict economy be practiced by the State government.

A measure to tax luxuries will be asked by the chamber of commerce when the Legislature meets at Annapolis, as a substitute for the present gross receipts tax.

Walter L. Green, of Hyattsville, was appointed delegate and Mayor William P. Carson, of Riverdale, was appointed alternate to the United States Chamber of Commerce meeting here late in April.

Canadian-U. S. Trade Increases $2,601,000

Ottawa, Feb. 24 (AP).—For the first month's operation of the Canada-United States trade agreement, total exports from this country to the United States rose by $2,601,000, or 15 per cent over the exports to the United States for January, 1935, a report issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics disclosed. Last month's exports amounted in value to $20,130,000, compared with $17,529,000 for January last year.

Imports from the United States also increased. Last month they were valued at $26,285,000, against $23,157,000 a year ago.

number of members to withdraw their signatures. It was this activity that recently brought down upon his head the wrath of Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, and supporter of the Lemke plan.

Petition Slowed Down.

The Coughlin attacks on Boland and Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee, actually slowed down the farm inflation petition's progress in the House, leaders said. After two successive Sunday addresses by the radio priest, names were withdrawn from the petition.

In renewing his prediction that the petition will be fully signed at an early date, Lemke declared yesterday that the full effect of Coughlin's radio speeches has not yet been felt, but will be as members begin hearing from constituents. Boland said yesterday he had received more than 500 letters from his district on the subject, but all of them expressed commendation of the Pennsylvanian's recent reply to Coughlin.

In the Senate, Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, veteran expansionist leader, said yesterday he will make no effort to attach a currency expansion amendment to the Administration's new tax bill. He said there seemed little hope of enacting legislation to force the President to use his present permissive powers to issue more currency. Thomas said, however, he will take advantage of his first opportunity to argue before the Senate his proposal to decrease the value of the dollar by 24 cents.

A FARMER WRITES AN "AD" ABOUT Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS!

Gentlemen:

I am an old man who knows what he likes. A hill farmer is a stubborn cuss, and when he takes to cigarettes when he's well gone by 60 years, he has good reasons for wanting those cigarettes. And for some time now I haven't touched any smoking but OLD GOLDS.

My brother's son got me on cigarettes, but the ones he gave me seemed too quick-burning. One day our general storekeeper stood me one of those Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS, made of prize crop tobaccos. And I had my first cigarette that burnt as slow and cool as my pipe, and that didn't leave a man's tongue stinging and biting like that other cigarette brand.

I've bought Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS ever since, and every pack has been the same. I know, because I'm blind, and we without eyes learn to taste and feel better than you who see.

Yours truly,

Jerry Hurley

P.S. My 16 year old niece, Betty, has typed this for me, just as I told it to her. The snapshot was taken by Betty's father.

Senate Directs Board to Study U. S. Agencies

Governmental Reorganization Object; All Bureaus Within Scope.

By the Associated Press.

Search for a "constructive plan for the reorganization of the whole Government" was directed by the Senate yesterday with passage of a resolution setting up a five-member committee to scrutinize the governmental structure.

The resolution, introduced by Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, critic of some New Deal policies, directs the committee "to make a full and complete study of all the activities of the departments, bureaus, boards, commissions, independent agencies and all other agencies of the executive branch of the Government."

Although Byrd originally asked for $50,000 to do the job, the measure as recommended by the audit committee provided only $20,000.

A "Gigantic Task."

Byrd said after the resolution had been adopted on a voice vote:

"I realize it is a gigantic task, yet I know many hundreds of millions of dollars can be saved yearly by the elimination of useless bureaus and overlapping agencies. If I am appointed to the committee I will devote all of my time and ability in an effort to present to Congress a plan which will merit its approval."

The committee is to determine whether, in case of overlapping agencies, such agencies might well be co-ordinated with other units, abolished, or have their personnel reduced, "in the interest of simplification, efficiency, and economy."

Only last week, the Virginian said he would favor a billion-dollar tax bill at this session in order to make citizens more conscious that present Federal expenditures must be paid for. He indicated he would seek to expand the Administration's tax program when it reaches the Senate.

Byrd told reporters that if he were named chairman of the investigating committee, he would call in outside experts to help in the inquiry.

107,000 at Work Here.

"There are approximately 107,000 employes in Washington now," he said, "as compared with 63,000 when President Roosevelt was inaugurated.

"Over the whole country there are 200,000 more regular employes of the Government than there were in March, 1933. This number does not include the CCC or relief workers.

"Twenty-seven new boards, and commissions have been created under the present Administration."

U. S. Winds Up Its Case Today In Liquor Trial

Defense of 21 in Ring May Require 2 Weeks; Wire-Tapping Described.

Prosecution testimony in the trial of 21 men and women charged with conspiring to violate the liquor laws will be concluded today, Henry Schweinhaut, assistant United States attorney, said last night. He has only one witness yet to put on the stand. The trial already has taken up two weeks and, with defense testimony, may run a month.

Yesterday testimony was produced of hundreds of telephone communications allegedly received by the liquor ring headquarters while it was selling at least 5,000 gallons of illicit liquor a week here. The Government is estimated to have lost about $2,000 a day in uncollected taxes.

Wire-tappers, glibly discribed as "wire technicians," of the Alcohol Tax Unit, reported the substance of scores of messages they intercepted on the ring's unlisted phones. Their testimony met objections from defense attorneys, but was admitted by Justice F. D. Letts.

Defense attorneys estimated they would require at least a week to present their case. They said several defendants would deny they had any connection with the alleged conspiracy. The original indictment listed 34 defendants, several of whom pleaded guilty. Charges against others were dropped.

In permitting testimony collected by the agents, Justice Letts ignored an act of Congress of 1934 which makes it a felony to tap telephone wires. The prohibition was placed in the communications act of that year and it provides a substantial fine, or imprisonment for all convictions.

Speakers Laud Library's Drive To Assist Blind

Efforts of the National Library for the Blind to aid in education of the afflicted were praised by speakers yesterday at a Shorehom Hotel luncheon.

Generous contributions in the coming campaign to raise funds for the library, now observing its twenty-fifth anniversary, were urged by leaders in the movement.

Speakers included Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General; Mrs. Ross T. McIntyre, chairman of the women's committee in the drive; James G. Dulin, jr., library treasurer, and the Rev. Paul Sperry, library director.

Mrs. Willebrandt declared the campaign offered a "splendid opportunity" for everyone to aid in promoting an institution soundly adapted to relieving limitations placed upon individuals by blindness.

Books in Braille, such as supplied by the library, she added, "provide an outlet and an opportunity for spiritual food."

Other speakers emphasized benefits which would flow from cash donations to the fund.

Place cards were written in Braille.

The 125 women present applauded an announcement of acceptance by Mrs. McIntyre of the chairmanship of the women's committee in the campaign, set for March 24 to April 6.

Mrs Frederick W. Holt presided, due to the absence of Mrs. Thomas P. Gore, committee chairman.

$500 Awarded Patron Who Bit Pebble in Roll

Court Rules Eating Places Are Liable for Foreign Matter in Foods.

The United States Court of Appeals, in a ruling handed down yesterday, served notice on propretors of public eating places they would be held liable for injuries their patrons suffer when they eat food containing foreign substances.

The ruling was made in a suit filed by William J. Cushing, who injured several teeth when he bit on a stone hidden in a roll he was eating. He testified, in the Municipal Court, that he went into a drug store to get coffee and rolls and came out minus some teeth as the result of biting on a stone.

Testimony showed rolls had been purchased from a reputable bakery, and had been bought by the drug store without knowledge of the stone's being in one of them. Notwithstanding, Justice Harold Stephens held that the protection of the public required the courts to take the view there was an "implied warranty" that food offered for consumption was fit for use.

The case was brought in the Municipal Court where Cushing, represented by Attorneys G. L. Munter and Confer Bailey, asked damages of $500. In the Appellate Court action yesterday the case, which had been lost by Cushing, was reversed and remanded to the Municipal Court.

Capt. Hohmann Funeral Today

Funeral services for Capt. Anton Hohmann, 66, of 1433 Foxall road, former chief of police of Manila, Philippine Islands, who died Saturday of a heart attack, will be held at 10 a. m. today in Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church, after brief services at his residence. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

A native of Rock Island, Ill., Capt. Hohmann served in National Guard regiments in Illinois before volunteering for Philippine service against Gen. Aguinaldo. He left the Army in 1901 to join the Manila police force.

Returning to this country in 1922, he went to work in the Pension Bureau, which later became Veterans' Administration. He was an adjudicator in the widows and dependents claim service of the latter at the time of his death.

Widely known in veterans' circles here, he was a past commander of Emmett Urell Camp, No. 9, United Spanish War Veterans. He also was a member of the Washington Lodge of Elks.

Order of Ahepa Hears Dern Laud Hellenic Example of Rule

Much of the success of America was attributed to "the Hellenic example of keeping the Government close to the people" by Secretary Dern last night before the Order of Ahepa in the Mayflower Hotel.

Some 750 persons of Greek extraction, including many from out of town, broke bread with more than 100 Senators and Representatives, Federal officials and prominent citizens.

Senator William H. King, of Utah; Demetrios Sicilianos, the Greek Minister, and V. I. Chebithes, Ahepa supreme president, also spoke.

Direct election of Senators in this country was likened by Secretary Dern to Hellenic principles.

Credit for Meetings.

"Democracy," he added, "was born in Greece. Our New England town meetings are a direct descendant of similar meetings held in Greece. From the simple Hellenic democracy we have evolved the representative democracy of the United States."

He declared science, literature and art were cradled in ancient Greece and that architecture, jurisprudence and eloquence flourished there centuries before Europeans began to till the soil.

Dern praised the courage shown by "Americans of Hellenic descent" in the World War.

"Your society does well," he said, "to perpetuate the memory of both ancient and modern Greeks. I hope that we shall never be so engrossed in the utilitarian pursuits of the moment as to forget our obligations to our forebears.

"I trust that this society and others like it will continue to instill in the rising generation that pride of ancestry, love of country and zeal for service that should be the common reitage of all Americans, irrespective of birth."

Friendship Stressed.

Sicilianos lauded the order for promoting better relations between this country and Greece. He stressed the friendship existing between the two countries.

"The latest gesture of friendship of the Greek nation," he said, "was accepted by this Government, and has become an added link in a series of friendly acts uniting the two countries.

"The Greek government, prompted by its capacity to pay, offered to the United States Government 35 per cent of the serving charge of the loan of 1929, which loan had its origin in the World War commitments.

"As a result of this offer and acceptance, every May and November of each year, and until world conditions improve or a definite settlement is reached, Greece will pay to the United States $76,000. These may be small matters, but they are no doubt quite essential in maintaining friendly ties between countries."

Senator King commended the order for providing 500 students with scholastic funds and for its work in aiding thousands of persons to obtain naturalization papers.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS—which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS —Advt.

Crisis In Puerto Rico.

The dual assassination of Col. E. F. Riggs, chief of the Puerto Rican police, and of one of his principal subordinate officers, makes imperative the settlement of two separate questions. The problem of how far others than the assassins were implicated in the murders has already been taken in hand by Governor-General Winship. But the second issue, which is the eventual political status of the island, is for Congress to determine. A third problem, the improvement of economic conditions in this overcrowded dependency, is always with us.

The only policy which we have consistently followed with respect to Puerto Rico is one of drifting. So casually "conquered" by Gen. Miles in 1898, the people of this island have never been advised as to what may be their final position in the American scheme—or as to whether they are ultimately to belong to that scheme at all. Meanwhile, Hawaii, with a population largely Asiatic in composition, has become a full-fledged territory, and the Philippines have been endowed with the rights of a sovereign commonwealth, preparatory to full independence in ten years. Our definite stand in these two cases has not been lost on the Puerto Ricans, who were culturally more advanced and racially more homogeneous than either Filipinos or Hawaiians at the time they were acquired by the United States.

The uncertainty as to their future political status has bred three distinct schools of thought among the islanders. One, a minority representing substantial property interests, would be satisfied to retain the present form of connection with the United States. Another, and very influential, group has long worked for outright statehood within the American union. The third would have nothing less than complete independence.

The issue of independence was first openly intruded into local politics in 1932 by the Liberal Party of Antonio Barcelo. The Liberals would attain their ends by the peaceful weapons of petition and argument. However, members of the Nationalist group, composed largely of hot-headed youths, have favored a program of violence. They have apparently acted on the theory that if they make the situation of American officials on the island uncomfortable enough we might withdraw and leave the natives to their own devices.

Until recently extremist agitation had largely been restricted to displays of untempered speech. But ever since the sanguinary incident of Rio Piedras last October, more direct methods have been feared. The passive attitude of responsible elements in the face of this strong probability is evidence of serious negligence in dealing with the fundamentals of the problem. Now resort to terrorism by members of the Nationalist Party reveals a situation which can no longer be ignored.

Sincerest Form Of Flattery.

A few years ago it annoyed European critics to see their public learning from American movies the finer points of pie-throwing and petting, while exporting hard cash in payment for such tuition. Americans, in return, were inclined to be slightly apologetic, considering that it was very poor form for us to corrupt Europe's sensitive taste, and forgetting that Hollywood films were bought by Europeans, not forced on them.

After a while, however, Europe woke up to the fact that Charlie Chaplin is a great artist, and before long Mickey Mouse sketches were being admired in one of London's most fashionable galleries. Foreign artists and directors swarmed to Hollywood and now even its poorest productions are received with thanks by European critics. If nothing else, they can be made valuable case material for denunciations of American culture.

So it is normal evolution that the latest production of "London Films" is seeking to show America up by her own Klieg lights. And there is something very suggestive about the popularity in Washington this week of a story from "Punch," filmed in a London studio by a French director, pleasantly burlesquing American customs.

The hypochondriac pleasure of paying money to have our weaknesses flayed is peculiarly American. Dickens discovered the national weakness first, and Shaw and Maurois are among those who have profitably exploited it in recent years. Will the cinema, the most universally appreciated of artistic mediums, extend to the forgotten man the luxury of finding out what's wrong with his culture? If so, there is at least some satisfaction in realizing that the Hollywood technique is essential to a successful satire of America.

A Great Governor.

In the death of Albert Cabell Ritchie the Nation as well as Maryland suffers an irreparable loss. As much has been said of many men as they were carried to the grave. But in the case of Albert Ritchie it is no mere amenity uttered to mark the passing of a popular public figure. It is a truth which will become clearer as time goes on.

Men of former Gov. Ritchie's courage, honesty, realism and intelligence are the more needed when so many false winds are blowing across the land. Courage was his outstanding trait. He possessed convictions and adhered to them, irrespective of their unpopularity or the personal advantage that might come from yielding to expediency. Never did he take refuge behind a mantle of hypocrisy.

His courage was demonstrated by his outspoken assaults on national prohibition at a time when such a course was deemed political suicide. It was demonstrated by his defiance of President Harding's demand that Governors of coal-producing States send troops to the mines to end the 1922 strike. Conversely it was demonstrated when Gov. Ritchie used his State militia as a last resort to apprehend suspected participants in the lynching of a lowly Negro. He demonstrated it throughout his life by espousing what many regarded as the lost cause of State Rights. And without any publicity he demonstrated his courage in many less spectacular ways during an administration of the Maryland State government extending over a period of 15 years.

Self-governing democracy was the essence of the Ritchie political philosophy. He believed as firmly as ever did Thomas Jefferson in the inalienable right of the people to govern themselves, to be the masters of their government, rather than its servants or its wards. Passionately, fervently, he believed with all his soul that the processes of democracy in a land as huge and diversified as the United States can only be served through local self-government. Thus he dedicated his public career to fighting the ever-increasing centralization of governmental powers at Washington. Thus, it was to be expected, he was sharply critical of the New Deal.

Mr. Ritchie fully realized that unless the State and local governments prove efficient administrators and conservators of the public welfare, the process toward Federal centralization will be inevitable. So, as he raised his voice in behalf of State Rights, he also concentrated his intellect and bent his back toward making the "Maryland Free State" worthy of the rights and prerogatives he claimed for it.

It was because he was a great Governor of Maryland that Albert Ritchie became a national figure. It is not an exaggeration to say he was the greatest Governor Maryland has ever had—and the people of that State, where no man in a century had served more than one term as Governor, in appreciation elected him to four successive terms.

Mr. Ritchie commenced his gubernatorial tenure by reorganizing the Maryland government. He consolidated endless commissions and bureaus into a few strong, efficient departments. He set up a State purchasing department that became a model for other States. He sponsored the Ritchie fewer elections law in order that the State might have surcease from politics in at least one year out of every four. Perhaps most important was his establishment of a budget system which assured the solvency of Maryland and made the State the envy of all its neighbors in the early days of the depression.

But Gov. Ritchie did not confine himself to cold bookkeeping efficiency. He had advanced workmen's compensation principles enacted into law. Opposing the child labor amendment to the Constitution on principle, he saw to it that Maryland took unusual safeguards to protect its childhood from labor at an early age. He reorganized the State systems of education and health, bringing both from far below to well above the national average.

Such were his 15 years as Governor that Maryland became known throughout the land as one of the best-governed, as well as one of the least-governed, of States. Had he lived it is quite possible he would have been drafted by his party again to take the helm of the State. But his fight is over. And his passing leaves a void among those who believe that the State governments must be strong and vital instruments.

If the country forgets the worth of the lesson Gov. Ritchie tried to teach, by precept and by practice, we shall be the poorer for it.

No Mere Coincidence.

Last Saturday, Dr. Bowman, president of the Johns Hopkins University, expressed the opinion that "freedom to think is more important than either government or society itself." On Saturday, too, President Angell, of Yale, denounced teachers' oath legislation as an "arbitrary interference with liberty."

Twenty-four hours later, Prof. George S. Counts, of Columbia, expressed much the same opinion. Yesterday—after President Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, had attacked the "enslavement of the schools to a formula"—John Ward Studebaker, Federal Commissioner of Education, declared, at a meeting of the National Education Association, that the teaching profession is neither "to be bribed by appropriations nor frightened by attacks."

There is something far beyond coincidence in these brave utterances. They are spontaneous expressions of a righteous indignation which is growing among American educators. The teachers of the country deeply resent—as an insult to their patriotism as well as to their intelligence—the increasing pressure of those who would substitute the "verboten" sign for academic freedom. This is a healthy reaction. As it gathers force it will re-establish confidence in the ability of American education to train the coming generation for its arduous tasks.

Another Mark For Germany.

Germany is about to add a new kind of depreciated money to the 16 varieties already employed in dealings with foreigners. The latest "travel" mark will be made available to foreign banks which are parties to the so-called "standstill" agreement covering Germany's short-term foreign indebtedness.

Although the standstill creditors have fared better than long-term creditors because of their strategic position as agencies for financing current foreign trade transactions, they, too, have been compelled to take payment in registered marks which could only be sold for use in Germany at a heavy discount from gold parity. Nevertheless, under a succession of standstill agreements, the amount of outstanding liabilities has been rapidly reduced through sales of registered marks. During the past four years the short-term debt to American banks alone has dropped from the huge sum of $592,000,000 to $145,000,000, and it is expected that sales of the new travel marks will soon reduce this credit until it will be no more than sufficient for business needs.

Germany has not only succeeded in liquidating a large proportion of her excessive short-term debt. Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, recently said that the entire foreign debt of the country had been virtually cut in half since the end of 1930. This reduction has been brought about in various ways. Foreign creditors have been paid in blocked and registered marks quoted on the exchange markets at heavy discounts, but available for use within the country for specified purposes.

Depreciation of the pound and the dollar has also reduced the burden of Germany's external indebtedness, while German securities held abroad have been bought back at bargain rates in large quantities. Indeed, the rapid shrinkage of the external debt at a time when Germany professed inability to transfer interest payments on debt account has been the cause of much bitter criticism.

Nevertheless, whatever Germany might have done to stave off suspension of payments, there is no doubt about her present inability to meet her external obligations. The so-called "free" mark is still quoted at a premium in terms of the dollar due to a rigid system of exchange control. But the amount of these free gold marks is severely limited because most of the foreign credits created by exporting goods are tied up by clearing agreements, which apply German export balances to payments of outstanding commercial debts and other obligations owing in the importing countries. As a result, Germany has been unable to build up her foreign balances, although during the past year exports were somewhat larger than imports, reversing the adverse showing of 1934.

The gold reserves of the Reichsbank at present are actually below the level of a year ago and amount to but 2 per cent of outstanding note issues. Germany has ceased to be a gold-standard country. She also has lost all but a shadowy remnant of her gold reserves. Instead of having a stable money based on gold or even a uniformly depreciated currency she has a variety of marks quoted at varying rates of depreciation, according to the terms of the arrangement made with foreign creditors. The mark, in short, is no longer an international currency, but is aptly described as "purely an internal, elastic price-measuring system."

Look Pleasant, Please.

This week marks the opening of the first annual Washington Photographic Show. It should inspire not only a greater interest in modern methods of photography, but also invite comparison with the old type, exemplified in every family album. Fuzzy outlines, indeterminate blobs and likenesses of Aunt Prue, suffering from double exposure, are among the ancestral atrocities preserved for posterity's sake. Now the business of snapping big brother as he comes a ski-cropper is one of the simplest problems of the up-to-date "action" addict.

Some 30 years ago, Alfred Stieglitz began to use the camera for photographing "people, places or things in light, season, mood and character suitable to an integrated human reaction." That marked the end of accidental effects which often left doubt as to whether the view was a Blue Ribbon baby or a soulful sunset. Timing was at last taken into account, as well as shadows, composition and the technique of developing. It becomes unnecessary now for grandpa to smile at the birdie, for it is only grandpa's tired old hands which form the subject.

Perhaps this photographic evolution is for the best. But we confess to a certain nostalgia for some of the good, old-fashioned naivete that shone throughout the album, even admitting the superiority of the modern photographer who can spell art by a close-up of an onion's skin.

Pitcher Of His Country.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest the recent feat of Walter Johnson. I think it is marvelous. But who cares? What has happened to our people? There was more space awarded in the papers to the throwing of a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River than the Chief Executive's address in Philadelphia.

Maybe it was a publicity stunt by Representative Sol Bloom, or the Silver Dollar League of Reno, Nev.! In either case, how can anyone describe this pitch as a toss?

Neutrality No Safeguard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of your recent cartoons was striking—Congress as a shopkeeper offering a big Army appropriation as "just as good" as the "neutrality" which the customer was asking for. But it was misleading in essence as well as in detail.

The detail is that the Army appropriation is represented as $545,000,000 instead of $390,000,000. Putting the rivers and harbors graft into the Army bill does not make it an appropriation for defense.

In essence your cartoon followed the fallacy that if we can manage to remain neutral in the wars of others, we escape the costs, dangers, and losses of wars. There is, of course a presumption in favor of neutrality, but mere neutrality will not save us. Neutrality will not save us from the depression which follows any big war. The present depression has certainly cost us both in money and in shattered lives very much more than did our direct participation in the World War.

Neutrality will not save us if the present imperialists build up the empires they dream of. Even with their present size, no neutrality policy will allow us to disarm. If we were as helpless as is China, the Japanese would take pleasure in treating America and Americans as arrogantly and brutally as they do the Chinese.

The problem of postwar depressions and the problem of the menace of the nations who are looking for weak territories to conquer and exploit can be met only by cooperation with powers which are peaceful and which have guts enough to run some risk and some expense to intimidate would-be aggressors. That policy has no real risks if boldly and firmly pursued. But the aggressors must be sure that American policy isn't controlled by pacifist mollycoddles whose only formula for peace is for Uncle Sam to crawl into a hole every time a foreign militarist says boo at him. T. A. B. BAREFOOT.

In Interest Of Law And Order.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I trust that I may be permitted to join the company of those who thank you for the stand which you are taking in many matters of grave civic importance.

In the matter of the two youths who turned in false fire alarms, the prominence which The Post has given to an expose of this shocking situation is most gratifying; and your publication of letters on the subject is also in the interest of law and order, both of which the gentlemen so much interested in the case, have sworn to uphold. But one point has not been stressed by any commentator, and that is the attitude of these young miscreants. If they have been correctly quoted, there has never been no evidence of contrition; no realization of the enormity of their offense; in fact, they have been very nonchalant over their escapade.

If the honorable gentlemen responsible for their release "for their ultimate good" really wish this to be accomplished, they should leave no stone unturned to bring about a change of heart in these two boys. The tender solicitude which has been shown them is one of the contributing causes of the very thing which the decent citizen is fighting against continually. It is at least gratifying to know that their driving permits have been revoked. CITIZEN.

Takoma Park, Feb. 21.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with great interest in The Post the comments of different readers regarding the suspended sentence of the two boys who pulled the fire boxes 29 times.

Being a member and an officer of the local Fire Department, I don't believe the blame should all be placed on the shoulders of the judge.

The sad part of this whole affair and the one that no one has written about is the danger to lives of the firemen who responded to all those alarms. Does anyone know or care to know that seven firemen were injured that night. True, they were not killed, but some are still off duty.

I stood at the Fire and Police Clinic yesterday and saw a sergeant from a downtown company who is still on crutches from a broken leg; I saw a captain limping around just getting over a very bad sprained ankle and a number of other hurts. Not serious, it is true, but enough to cause great suffering of which none but the officials know anything of.

Then there is the cost to the District (average $70) for each response to an alarm of fire. Our Chief Engineer Schrom is begging for more equipment to replace that which has long ago worn out and is right now a vital danger for the men to ride to fires on. Since the boys received their suspended sentence, two more boys have pulled false alarms and I am sure that more will follow in face of the easy-going sentences that one expects to receive.

The Post should receive the thanks of the city for bringing this so forcefully to the attention of its readers. CAPTAIN.

Cost Of Food.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We hear and read a great deal of the high cost of food during the Roosevelt Administration which is untrue.

As a native of Georgia and a loyal Democrat and supporter of President Roosevelt, I wish to submit the following retail price of food during the term of Herbert Hoover and of Franklin Roosevelt:

Round steak, lb.	41.2	27.4
Pork chops, lb.	35.9	25
Bacon, lb.	42.3	28.9
Ham, lb.	53.4	36.9
Lard, lb.	17	11.7
Chicken, lb.	35.5	24.2
Eggs, doz.	41	29.9
Butter, lb.	46.1	31
Milk, qt.	14	11.3
Flour, lb.	4.7	4.9
Corn meal, lb.	5.3	4.5
Potatoes, lb.	3.6	2.3
Sugar, lb.	6.2	5.6

Washington, Feb. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post has consistently opposed the AAA and is now opposing the present farm program, which is just as odious, if not more so.

Why is it that Congress cannot work out a plan that will treat all farmers alike, whether they sign contracts or not? The Administration is constantly harping on giving its poor people cheap rent, but never a thought does it give to planning to give them cheaper food. All the Administration can think of are plans that will keep food high priced.

Under every plan the Administration advocates to aid agriculture that will be necessarily so. They seem to have forgotten the old maxim that there is more than one way to skin a cat.

More About Justice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have seen in The Post but one letter relative to the Pediford youth who was freed after long months of unjust imprisonment.

It seems strange that there has not been a storm of protest raised by the admission that "it was just one of those cases that got lost in the shuffle. We have many cases to handle and sometimes things go wrong."

Where human life and happiness and "equal justice" are concerned, what right has any case to "get lost in the shuffle?" If the office of the United States Attorney is inadequately manned, then in the name of humanity and justice let there be provided a sufficient force to follow up all cases so that a recurrence of such injustice would be impossible.

The Post did "a fine thing" in bringing about the release of this boy. But can it not go a step further and, if damages are obtainable for wrongful detention in jail, see to it that this youth and his mother are compensated—in so far as compensation for those long months of imprisonment is possible?

Mr. Hoover And Recovery.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Postmaster James A. Farley, in an address at a Democratic rally at St. Louis recently, made the following statement: "Through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, literally billions of dollars belonging to Uncle Sam are now in use, helping the banks, railroads, insurance companies, mortgage companies, building and loan companies and other corporate units regain their financial feet."

Had Mr. Farley made the explanation that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which he says has done so much for recovery, was formed during the Hoover Administration, he would have had to admit that Mr. Hoover's was not a do-nothing Administration as he and his cohorts have always claimed, but that Mr. Hoover is directly responsible for the recovery that he speaks of. L. R. R. CURTIS.

Curbed Emotions Versus Promotions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since I am one of those 9-to-5 automatons who is supposed to maintain a "strictly impersonal attitude" and act as though I hear no evil, see no evil, and speak no evil, it is with a sense of timidity that I let my emotions get the best of me and write this letter.

In The Post of February 24 there was a piece on the Woman's Page by Hope Ridings Miller in which she reviewed a book called "Manners In Business." The article was excellent, but certain quotations from this book burned me up. Mrs. MacGibbon, its author, admits "it is a large order for a woman entirely to curb her emotions in an office." But from what I've observed around offices, and I've been working in them for nearly 12 years, it seems to me that it's the men who act like prima donnas.

Naturally, I think every efficient secretary should study the moods of her boss and try to fall in with them to the best of her ability. But I don't think she should have to coddle his bad golfing scores or administer to his wounded feelings over the burnt toast which he had for breakfast. If a woman is supposed to leave her emotions at home when she goes to the office, men should leave theirs in the same place.

And the author certainly is talking through her hat when she says business women should never appear to see below the surface, but should do their work automatically. If that were true, every little girl who learns shorthand and typing could immediately be made a private secretary. But if a girl does her work automatically, what then becomes of tact, sympathy, graciousness, understanding, and a constantly increasing interest in and knowledge of the work in which she is engaged.

Show me a girl who does her work automatically and I will show Mrs. MacGibbon a girl who will never get anywhere in the business world. TILLIE AUTOMATON.

The Hatchet Cuts Clean

Post Office, Tuesday.

NOW that the birthday of Our Country's Father is well over, for another year—now that the dollar is over the Rappahannock, forever—now that, for another twelvemonth, the passions annually aroused by the 22d of February are again reposing—it may not be amiss for our Column to utter, again, a few kind words about the Rev. Mason Locke Weems.

For the Parson Weems legend of George Washington seems coming into its own again. There was more applause for it last Saturday than when Congressman Bloom staged his Washington Centennial. Not only did Walter Johnson perform his Olympian feat at Fredericksburg, but Morris Bishop, through The New Yorker, entered the lists as a champion of the cherry-tree hatchet.

* * *

We have never wondered at Grover Ayres' defense of that inspiring story: Mr. Ayres, like ourselves, possesses in high degree William James' "Will to Believe." But we could not be more surprised by the news that the Soviets had re-established the Eastern Orthodox Church as the religion of Russia than we are to find a severe cynic like Mr. Bishop speaking up for the Great Weems Anecdote in such a super-sophisticated magazine as The New Yorker.

* * *

Yet listen to him:

"After all, Parson Weems had excellent means of knowing the truth. He lived only a few miles from Mount Vernon, and knew the Washington family well. He was occasional incumbent of Pohick Church, of which Washington had been for years a vestryman."

* * *

Why, the Rev. M. L. is not without a niche of his own in the history of America!

He was largely responsible for the mending of the Revolution's rift in that succession which unites the Established Church of England to what we now know as the Protestant Episcopal Church of America. There was even a moment when Weems' vocation to the ministry—coupled with the vocation of Edward Gantt—threatened to turn the ordinations of the latter church over to the Scandinavian Lutherans:

Weems, though he seems to have been morally and mentally above reproach, was refused ordination. The Church of England and her American daughter church hold, as do the Orthodox and the Catholics, that only a bishop can ordain a priest; but there was then no bishop in America, and the English Episcopate—still regarding Americans as rebels against the English King, who was their "Defender of the Faith"—refused to ordain any citizen of the recalcitrant Republic.

* * *

The situation was awkward for Weems. For the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States it was worse.

* * *

Weems, now joined in his request by Gantt, tried to have Franklin, from Paris, intercede for them; then, when Franklin proved unresponsive, the candidates became ingenious. The Lutherans in Sweden and Denmark had an episcopal form of government: Weems and Gantt asked John Adams, American Minister to Holland, to find out if something couldn't be done in Scandinavia. And Adams awakened the enthusiasm of the Danish King, who offered to set up a diocese in the Virgin Islands, the bishop of which would administer ordination to worthy Americans.

* * *

This possibility brought the English Establishment to terms. Before the Danish Church could act, the Church of England changed its mind about the Protestant Episcopal Church of America. The Archbishop of Canterbury ordained Weems and Gantt.

"They were."—so our author in The New Yorker puts it—"the first priests ordained within the American Episcopal Church."

* * *

Yet the debunkers would have us believe that one of those two men deliberately invented the story about Washington refusing to lie!

* * *

Well, Mr. Bishop says "all the elete would wager that little George Washington . . . lied like any normally conditioned child." But Mr. Bishop also contends—as Mr. Ayres and The Post-Impressionist have always humbly contended in this Column—that what may be normal to any child brought up any way today was not necessarily normal to any child brought up as Washington was brought up in his day.

Weems, says Mr. Bishop, repeated a story that was well-known in the Mount Vernon countryside. "He supplied appropriate dialogue for the historical anecdote. The telling seemed to his contemporaries reasonable, consonant with their own moralizing piety." And, "if now we reject it, it is because we want to make a child George Washington who suits our own ideas of what is admirable."

Whereupon Mr. Bishop, in effect, demands: "Isn't that itself mere myth-making?"

* * *

To The Post-Impressionist it is myth-making plus. It authenticates the ascription of a certain sentiment to a good many modern American fathers:

"My son, I would rather you told a thousand lies than cut down a single cherry tree."

Hoffman Mystery

New Jersey Governor's Political Ambitions Seen At Low Ebb If Hauptmann, For Whom He Interceded, Goes To Chair.

By Ralph Renaud.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

AFTER one of the sorriest legal performances ever paraded before the eyes of bewildered America, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, kidnapper and slayer of Col. Lindbergh's little son, is finally re-sentenced to die during the week of March 30. With him will die most of the political ambitions of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, of New Jersey, a man whom some thought might be President of the United States and many regarded as of least vice presidential timber. But what might have been timber now seems discarded lumber.

The story of the Governor's injection into the case and his odd behavior since he got there is a strange one. At first it seemed understandable. This is a "messy era," as Mayor LaGuardia remarked the other day. And in such an era "milking the publicity" seemed natural enough. But before long it became apparent that while Gov. Hoffman did not maintain Hauptmann's innocence of the crime for which he had been convicted, he implied it again and again without producing one scintilla of evidence to support his position. He seems still unconvinced that it is impossible to make a national campaign on the issue of Hauptmann's innocence, despite the increase of insanity in the Nation.

It was the Governor alone who chose to forge into a closer link the casual resemblance between the names of the two men until at last the fate of the one man was in a measure bound up with the fate of the other. Hauptmann loses nothing which he had not already lost. Hoffman loses everything which he might have had.

* * * *

THE political mystery of why Gov. Hoffman chose the course he did exceeds what little mystery still remains in the crime itself. It may have been some blind racial urge. It may have been an honest hunch obstinately divorced from common sense. It may have been a wild political gamble on the chance of a spectacular success. But the results have been pitiable. Up to date the governor has succeded in making a certain number of nit-wits and crack-pots doubt Hauptmann's guilt and has strengthened suspiscion that the murderer had accomplices in the crime. This he has accomplished solely through craftily worded statements issued from his own office. But this remains the sum total of his remarkable and stubborn effort to muscle in on the judicial functions of his own State and supersede them.

Of course the cost to the reputation of "Jersey justice," already badly smeared by the sensational press during the flamboyant trial, has been enormous. Until February 19 we were treated to the somewhat nauseating spectacle of a new attorney for Hauptmann, egged on by the Governor, sitting in at a deathhouse conference and meekly begging the condemned man to tell whether he was a participant—a "participant," mind you—in the crime for which he was duly tried and convicted.

Fortunately, the situation was too much for the stomach of the attorney himself, who withdrew from the case ash gracefully as possible, leaving little doubt as to his own conviction of his client's guilt. But did the Governor then conduct a strategic retreat to a previously prepared position? He did not. He remains blithely plump in the middle of the swamp "surer than ever" about something which he can't specify.

* * * *

THIS sounds as though the Governor of New Jersey were a natural born fool. But nothing could be farther from the truth. He has great gifts and an engaging personality which could well be matched against Roosevelt's own. He is probably the best vote-getter New Jersey ever developed, and proved it by plunging in a Republican winner in the great Roosevelt blizzard which snowed under most of his party members so thoroughly that they are just now beginning to emerge from their igloos. A man who can corral a plurality of 12,000 votes in such a storm is no mean politician.

Possibly the new Governor was more used to ward politics than to national politics. South Amboy, where he comes from, does not occupy a very commanding site for a national view. Incidenally, he and Attorney General Wilentz, the Dem-Hauptmann comes from Perth ocratic appointee who convicted Amboy and he and Hoffman have been the political boy wonders of their respective and adjoining communities since early youth. They say there is a good deal of rivalry between them, which may help to explain why Hoffman finds himself bogged in the Hauptmann case. Moreover there is a big German vote in northern New Jersey. Hoboken is the Teutonic capital of the Atlantic seaboard.

Hoffman began to quarrel with his own party soon after he got elected. He wanted a sales tax, in which he mistakenly included food. It was driven through the Legislature, but it had to be repealed. His opponents charged him with being a spender and the shrewder Republican leaders saw clearly enough the strategic value of establishing a record for economy. It is interesting to observe what such a record has accomplished for the Governor of Kansas. Seeking support in the Legislature Hoffman evoked murmurs that he was trafficking with Frank Hague.

* * * *

NOW Frank Hague is the Democratic boss of Jersey City and the surrounding domain. A political realist, he rules his flock with as iron a hand as that with which Huey Long clutched the throat of Louisiana. He never gives something for nothing and always gets plenty for everything. He was not regarded as precisely the proper company for the Republican Governor of New Jersey.

But all these cross currents and internal quarrels were kept pretty well under cover until the Governor embarked on his Hauptmann expedition. His own party determined that they would not be saddled with the responsibility for that. So the State committee, goaded into reluctant action, announced that thenceforth they were going to run party affairs in the State and the Governor could kindly step to the back row and sit down.

The Governor didn't. He is not a back-row performer In a speech made on his fortieth birthday he hurled what is technically known as defiance at Everett Colby, the most important member of the Republican hierarchy, and announced clearly that he would do his own bossing. He then got a faction of the Young Republicans to recognize him as "titular head" of the party —an unfortunate phrase in that, if it means anything at all, it means by title only. Thereupon another faction of Young Republicans gathered to tell the Governor where he got off. And so, with Young Republicans and Old, the Governor is scarcely Der Fuehrer. He might have been if he had left the Hauptmann case alone.

* * * *

BUT he won't let it alone. He may not give Hauptmann another reprieve—it is hardly credible that he will—but he is still actively trying the case in the newspapers and talking of prosecuting the State's witnesses for perjury. Indeed, his attitude in the face of the harm it is doing him is so fanatical that sometimes the only reasonable explanation seems to be that he is sincerely convinced he is right. It is just possible, of course, that he is.

Otherwise it is a fairly safe prediction that he will never be anything more than Harold Hoffman, Governor of New Jersey, no matter how messy the era gets.

Arrests In Germany.

Munich, Feb. 24.

THERE'S a great contrast between the methods of the American Government and those of the British in cases involving the arrest of their subjects in Germany. The American way is to proceed slowly and in a manner which seems almost timid. The British Embassy in Berlin and the consuls scattered about the country bear down hard without delay.

The British have a geographical advantage, because whenever one of their subjects is arrested they can bring their journalistic guns to bear within 24 hours, whereas American papers cannot arrive in Germany until more than a week has passed.

Moreover, the British papers take these matters much more seriously than our papers do and the British subject has more reason to feel that his nation stands behind him and is willing to fight for his rights.

Most of the Americans who have been in serious trouble in Germany were born in Germany and came back here on American passports to engage in business and there is probably a disposition to create a distinction between the citizenship of a native American and one that was born elsewhere. There's no legal difference, however, and there's only one type of American passport, but nevertheless the naturalized American is subject to greater risks than the native-born.

* * * *

FROM long and intimate experience with the German character, the British have adopted a policy of meeting rough treatment with quick and vigorous resistance sometimes having the appearance of reprisals. A few months ago an Englishman was arrested in Germany charged with drawing pictures of a railway train and the English soon arrested a German in England on a charge of espionage around one of their airdromes.

To adopt a system of reprisals for the molestation of Americans the United States Government would have to abandon a principle and descend to rough and tumble methods.

There's no doubt that the Germans would quickly acquire a higher respect for the American passport if they would realize that for every American molested or locked up in Germany at least two Germans would be given similar treatment in our country.

* * * *

THE crime of treason is one which might be pressed against an American in Germany as a consequence of the most casual or innocent utterance. Accustomed to the free expression of this opinion at home, he might make the mistake of speaking unwisely in Germany and find himself locked up for a month while the authorities investigate his background.

This would be strictly according to the law of Germany and, therefore, under the existing arrangement the American here is exposed to conditions which do not affect the existence of a Nazi in the United States.

While I agree that it would be impossible to make a special order to inflict upon the Nazis the same limitations which Americans must observe here, for that would abridge the right of assembly and free speech, I believe we have laws by which American Nazis could be prosecuted for inciting disorder. It would not be necessary to make many examples, for a few jobs of retaliation would suffice to restore respect for American citizenship and the American passport in Germany. If that is undesirable or impracticable, one other solution is still available and that is for the United States Government to warn all American citizens of the conditions which they face in Germany and advise them to avoid trouble by keeping out of the country. This would have considerable force, because the Germans are still looking forward to a big influx of tourists for the summer Olympic games.

Castles In the Air

One Dormitory Total Result of PWA Housing Division Building After Three Years; Low-Income Families Unable to Pay Rentals.

meant housing within the reach of families with incomes of $1,200 or less and rented on such a basis that the buildings will be self-liquidating, even over a long period of years.

The dormitory, a part of the Techwood development in Atlanta, was at first suggested as part of a limited dividend corporation project, constructed by a private corporation but partially financed by the Government. Later the housing division decided to erect the buildings itself. There will be some individual home units in addition to the dormitory, but they have not been completed.

When the housing division began its activities, it devoted most of its attention to lending money to limited dividend corporations which would erect housing under Government supervision and limitations. The Government agreed to lend money up to 85 per cent of the capital structure of such corporations.

Limited Divided Corporation Loans Dropped.

A total of 355 such corporations or prospective corporations applied for Government loans. Out of this number contracts were signed with only seven. Together they were loaned a total of $10,971,600 at 4 per cent interest, the loans to be retired in 25 to 30 years. They were in no sense slum clearance projects. The corporations under the terms of their contract agreed to take no more profit than 6 per cent of their actual equity in the properties. Any profit in excess of this amount was to be returned to the tenants in the form of reduced rent or improvements on the property.

Nearly every one of these limited dividend corporation developments is fully occupied, yet the plan of lending to such corporations was dropped because it was learned that even with a profit of only 6 per cent on very small equities, rents could not be brought down to the point where they could be paid by families in the lowest income brackets. The houses could be afforded only by families within the medium brackets.

This situation is being used as an argument by those who insist that without direct Government subsidy houses can not be built for the lowest income groups.

These limited dividend corporation projects include 3,000 living units occupied by about 11,000 persons. Many of them were rented from blue prints before the buildings were constructed.

For the lowest income groups it is estimated that rent, including heat and servicing, can not be much higher than $5 to $6 per room. Rent, experts say, cannot be more than 25 per cent of income.

Rents Above Low-Cost Housing Limit.

Altavista, Va., 50 single frame houses, $3 and $4 per room.
Thirty-six houses completed and 12 under construction.
St. Louis, apartments, 252 living units, $9.48 per room.

This obviously, with the exception of the Altavista development, is not low-cost housing. Neither have any slums been cleared by these projects.

The housing division in attempting to build its own houses has run afoul of the law in various instances. It got off to a bad start and had to be completely reorganized. It had difficulties in acquiring land, culminating in the Louisville injunction against condemnation proceedings, now before the Supreme Court. The division itself has had to abandon the slum clearance idea in a number of instances.

PWA housing officials frankly admit that they can not build houses for low-income groups that would be self-liquidating. They planned a housing subsidy, in the form of rents much lower than the cost of the buildings would justify, and succeeded in running up against a ruling by Comptroller General McCarl, who held that the law would not permit rentals below those which would give the Government a return on its money.

Service Charge Proposed to Replace Taxes.

Representative Healy, of Massachusetts, has a bill in the House to permit rentals lower than those that would give a return on investment.

Then the housing division ran into the question of local taxes. Municipal officials howled about the Government building tax-free houses in competition with private industry and about taking valuable property off the tax rolls. Now Congress is being asked to permit the PWA to pay cities a service charge of 5 per cent of gross income from rents.

The idea of Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, is that rents should be charged on the basis of 55 per cent of the cost of the houses, plus operating charges. The remaining 45 per cent would be the taxpayers' contribution. The rents would be based on amortization of the 55 per cent over a period of 60 years. It is believed that in this way rents can be brought within reach of people who can pay small but steady rentals.

In each instance it is planned to include in the rent charges for heat, gas, light, hot water and refrigeration. The entire household expenses, except food, would be paid in a lump sum each month along with the rent. In this way the actual per room cost may be higher than in some privately owned houses, but it is argued the householder who has coal bought for him in large quantities will save money as compared with buying coal by the bushel. The same would apply to some other expenses.

1,000 Families Apply for Houses.

While the housing division hasn't actually finished any houses, it has about 1,000 applications from families wishing to rent them. The division plans to pick its families on the basis of income, ability to pay, and on the basis of the kind of houses from which they propose to move. Preference will be given to families moving from sub-standard dwellings.

It is estimated that Government-built houses cost about $1,200 per room. Some privately-built frame houses cost only a third of that amount. The Government housing in every instance is fireproof. In most instances it is not elaborate, but it is substantial. On the customary rental basis of 1 per cent of value per month, the Government-built houses should rent at $12 per room, a price higher that that charged by any of the limited dividend corporations, which the Government complains have not built low-cost housing.

This is just another indication of the fact that there has yet been no actual low-cost housing made possible without a subsidy.

Town Meeting System's Test, Townsend Aim

By the Associated Press.

Glendale, Calif., Feb. 24.—Dr. Francis E. Townsend—who would "annihilate" the Republican and Democratic parties—planned tonight a Nation-wide test of his plan to revive town-meeting government.

The 67-year-old retired physician already has created a political tempest with his plan to pay $200 monthly to every person over 60 years old.

Now he wants to abolish the American system of dual party government, offering in its place the town meeting of Revolutionary days. Dr. Townsend presents his own clubs as the basis of his scheme.

"I will propose to the Townsend national board a test by which each club will vote on its opinion of the outstanding citizen in its State," he said today.

Dr. Townsend, who said he expected shortly to be summoned before a Congressional committee investigating various pension plans, declared that regardless of whether his pension program is put into effect, he will campaign to change the present form of government.

Under his plan—the political expression of the Townsend clubs—town meetings would be final, with Congress acting merely to "ratify" previously approved programs.

Dr. Townsend said that if successful in making the town meeting the basis of American government, he still would have need of the Supreme Court. He explained:

"It will serve as a guard against extremists, as it does today."

Full Publicity Asked.

While a Congressional committee prepared yesterday to meet to chart the course of its investigation of old-age pension plans, Representative McAllister (Republican), Ohio, issued a statement explaining he had accepted membership on the committee "because I believe there should be the fullest publicity as to the membership, control and financing of all organizations whose advertised purpose is to secure some particular legislation from Congress.

"This is particularly true when the avowed method of securing such legislation is to urge election of all candidates who promise support for the particular objective and the defeat of all those who do not promise such support."

5-Hour Ferry Trip— All for 1 Passenger

Love Point, Md., Feb. 24 (AP).—The ferry boat from Baltimore was three hours late in reaching here today after making a difficult crossing of the Chesapeake Bay with only one passenger.

The bay was so full of ice floes that the ferry had to detour past Sandy Point instead of passing near the Seven Foot Knoll lighthouse. The icebreaker Latrobe had to smash a path for it through several frozen stretches. The trip generally takes a little more than two hours. It required five hours and ten minutes today.

Clipper Hops for Midway.

Honolulu, Feb. 24 (AP).—Continuing its flight from Alameda, Calif., to Manila, the China Clipper hopped from here at 7:01 a. m. (12:31 p. m. Eastern standard time) for Midway Island, 1,323 miles away. The plane arrived here yesterday.

Suit Asks Curb On U. S. Rights To Seize Land

By the Associated Press.

Contending Congress had "abdicated" and attempted to make President Roosevelt a "universal Providence" by his powers to spend billions for relief, attorneys for a group of Louisville, Ky., land owners asked the Supreme Court yesterday to outlaw Feweral condemnation of land for low cost housing and slum clearance projects.

The Louisville land owners, who won their case in both lower Federal courts, asked th. Supreme Court to find that major emergency relief acts of this Administration were unconstitutional.

"The national industrial recovery act and the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935 together authorized the expenditure of $8,180,000,000," the court was told. "broadly speaking, the President was authorized to take this amount of money and relieve the depression.

"There was no limit," the brief argued. "The administrator could have spent all the money on stratospheric balloons, and, if he deemed necessary, could condemn property all over the United States for landing fields."

When Federal authorities ordered condemnation proceedings against 250 property owners for the Louisville project of three city blocks, Edward J. Gernert and others filed a demurrer.

The Western Kentucky Federal District Court upheld their argument that the Federal Government lacked power to condemn land for the project.

In view of the general financial situation and in adherence to the Company's principle that safety is the first requisite in life insurance and must always be the first consideration, the Company deemed it prudent to strengthen its reserves.

At the close of 1935 the Company had 2,672,636 policies in force giving insurance protection of more than $6,620,800,000 to homes, families and business interests. The amount of new insurance issued by the Company during the year was $466,356,000. In addition, men and women paid $40,428,582 to the Company for annuities to provide a guaranteed life income.

During its history of 91 years, throughout every financial and economic crisis, the New York Life has met every obligation it assumed. Today, as in the past, it is sound and safe. Policyholders may be assured as to their wisdom in making provision for their dependents in event of death and for themselves in old age through their insurance in this Company.

A more complete report listing the securities owned by the Company, as well as detailed information on any of our policy contracts, will gladly be sent upon request to the Company's Home Office, 51 Madison Avenue, New York, or to any of its Branch Offices throughout the United States and Canada.

Gov. Olson Sued By Knitting Mill

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, Feb. 24.—Reciting the words of a recent Federal court decision—that it had been deprived of the use of its property—the Strutwear Knitting Co. today brought suit for $101,500 damages against three State and city officials.

Immediately afterward the company garnisheed the bank accounts of Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Mayor Thomas E. Latimer, and Adjt. Gen. E. A. Walsh, commander of the Minnesota National Guard whom its action named as defendants.

The complaint charged the officials failed to provide protection for plant employes in August, 1935, when disorders led to suspension of operations.

Gov. Olson paused only long enough in his preparations for a trip South starting tonight, to comment that the "real plaintiff in the action is the Citizens Alliance." He added he would "always welcome a fight with the Citizens Alliance." The Citizens Alliance is a Minneapolis businessmen's group.

Silicosis Unit Asks Power of Subpena

Authority to subpoena witnesses in an investigation of health conditions in mining and tunneling operations was asked yesterday of the House by its Labor Committee, according to the Associated Press.

The resolution was presented by Chairman William P. Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, of the labor group after submission of a sub-committee's report on the inquiry conducted into charges that hundreds of men died of silicosis after breathing silica dust while working in the Hawk's Nest tunnel in West Virginia in 1930 and 1931.

A sub-committee held hearings recently on the resolution of Representative Vito Marcantonio (Republican), New York, asking a congressional inquiry into working conditions which prevailed in the Hawk's Nest tunnel, drilled through the mountains at Gauley Bridge, W. Va., to divert waters from New River for a hydro-electric project.

Marcantonio charged that 476 men died and 1,500 others are dying of silicosis as a result of having breathed dust while drilling through silica rock in the tunnel.

Efficient Milkmaids Decorated by Soviets

Moscow, Feb. 24 (AP).—Hundreds of Stakhanoffite milkmaids assembled in Moscow tonight to receive decorations for increasing the average milk yield of cows. Many were awarded Lenin's decoration, the highest honor the nation can offer. These had obtained 3,500 liters (925 gallons) or more from a single cow in one year.

Poultrymen who obtained an average of 165 eggs from one hen, pig breeders who got more than six pigs from one sow, cattle raisers and horse breeders also were decorated, a total of 1,373 awards being made.

Inquiry Is Sought In Prison Stabbing

Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions, said yesterday he would ask the Department of Justice to investigate the fatal stabbing of a Negro prisoner by another at Occuquan Saturday.

"The murder was a cold-blooded affair, which the guards were unable to prevent. If we had more guards here, then it could have been prevented. I have asked for an increase in the guards several times, but Congress refuses to appropriate money for them. There has been a considerable increase in prisoners, but none in the guards, for several years.

Peter Smith, who was to have been released March 30, after serving three months for housebreaking, was stabbed in the heart with a blade from a table knife, by Alphonse Branch, 20, Negro, serving 360 days for larceny. The fight started, Branch said, when Smith stepped on his foot as they were returning from the movie.

Alphonse's case will be presented to the grand jury when the Federal Court in Alexandria convenes in March.

McAdoo Asks Court To Try U. S. Judges

By the Associated Press.

Condemning what he termed "abuses" in the allowance of receivership fees by Federal courts, Senator McAdoo (Democrat), California, yesterday offered a proposal to create a special court to try Federal judges accused of malfeasance.

As chairman of the special committee which has been investigating administration of justice in Federal courts for nearly two years, McAdoo said he would put the special tribunal idea before the group, when it meets soon to write its report of a second inquiry into California district courts.

The plan he has in mind, he added, was one authorizing the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to set up a court of three members, composed of circuit judges, to try accused judges.

The Californian contended the present system of impeachment by Congress was cumbersome and impracticable, and that some more efficient method must be provided.

Junior League Exhibit Shows Camera Realism

By Dudley Harmon.

Pictures of cabin interiors and the "forgotten man" predominate in Washington's first annual exhibition of photographs, sponsored by the Junior League. The show opened yesterday in the new ultra-modern Junior League headquarters on Massachusetts avenue. It will continue until March 8.

A tour of the exhibition indicates that the exhibitors have gone in for stark reality. The candid camera shot is more in evidence than the painstaking pose. Pictures of Negro shanties, shabby interiors and vaudeville actors take the place of pretty ladies posed against bowls of lilies and other such subjects commonly found in exhibitions of photography.

Among members of Washington society represented in the exhibition are Mr. Elwood Street, Mr. Walker Wilcox and Mrs. David Karrick. Mr. Street is represented by the picture of a little girl sewing, which he entitles "The Seamstress." Mr. Wilcox, one of Washington's original cave dwellers, who has won many awards for his pictures, also has a portrait in the exhibition. Mrs. Karrick is the only Junior Leaguer represented.

Reflect New Deal.

Several exhibitors are connected with the Rural Resettlement Administration and their work reflects New Deal experiments in social rehabilitaton. One of them, by Walker Evans, shows a barefoot, hungry-looking boy, and a few sticks of furniture, contrasted with loud posters of grinning young women which hang against the wall in the background.

We don't happen to know who Carl Lewis is, but his photograph entitled "Round and Round"—no connection with music—is one of the best in the exhibition.

Washington amateurs have met stiff competition in this showing, for among the few out-of-town exhibitors are such shining lights as Carl Van Vechten, Arnold Genthe and Margaret Bourke-White. Mr. Van Vechten's picture of the President's daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, is a striking likeness, and full of personality. Mr. Genthe is represented by his famed portrait of Toscanini.

Judges of Entries.

Prentiss Taylor, who conceived the idea of the showing, is an artist who recently returned to Washington, after eight years in New York and the art colonies in Connecticut. Mr. Taylor judged the entries, with the assistance of Miss Caroline Huston Thompson and Mr. Harold Rhodenbaugh, art editor of the Washington Post.

"We intend to make this exhibition an annual event," said Miss Thompson yesterday, "and it's intended not just for Junior Leaguers, but for all Washington."

The Junior League room in which the exhibition hung, with its simplicty of arrangement and neutral-colored walls, s admirably adapted for exhibitions such as these.

Men Prefer Underwood Portraits

TWO ON SAFARI

By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Ballard Mallory, young American explorer, accepts a commission from Grast, Furman & Menck, solicitors, to find dead or alive a young Englishman, Laurence Morland, who disappeared in the African jungle. Mallory believes the firm would prefer him found dead. As he leaves the office he sees Jones, a clerk, talk briefly with someone in a cab at the curb. Mallory glances at the face in the cab. Later, when he returns to the office, he finds Jones has been discharged. He sails for Africa, and finds a young girl, Josephine Cascoden, on the boat.

CHAPTER VI.

The Girl Is Angry.

FOR the first time he saw her in semiformal dress. Her frock of black chiffon, hanging in sweeping lines, was the acme of simplicity. Though only moderately yoked it gave her an appearance of maturity and incidentally showed off the sort of figure he most admired—a blending of length, slenderness and strength.

He could not have told why so ordinary a happening should appear to threaten his peace of mind, but it did, and he cut short his usual turn. The incident continued to trouble him, and on the following evening it was with a feeling of faint trepidation that he pulled snug his mess jacket and went to the deck.

She was there, walking along slowly. He followed her at the same pace. With no appearance of breaking off, she moved to the side of the ship and stopped, her bare arms extended, her hands resting lightly on the smooth teak rail. He also swerved and came to a halt at her side.

"You wish me to speak to you," he declared.

She Is Startled.

His words startled without frightening her. She swept her eyes to his face. "It's extraordinary you should say that!" she exclaimed in a throaty voice.

"Why?"

"Because it's true."

"So that makes it strange, does it?" he asked with a half smile.

"Yes. People don't often speak to me. Since you're an American I'm not surprised at your doing it; I'm surprised only that you should know I meant you to."

In her face there was no answer to his half smile; the expression of her voice, her eyes and every other feature was one of seriousness—the brand of seriousness that bans philandering. He was puzzled. Inevitably he wondered why she should have willed him to address her since her bearing now seemed a denial of all invitation. He could ask, of course, but instinct warned him against any such obvious move. There are women so shallow you can dip them out with a cupped hand, while others present the complications of a deep well, demanding precaution and preparation.

"Why Hurry?"

"What does it matter?" he said. "Telepathy is not longer a mystical curiosity; it's a commonplace of every day." She did not answer; she seemed to be brooding, confronting some inner problem of her own. A new thought came to cheer him. Was it possible that even after acquaintance he was to be privileged to bask in immunity? The prospect fascinated him. For a moment he was tempted to face about and put it to the test by studying her as impersonally as if she were a picture, but he controlled the impulse. There was plenty of time; why be in a hurry? But at least he could find an excuse for looking at her. He took out his cigarettes. "Smoke?"

The question shook her out of her absorption; she glanced down at the packet and accepted. "Thanks."

They stood in silence, at ease with the ease which distinguishes people who are sure of themselves. As for Ballard, there was no intent to set a test, but the prolonged silence stirred in him a vague question as to whether she awaited the moment when awkwardness should wreck his placidity. His cigarette only half finished, he shot it well out from the side of the ship.

"Are you going down to dinner?" he asked.

"No," she said. "I had something in my cabin."

He nodded. "Good night."

Ballard Is Puzzled.

He was puzzled, and the puzzle went with him, stayed with him through dinner and well into the night. To his annoyance it kept him awake, tantalizing him like a cliff without a handhold. He stood in its shadow feeling diminished, a pygmy looking up at a wall of rock. The next afternoon, when she passed his chair, he did not hesitate; he rose and joined her.

"I like the way you walk," he said; "I don't have to take one step to your two."

"It runs in the family," she answered easily. "We walk a lot—cubbing, and there's an otter stream."

Mr. Markelles' jaw dropped at seeing them together; he stared, scrambled from his chair and came forward as if to join them. Mallory turned on him. "Nobody asked for your company and it isn't wanted," he said sharply.

Markelles gasped as if he had been struck a blow in the pit of the stomach. "What have I done to you?" he managed to blurt. "That's a fine way to talk to somebody that's only trying to be friendly!"

"You understood it, didn't you?" said Ballard, and promptly rejoined Miss Cascoden.

"That's Quick Work!"

"Quick work," she said meditatively, a cloud veiling her face. "Do you always settle as thoroughly with your enemies?"

"I try to," he answered. "What's the use of wasting time—putting off what you know you'll have to do sooner or later?"

She glanced at him curiously. "Do you like killing things?"

"It all depends." Ballard frowned. "There's a lot of bunk going around the world in regard to killing," he continued after a pause. "If people would only be logical, I wouldn't mind. You can't fool the Latins, but we Anglo-Saxons fool ourselves all the time."

"How?" she asked.

"By inconsistency. Every rampant nonkiller has a list as long as your arm of living things he kills at sight, either because he dislikes mosquitoes or because he's hungry for chicken. What about lobsters, shot alive into the boiling pot? Or oysters, dying on the way down?"

"I was thinking of human life," said Miss Cascoden in a low tone.

"That's where our sentimentality really gets in its work, its childlike dream that there's some way of perpetuating the human race as a conglomeration. Take the game of Africa for a corollary. When drought, lions and wild dogs fell down on their job half a century ago, rinderpest stepped in and killed off antelope by the hundred thousand, by the million. God asks the dyed-in-the-wool pacifist, 'Which will you have, epidemic or war?' The pacifist answers, 'Disease, however loathsome.' And I, for one, believe he lies in his throat."

LORD MORLAND.

Miss Cascoden came to a halt. "I don't like you," she said with blazing eyes.

"Me or my views?" asked Ballard, taken aback.

"Both," she answered.

He turned from her before she had a chance to turn from him. So that was the end of that, he thought, as he went back to his Swahili grammar—an episode, springing from nothing and ending in nothing. He tried to analyze his feelings and found they were mixed, half relief and half regret. While with her his mind had refrained deliberately from putting questions, saying to itself there would be plenty of time. But now, immediately contact was broken, it began firing them one after another at the vanished target.

Who was she? Where was she going? At her age, why was she unaccompanied? She was undoubtedly a person of breeding and, while today the door of the world is unlocked to a young girl as never before, why should she be headed alone for Africa? Last and most important to himself, why should she have favored him out of all the people on board, and then ended the brief companionship with such a facer? He frowned, for his sense of relief was fast fading, but finally comforted himself with the thought of a return to solitude.

'Blush Shades' Now Offered In Cosmetics

Fashion Also Adds Ruffles to Dresses of Modern Young Woman.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

BLUSHING is in style again. Did the movies start it with all those Victorian classics they've dusted off and filmed so nicely? Did Queen Victoria herself start it when she returned to reign over Broadway reincarnated in Helen Hayes? Or did we gals just get sick of our own hard, shiny selves and decide it might be fun to have a fling at being lah-dees once more?

Anyway it's definitely smart to be a lady this spring. You can wear a sentimental ruffle without feeling self-conscious. And one of the favorite spring colors is that tender and ladylike gray.

The chances are you'll even wear a blush. One of our largest cosmetic houses comes out in the nick of time with two new "blushing shades" especially suited for trying gray and sallow skins.

Contrast the Goal.

A NEW STYLE note—and a gay one—is attractively stressed in the show window of a large downtown store. Here you'll see purses and bags, purses and bags—but not just purses and bags.

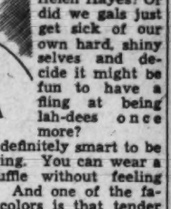
Each pair is selected not for matching or blending colors, but for contrasting. A vivid green doeskin bag is mated with a brilliant yellow pair of doeskin gloves. A scarlet bag with white gloves, blue bags with gray. Et cetera. The colors are gloriously gay and spring like. They remind you of bold blossoms that unhesitatingly face the world in a medley of thrilling colors.

And they do say we're to go a little glove and bag and color wild so here's where to see how!

Helps Poor Eyes.

EYES that stubbornly refuse to read the fine print without quivering and aching deserve to be pampered with one of the reading magnifiers.

A magnifier is made up of a piece of magnifying glass approximately 2 inches by 3 or 4. This is fitted into a metal frame which "sits" astride the page of your book, may be perched over your column of newspaper print, or used to great advantage with your telephone book.



Plenty of people find it very difficult to do even a slight amount of reading without "specs." And half the time the "specs" are upstairs, downstairs or somewhere out of reach. That's when the magnifier plays a prominent role. Price? One dollar.

Covering Coverlets.

TO KEEP her comfort or quilt free from the soils of childish feet and hands the wise and scrupulous housewife covers hers with one of the easily adapted coverlets. These come in a variety of prints, colorful and old-fashioned.

Prices are adapted to almost any purse.

Canned Meat Helps to Keep Meal on Time

By Dorothea Duncan.

EVERY WOMAN who has a family to feed realizes that meals should be punctual. No matter what her activity outside the home, the housewife, unless she has servants on whom she can depend, must be home in plenty of time to have meals ready at the regular hour.

Emergency menus, then, play an important part in the busy day calendar of every housewife. Canned foods, prepared bought foods, or easily and quickly cooked foods should be considered for the days when the housewife will have little time for kitchen activity.

Such a menu is suggested today for the evening meal. The meat suggested is canned and can be heated quickly and made very attractive by the addition of a poached egg for each serving. Canned beets are suggested instead of fresh. The other vegetable will cook in a short time and is easily prepared. The dessert may be made in the morning or purchased at the bakery if time does not permit a home-made product.

A Patternette On Parade

A patternette like the one shown above with its originator, Miss Charlotte Wilkinson, helps to eliminate the "home-made look" from home-made dresses. A paper frock is fitted on a doll-model of the same proportions as the person who will wear the dress, thus enabling the seamstress to see her costume in miniature before she cuts into her material.

Dress Stylist Uses Doll Models In Practical Fashion Service

By Hope Ridings Miller.

EVERY LITTLE GIRL goes through the "paper doll stage" when she designs frocks for cardboard ladies and works out miniature wardrobes for paper queens. But Charlotte Wilkinson, stylist, is the only woman who found a way to continue this amusement and make a business of it.

The result is the "Patternette"—a practical and unique means of presenting up-to-the-minute fashions to the girl at school and the woman in the home. Formerly fabric stylist for a widely known woman's magazine, Miss Wilkinson recently come to Washington. Yesterday between appointments, she explained her unusual style service, how it was designed to make finished fashionists of sewing students and to teach women throughout the country how to eliminate that "home-made" look from home-made clothes.

"Gamble" Eliminated.

One of her doll-models—a durable mannikin about 3 feet high—was on display. "I designed this to teach students in a direct way how to dress becomingly—how to disguise their worst attributes and make the most of their best ones," she said. "Since line, color design and fabrics must all be taken into consideration in planning a costume, the Paternette eliminates all the gamble in making a dress."

First of all Miss Wilkinson gives each pupil the doll-model most closely resembling the pupil's figure. (There are three types of figures—"average," "little woman," and "larger hip.") Then each month she sends the pupil her special patternette and three patterns, with suggestions for hats and accessories.

"It works this way," Miss Wilkinson went on. "The models are first dressed in paper clothes made in the same style as that of the finished product. The material for each paper dress carries the color and design of the fabric to be used in making the garment."

She explained a woman then had an opportunity to try her dress "in the small" first. "Before she cuts into her material, she can find out how the costume will look, in miniature, on a figure that is of her own proportions."

She also pointed out the Paternette provides an opportunity to test the effect of accessories—hats, gloves, bags and jewelry on the costume as a whole.

Her service also includes a set of masks to be placed over the face of the original doll model. "These are most important," said Miss Wilkinson, "because the face deserves almost as much attention as the figure in deciding what type of dress is becoming. A double chin sometimes demands a change in an entire costume. Long and short hair, button ear-rings and dangling ones, beads and gloves and the coiffure (color of hair and arrangement) should all be taken into consideration in planning each ensemble."

Since Miss Wilkinson created her fashion service she has been much in demand as a lecturer for high school and college groups, as well as for radio audiences. By putting her "paternettes on parade," she has proved how incorrect lines and designs can detract from any figure; has pointed out what the tall girl can wear that the short one must shun; has explained how the beanpole person can cut her heights and how the plump woman can take pounds and pounds from her appearance by dressing to suit the figure and face.

Schools Adopt Service.

Last fall the paternette service was adopted by the New York City schools. It also goes out to parent-teacher associations and to women's groups throughout the country.

In her capacity as a "style informer," Miss Wilkinson has evolved some very definite ideas about how women can be well dressed. She believes each individual should keep in mind two aims when she goes shopping:

1. To buy better designed and fewer clothes.
2. To buy dresses that will enhance her charm.

In connection with the latter, she has formulated some important rules, which she sends out as part of her style service. For example, she advises the short stout woman to wear:

One-piece, beltless dresses
Narrow belts, same color as frock
Perpendicular lines in detail of costume
Narrow and moderate size sleeves of one color
A coat the length of dress
Moderate width panels.

To the tall, thin girls she gives these pointers:

Try flounces and tunics and wide belts
Create contrasts by choosing coat and dress of different (though harmonious) colors
Wear coats of three-quarters, or seven-eighths length
Wide sleeves or contrasting cuffs are becoming Circular collars, wide and round capes cut height.

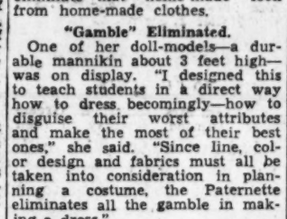
Miss Wilkinson also had something to say about what men like in feminine dress. "The story books leave the impression men prefer bows and ruffles and girly-girly frocks," she said. "But I don't believe it. From what I have observed of members of the 'logical and ordered sex,' they prefer to see a bit of their logic in a lady's clothes. I think they definitely prefer trim clothes on women, even tailored ones. And I am sure they appreciate the appearance of any well-dressed woman whose clothes are chosen with taste, an eye to what is most becoming to her face and figure."

Pleasant Homes

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.



THE EVERYDAY mechanics of life are certainly simplified in the little brickhouse up the street. Because they've just installed an oil burner which makes more difference than they could have dreamed of. Anyway they now plan to use a large portion of their cellar for a recreation room . . . though it must also serve as a playroom for their three-year-old daughter. The room is rather dark and needs bright cheerful colors. What furniture should they get . . . what colors for floors and draperies? They can't afford to spend an awful lot of money.

Why not paint the walls white with bright red scalloped bands painted around the windows, mouldings and baseboards and doors. For the floor get bright blue linoleum,—then add furniture of maple. Or get unpainted pieces and enamel them red. For the windows, make curtains of white tarletan or of white cellophane. In selecting furniture, be sure to provide plenty of benches, chairs and stools to sit on, tables suitable for bridge and refreshments and a cabinet for dishes, grills and the makings of simple refreshments.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: As yet I have received no answer from Miss Seventeen, but I sincerely thank you for printing my letter in your column of February 18. In view of the controversial reply from "D. P." printed February 21, I feel it necessary to further justify my assertions.

In the first place, he has had only six years' association with girls, whereas I have had 21 years' close contact with life. As my father is an Army officer who has been stationed in many parts of the United States and the Orient, I have had many opportunities for meeting all kinds of people.

* * * *

In the second place, I have always taken a deep interest in people; it has always been my pleasant avocation to study and compare them and this I have done by association with them. In the third place, my association with girls has not been limited to the amoral type. On the contrary, it has been confined to those who are moral and decent, although I have observed many who were not of this caliber. I am justly proud of all my friends, even though many of them have not known the advantages of culture and affluence.

* * * *

My feminine acquaintances in this city include debutantes, college graduates and members of the Congressional set, and many of them are acknowledged to be among the most comely and charming girls in Washington. Therefore, I say to you, "D. P." that you are not justified in telling me to raise my standards.

I repeat, however, that I have never been successful in finding a girl who possesses charm, appeal, intelligence, culture, purity of mind and body, consideration, generosity and capacity for affection. I challenge "D. P." or anyone else to show me any one girl who possesses all these qualities . . .

* * * *

Today, youth and age alike are conformists. They fear the condemnation of others. They are afraid to live. Why must we be slaves to outlandish convention? . . . My motto is Ne te Quaesiveris Extra (seek nought outside thyself). Be yourself! Perhaps convention itself is my enemy and prevents my finding the girl for whom I seek. There are so few unintimidated by nature's arch enemy—convention, conformity.

* * * *

Permit me to conclude with a few final words on morality. Youth of today is degenerate—boys more so than girls. After assiduous study, I am convinced that 95 boys out of 100 in this country (and about 75 out of 100 in the District of Columbia) are what I consider immoral. This includes boys between 18 to 25 years of age. In Texas I lived in the most reputable fraternity house on the campus of a Texas university and aside from myself and one other boy, all had illicit affairs. I also lived in a dormitory and in a boarding house for one year. There conditions were the same as in the fraternity house. The same conditions prevail outside of college but perhaps to a lesser degree.

* * * *

These are facts which ought to be reckoned with by every right-thinking individual. Undoubtedly economic conditions which prevent early marriage have something to do with it. Perhaps the studied allure which women intuitively practice, in matters of dress, perfume and conduct, further aggravates this condition which the majority of people refuse to recognize. I will appreciate your answer, Miss Haworth, for I acknowledge your greater wisdom. Sincerely, TWENTY ONE.

* * * *

Again We Defend Youth of Today.

DEAR TWENTY ONE: I believe you are using unnecessarily fighting words in saying youth of today is degenerate; in saying 95 or even 75 of every 100 young men are leading immoral lives. My dictionary defines a degenerate as one "with innate propensities for . . . abnormal vice." To degenerate, it informs me, is to "decline in character, quality or excellence from normal or primitive conditions, or from a type or standard." Morality has to do with the quality or intention of an action. In the larger sense, one is moral who subordinates his conduct to his sense of what is right. In the conventional sense, one is moral who conforms to accepted rules of right conduct. Since time immemorial, man has lived by the so-called double standard in his social relationships, has held it his inalienable privilege to devote a season to sowing his wild oats. When he sowed his wild oats, he was doing what was expected of him. If he didn't, he became the object of curiosity—admiring, amused, concerned, as the case might be—among his associates.

* * * *

Now, if young men of today indulge in illicit affairs, they are not degenerating in the sense of violating a traditional standard of conduct. The truth of the matter, however, is that there has been a shift in the social relationship of men and women in the past generation, and it has been in the direction of discarding this dubious antiquarian standard. It has been away from, rather than toward, a standard which makes for degeneracy and moral depravity.

* * * *

And if this shift has not as yet brought about any appreciable diminution of wild-oat sowing among men, I believe it has brought about a saving change of mental attitude toward what they are doing; I believe they are looking with more seeing, more objective eyes at the whole subject of sex in its relation to their social and spiritual existence.

* * * *

This generation's departure from the double standard may seem at times to be in the direction of a single standard which concedes women the same reckless privileges men have traditionally accorded themselves. Nevertheless, there is hope to be found in the fact young people recognize the necessity for revising a standard of behavior both vicious and artificial and I believe it is not too much to say the situation you describe as existing in colleges and universities—as well as out of them—is more the result of foolhardy idealistic experiment than a revelation of modern youth's innate propensity for abnormal vice. For morality, as I have already pointed out, has to do with the quality or intention of an action. And I believe the majority of these relationships are a sincere if mistaken attempt on the part of youth to demonstrate, at terrific cost to itself, that marriage is a man-made, outmoded institution. In other words, their mistake—and, of course, it is a mistake—is one of the head and not of the heart; for marriage still stands as the ideal and only workable social relationship between the man and woman who love each other. M. H.

Typographical Error Distorts Sense of Letter.

A REGRETTABLE TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR appearing in this column yesterday distorted the sense of a letter signed "Uncertain." In the fourth paragraph of the correspondent's letter, she was represented as stating: "He is not satisfied with his wife at present." The statement should have read: "He is not satisfied with his life at present." I am sorry the error occurred, and take this means of offering the apology I feel is in order. M. H.

Young Mother Should Master Rigid Routine

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

IT IS HARD for a young mother to master the necessary routine of caring for a baby. Unless she masters it, however, her life becomes a mass of small chores which are disorganizing and make rational living out of the question.

She may have played dolls all her life and cared for the most exacting pets, but neither task has prepared her for baby-tending.

Young people are for the most part procrastinators. The girl who has had her first baby has not therefore grown up overnight. She will probably still procrastinate, and only hard experience can make her organize her duties.

If she begins the day right, she can generally count on its continuing to run smoothly. From the 6 o'clock feeding until after the 10 o'clock there is no time for relaxation unless there is a maid in the house to get breakfast while the mother takes a cat-nap from 6:30 to 7:30. After breakfast there is the formula to prepare, then the washing of the baby's clothes, at 9:30 the bath, at 10 the bottle. By 10:30 the baby should be starting his morning nap and there should be time for the other affairs of the home.

The rest of the day will take care of itself as a rule if these first hours are scheduled and the schedule rigidly kept.

Fewer Marriages.

Warsaw (AP).—Polish newspapers lament the low marriage rate for 1935 in this country. The figure is given at 6.4 a thousand compared with 11.5 in Germany, 9.9 in Holland and 7.6 in France.

Ancient Egypt Aware of Sun's Healing Value

Ultra Violet Rays Possess Powers That Are as Yet Little Understood.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

IN yesterday's article mention was made of the division of the spectrum and the power of light to promote growth in both animals and plants. While all forms of light are desirable the ultraviolet rays—that is, those invisible rays beyond the violet, possess powers that are as yet little understood.

From Egyptian times the value of sunlight as a healing agent has been recognized, and the writings of Pliny contain ample evidence that heliotherapy (sun healing) was both known and practiced by the Greeks.

There is something in ultraviolet light that has not yet been measured or identified. We are aware of what it does but how it does it is still a mystery.

We know that tuberculosis in cattle appears to increase whenever they are housed under cover and are deprived of sunshine. Furthermore, the bone building material in milk from cows pastured in the open is greater than from animals living in the shade and fed on dry or cured fodder.

Human beings who get out of doors too little, whose skin is not exposed within reasonable limits to wind and weather, are likely to become anemic and the amount of iron in the blood may drop below the required level.

Is there a chemical substitute for sunlight? Among other discoveries was the fact that cod liver oil possessed some of the effects of sunlight. But how does the cod fish get his sunshine? He lives in comparatively deep water and in the darkness of northern latitudes.

Harriette Schick has supplied an answer. She found that the cod feed largely on squid which, in turn, feed on the plankton (tiny animal and plant forms) found floating in great quantities on the summer ocean. These living forms absorb the sunlight much as a blotting paper absorbs ink. Thus the sun is carried to the cod and stored in its liver. This supplied the key to the value of irradiated foods.

Fields and Fjords of Norway

By BEN BLESSUM

Here will be portrayed an inspiring story of the Vikings, told against the rugged panorama of this wonderland of the North as it is today.

Mr. Blessum weaves an intensely interesting story in describing the scenic beauties of Norway, embracing the jaunt along the coast into a number of yawning, fantastic fjords; the Seven Sisters Water Fall; the glorious midnight sun. He describes the splendid native costumes, the fishing villages, and conducts a trip through Bergen and Oslo, Stavanger, Kristianland, Telemarkan with its mountains and lakes, and Trendheim, where Norwegian kings are crowned. A most interesting lecture.

House Orders Leave Bills In Conference

Co-operation Expected From Upper Chamber; Ask Overtime Study.

The House yesterday sent to conference the two Government leave bills upon motion of Chairman Ramspeck, of the Civil Service Committee.

Ramspeck explained that, after conferences with several spokesmen for Government employe organizations, he had decided to make a fight for retention of at least some of the provisions of the House bills amended by the Senate.

Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, asked Ramspeck whether he was not jeopardizing the leave measures by asking for a conference in view of the attitude of certain Senators.

Expects Co-operation.

"I do not believe so," Ramspeck said. "I have talked with several of the gentlemen on the other side, and I believe we will receive the utmost co-operation."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, has been the outstanding foe of the provisions of the House bills and was chiefly responsible for the Senate amendments.

Speaker Byrns named Ramspeck, Representative Sirovich (Democrat), New York, and Representative Lehlbach (Republican), of New Jersey, conferees. The Senate probably will name its managers today.

While Ramspeck declined to discuss any possible compromises until he has talked with the Senate conferees, it is understood that the House managers will press for the 120-day cumulative privilege, an earlier effective date, and some provision for compensation for overtime work.

It is not expected that the 26-day vacation substituted by the Senate for the 30-day provision in the House bill will be disturbed.

Government employe spokesmen and members of the House feel, however, that Federal workers should be permitted to accumulate more than 60 days for vacations so that they can have ample time for leaves at their homes, no matter where in the United States they live.

The House conferees probably will ask for restoration of the July 1, 1935, effective date, but will accept January 1, 1936, as a compromise.

Overtime Study Asked.

Both House and Senate committee members feel that something should be done to compensate employes for overtime work, but the Senate group, in its report, recommended that a special study be made of the matter.

The House measures provide that overtime work may be applied on annual leave.

Ramspeck said that an employe in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation had told him that the Senate amendment inserting the word "wholly" relating to Government-controlled corporations affected by the legislation would eliminate FDIC employes from the benefits.

The FDIC worker said that banks have an interest in the corporation, but Ramspeck said he had not had an opportunity to examine the law in this respect.

Randolph Proposes Dr. Mudd Memorial

Erection of a tablet to the memory of Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd, Charles County, Md., physician who unwittingly gave medical aid and a night's lodging to John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln, was proposed yesterday in a joint resolution introduced in the House by Representative Randolph (Democrat), West Virginia.

The resolution came simultaneously with the release of a motion picture portraying the life of Dr. Mudd.

Randolph, in a mimeographed statement, declared that Dr. Mudd was held four years on America's "Devils Island," situated on Florida's Dry Tortugas, for a crime he did not commit. He pointed out that Andrew Johnson, while President, gave him an unconditional pardon in 1869 after investigating the charges that Dr. Mudd had a hand in Lincoln's assassination.

The memorial, if ordered by Congress, would be placed by the Secretary of the Interior at the ruins of Fort Jefferson.

Zoo Hails Quadruplets Of Polar, Kodiak Bears

A father who won't be seeing his youngsters for several days yet, Snowy impatiently paced his den yesterday as though wondering what has become of Ramona, his brunette missus.

Offspring of 'Ramona,' 'Snowy,' Called Biological Rarities.

Quadruplet cubs which, if they live beyond infancy, will be a biological rarity on par with the Dionne quintuplets have been born at the Washington Zoo.

Papa is a white Polar, mother a brown Kodiak. His name is Snowy, hers Ramona. Temperamentally, physically and geographically, the parents are as different from each other as two bears can be. Zoologists wondered why they ever mated and, now that young ones have arrived, they are wondering what they will look and act alike.

Director William M. Mann and Head Keeper William H. Blackburne made a joint announcement yesterday of the births. They were jubilant indeed because the hybrids, if they survive, will be among the rarest animals in captivity.

It was Blackburne who discovered Ramona again was a mother. For the last few months she has occupied the maternity wing of the Zoo "hospital," this precaution having been taken because the two cubs she bore Snowy last February died from cold and poor nursery facilities in the bear pit.

Heard Them Squeal.

"I walked in on tip toe, just to see how the old girl was getting on, and I heard squealing," Discoverer Blackburne explained yesterday. "I knew the babies had arrived. After a while, I made out there were four of them."

That was around noon last Friday. Formal announcement was deferred until yesterday to keep curiosity seekers at bay while the nervous Ramona was getting acquainted with her youngsters.

So vital is it that mother and offspring be undisturbed for several weeks that even Director Mann has not ventured into the "hospital" for a glimpse of the cubs. Blackburne said their short, straight hair is yellowish white in color, and the creatures are about 10 inches long and probably weigh from 16 to 18 ounces apiece.

Four, Large Litter.

Four is a large litter of bear cubs, two or three being the common number. Of the two borne by Ramona on February 15, 1935, one lived 15 days and the other is believed by Blackburn to have been eaten by its mother, nervous and irritable at her first experience.

They were the first such hybrids ever born in captivity, according to Dr. Mann. He says the four little freaks in the latest litter are the most interesting in his experience.

Snowy, the father, came here from the Edinburgh Zoo several years ago. Ramona, whose native home is the Kodiak Islands off the Alaskan coast, was presented to the Zoo by Paul Reddington, formerly chief of the Biological Survey. Marion, the blonde polar, who is Snowy's other wife, was a gift of the Coast Guard.

All three arrived here at approximately the same time and, being of the same age and seemingly companionable, were caged together. Marion gave birth to cubs some time ago but they died because the neglected them.

Ruling by Seal Exempts Banks On Jobless Law

The nine national banks in the District were exempted from provisions of the unemployment compensation law by the compensation commission yesterday.

The ruling was based on an opinion by Elwood Seal, assistant corporation counsel, that the national banks were "instrumentalities of the Federal Government," and therefore are exempt under provisions of the law. The decision means the banks will not have to pay the pay-roll tax, and their employes will not receive any benefits from the unemployment compensation fund. The ruling affects 788 employes and officers.

Status of other banks was not raised formally during the meeting, but that of building and loan associations was mentioned informally and it was suggested the question might be raised formally later in an effort to have them exempted.

Fire, marine and casualty insurance company representatives besought the board to exempt their agents and salesmen from the law. They argued these were "independent contractors" within meaning of the law. Life insurance companies already had made a similar argument.

Edward Brashears, of the District Agency Co., one of the spokesmen for the fire, marine and casualty group, said the companies did not seek exemption for their clerical and other employes. Others in the insurance group were Thomas Waters, jr., of New York, representing the Underwriters Social Security Service, and Charles Roberts, of the Insurance Club of Washington.

The commission ruled that all appointments must be passed on by it after recommendation by John Marshall, director. Marshall submitted a personnel program calling for employment of three field inspectors, an attorney, a deputy director, and a clercial staff of auditors and others.

Housing Project For D.C. Is Sought

The Central Labor Union announced yesterday that Representative Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, will introduce a bill providing for the construction of 25,000 low-cost dwelling units in Washington. As Ellenbogen is out of the city, the announcement could not be confirmed.

The union's rent and low-cost housing committee worked with Ellenbogen in drafting the rent commission bill last year. The measure, though on the House calendar still, now appears dead.

The new attack on high rents and a shortage of housing is expected to furnish living quarters for 100,000 persons. The anticipated rent is $6 per room.

Two to Testify At Hearings On Red Rider

Ballou, Mrs. Doyle Only Witnesses Called by Sub-committee.

Large Crowd Expected; Board Backs Report on Session Bill.

"Standing Room Only" was expected this morning in the small room in the old House Office Building where the sub-committee on education of the House District Committee will open public hearings on the new Sisson bill to repeal in entirety the Copeland-Blanton anti-red rider.

Only two witnesses, Mrs. Marion Doyle, president of the Board of Education, and Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou, have been invited by the sub-committee to testify at this morning's hearing. Other members of the board, school officials, spokesmen for various parents groups and proponents of the rider are expected to be on hand.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education yesterday, the board voted unanimously to approve a report of the legislation committee urging indorsement of the Sisson bill. This indorsement will be read to the sub-committee by Mrs. Doyle. Dr. Ballou's remarks will be confined to "an analysis of the difficulties in administering the rider and the bad effects on teachers and pupils."

First Opinion on Rider.

Today's hearing will provide board members with their first opportunity to deliver an official opinion on the rider before a House body.

Whether Representative Tom Blanton, of Texas, will appear at the hearings was not known. Representative Fred J. Sisson, of New York, author of the bill, announced that he probably will not testify until Thursday as he wants school officials to complete their case first.

In indorsing the Sisson bill, school officials are expected to stress two major points: That the anti-red rider has defeated its own purpose by stimulating curiosity among the children in communism, and that the oath of office to uphold the Constitution taken by the teacher is a sufficient safeguard against the possibility of any teacher advocating communism.

Cites Effect.

"The effect of the constant agitation of this question has been to make teachers in the public school systems unwilling to mention the subject of communism either voluntarily or in answer to questions of scholars," read the report of the legislation committee adopted by the board as a whole.

"The curiosity of many scholars has thus been aroused to individual investigation. This committee is united in declaring that in our judgment no member of the teaching force of the public school system has—prior to the passage of this rider or since—directly or indirectly been guilty of inculcating subversive teachings or doctrines into the minds of the public school children of the District.

"Never has there been the slightest evidence presented to the Board of Education that any teacher or officer of the public school system was guilty of subversive teachings."

Recess to Thursday.

Following today's hearings Chairman Ambrose J. Kennedy, of Maryland, plans to recess until Thursday to permit him to attend the funeral of former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Before approval of the legislation committee's report a letter was read to the board members from the District Congress of Parent-Teacher organizations indorsing the Sisson bill and deploring "the psychological effect on teachers and children" of the red rider.

A similar indorsement of the repeal of the rider "in the name of common sense and orderly administration of the children's educational future." was voted yesterday by the board of directors of the League of Women Voters in the District.

"As a result of the rider, one or two overzealous critics of the school system, who are not educators, have made extraordinary demands, which have disrupted and demoralized the school administration," the indorsement voted by the league's directors declared.

Three Already Held.

"They have demanded hearings. Three have already been held and in addition every session of the board since June last has been compelled to give the matter further consideration. They have demanded that all letters of complaint for the past eight years be made available to them.

"They have demanded that every text, periodical and advertisement be scanned for possible reference to communism. They have even objected to the phrase 'social viewpoint.' At this moment some 12 clerks are engaged in this hunt."

At yesterday's meeting the board also listened to the protest against their indorsement of the Sisson bill by Roscoe F. Walter, of 1706 Summit place. On the motion of John H. Wilson, new board member, Walter's remarks were "accepted for proper consideration."

Other matters on which the board took action were: Rejection of the proposal to use armored cars to transfer school funds to banks as the present method is cheaper.

Gaming Raid Nets 39 Here; Beard Named

Police Miss 'Owner' by Few Minutes; Trio Is Booked.

Battering their way into a gambling establishment in the 700 block of G street northwest, reputedly operated by Sam Beard, supposed king of Washington's gaming world, police late yesterday seized 39 men, forced them into five patrol wagons and took them to headquarters.

Later, three of the prisoners were charged with setting up a gaming table, and the other 36 were released as witnesses to appear in court.

Smash Doors With Axes.

Armed with a warrant from the United States commissioner, the raiders descended on the "spot," which is in the heart of the shopping area, late in the day.

They found the establishment on the second floor, and were forced to use axes to break in the heavily-barred doors.

Inside they found the men they later arrested clustered around luxurious gambling paraphernalia, which included dice tables, alleged racing sheets and slips and a system of telephone service for dispensing racing results.

The place, officers said, was similar to others they believe are operated by Beard, who now is out on bond pending an appeal of his conviction on gaming charges last year.

The clanging patrol wagons attracted crowds of shoppers and homeward-bound office workers. Each of the three men who stood formally charged at headquarters furnished $2,000 bond and was released.

The name of Beard has been linked with two other recent raids —one in the 500 block of E street and the other in the 600 block.

"Joe Lincoln" Named.

At this time, Beard and 12 co-defendants are out on bond, pending action of the Court of Appeals in reviewing their cases

Officers reported last night that the "spot" was operated in the name of a man known only as "Joe Lincoln."

2 Speeders Lose Driving Permits

Two motorists had their permits revoked and eight others were penalized with 15 or 30 day suspensions yesterday after another meeting of the Board of Revocations and Restorations.

Those who lost their licenses were Aubrey F. Parker, Berwyn, Md., 50 miles; Joseph P. Walshe, 4190 Wheeler road southeast, 50 miles.

Thirty-day suspensions went to Roy B. Powell, 5504 Foote street northeast, 40 miles; Orion K. Rhodes, Cherrydale, Va., 40 miles.

Officer's Pay Delayed, Political Career Halted

Private Howard M. Overstreet, of the Fourth Precinct, who is leaving the Police Department to embark on a political career he hopes will lead to the Presidency yesterday was compelled to delay the formal launching of his ambition.

He besought in vain for his final pay check. He was to make a speech in Harrisburg, Pa., he complained. He had enough cash to get there, but not to return. He needed his pay, he said. It was not forthcoming, however, because the Commissioners have not formally passed on his resignation. They are to do so today.

Woman Hurt in Fall.

Mrs. Florence Nutley, 72, of 1625 K street northwest, was critically injured last night when she fell through a skylight to the floor below. She was treated at Emergency Hospital for internal injuries, a fractured right leg and a possible fracture of the skull.

Humor, Pathos Mingle In Sandburg Readings

Poet Compares Present to Confused Days of Civil War.

It came from the platform of Roosevelt High School auditorium as 500 persons spent "An Evening with Carl Sandburg."

It was a deep bass voice and its musical notes came as effortlessly as a prayer from the humble yet rugged man whose verses have alternately charmed and stirred a generation of Americans with such offerings as his "Rootabaga Stories" and "Smoke and Steel."

He spoke of that humility, saying it was the possession of every true artist. Arrested once on a charge of being an agitator, he made a plea for the type of inquiring mind that Abraham Lincoln possessed.

Draws Parallel.

He drew a parallel between the days of the Civil War President, whose biographer he was, and the present times of turbulence and chaos.

"This will be a year," he said, "during which the inquiring mind will be at a premium."

Without mentioning him by name, he inferred that there was a definite analogy between the problems confronting Roosevelt and Lincoln when, after quoting the latter's statement, "my policy is to have no policy; I have been controlled by events," Sandburg added:

"It is impossible in times of confusion to be consistent."

Mixes Humor, Pathos.

Then for half an hour he changed his role from lecturer to poet, mixing dry humor with pathos with the skill of a man who knows an audience.

"Elephants Look Different to Different Persons," was the title of his first reading. Characteristically, he dedicated this to Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas, whom, though he had not seen him for ten years, he spotted in the crowd.

His trained voice carried perfectly the successive images of such diverse things as the endless beating of surf upon a beach an dthe wailing of a trombone in a modern jazz orchestra.

Reads From New Verse.

He concluded with snatches from his forthcoming work, "The People, Yes," one of the verses of which ran:

"The Czar has eight million men with bayonets
Nothing can happen to the Czar."

Then he picked up his bell-shaped guitar and started strumming it with his fingers.

"It's too bad," he said, "that we haven't time for some of my "Rutabaga stories for children."

And he told about Peter Potato Blossom Wishes and about the two skyscrapers who hoped their next child would not be as tied down as they had been. When it was born it turned out to be the Overland Limited.

Then for a concluding half hour he turned troubador and sang selections from his "American Songbag," a collection of folk songs he had picked up in remote parts of the country.

"Your faces have been good to me," were his parting words. "I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

White House Reporters Elect Storm President

Frederick A. Storm, United Press White House correspondent, was elected president of the White House Correspondents Association for the coming year. Returns tabulated last night showed he defeated C. W. B. Hurd, New York Times, 51 to 35, in the only contest.

Recreation Institute Registration Is Begun

Registration was begun yesterday for the annual recreation institute to be held for seven weeks at Garnet - Patterson Community Center, under direction of Clarence A. Browne. The program is designed to give recreation leaders opportunity to take active part in games and exercises.

Citizens Urge Tighter Laws For Motorists

Mid-City Association Also Favors Enlargement of Fire Department.

Two resolutions relating to the city's traffic problems were adopted at last night's meeting of the Mid-City Citizens Association.

In one, the group deplored the recent placing of several persons convicted of drunken driving on probation and in the other urged that the District Commissioners be empowered to deny driving privileges to non-resident motorists who have been convicted of the more serious traffic offenses here.

In other resolutions the association supported a resolution of the Washington Board of Trade which urged that Congress allow funds for enlargement of personnel and equipment of the Fire Department, and asked that in the event of the purchase of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. that a system of uniform transfer privileges and low fares be adopted and indorsed a bill which would require licensing of claw machines and other amusement devices.

North Capitol Association.

A lively debate on the bill to reform procedure in the Juvenile Court here marked last night's meeting of the North Capitol Citizens Association. The question was brought up by Mrs. Samuel Ottenberg, of the D. C. Voteless League of Women Voters.

Many members took the position that the bill, which would make the Juvenile Court a court of chancery, would deny children some of the privileges they enjoy under the present system.

The association strongly indorsed the action of the Board of Education in voting to ask the House to repeal the anti-red rider in the District appropriation bill.

E. B. Lawless presided.

Dr. Smith Assumes Girls' School Post

Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith yesterday was sworn in as superintendent of the National Training School for Girls, filling the vacancy caused by the recent retirement of Miss Lottie Richardson, who had been superintendent of the school for the last 24 years.

Oath of office was administered by Arthur G. Cole, chief clerk of the Health Department, in the office of Elwood Street, director of public welfare.

Dr. Smith has been in the United States Public Health Service for a number of years. She specialized in psychiatry and in child delinquency. Formerly Dr. Cole was superintendent of the Texas and the Maryland training schools for girls.

Pair Robs Bus Driver.

Two colored men, their faces masked with red handkerchiefs, last night robbed Melvin Nicks, a bus driver for the Capital Transit Co., of $16.40, Nicks, who lives at Laurel, Md., said he had a five-minute layover at Fifth and W streets northwest, and was alone in the bus when the men entered.

Board to Hear Public Health Views Today

District Commissioners Will Receive Group Seeking Reform.

Summer Camp for Children Assured; Work to Begin Soon.

The District Commissioners, who thus far have not committed themselves on the mounting campaign for adequate public health appropriations, will have an opportunity to do so this morning.

Dr. Sterling Ruffin, president of the District Medical Society, and chairman of the reform committee which grew out of the mass meeting February 16, when Representative Thomas L. Blanton challenged doctors to a fist-fight, announced yesterday that the Commissioners had agreed to receive the group at 10:30 a. m. today.

Meanwhile, definite assurance that a children's health camp will continue to be operated here during the summer months came yesterday, with an announcement that construction of a new camp will be started within the next few days.

Located on Bald Eagle Hill, Southeast Washington, near Blue Plains, the camp will be built on Federal land under a $79,200 WPA allotment. Building operations will begin in a few days, said William C. Cleary, deputy works administrator for the District.

Ruffin Committee.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who has general charge of the city's public health activities, probably will not get back here in time to attend today's conference, it was said at the District Building. He is scheduled to return from New York tomorrow morning.

Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Dan I. Sultan will receive the Ruffin committee, which will present resolutions adopted at the mass meeting, and a supplementary statement drafted by a sub-committee headed by Dr. Prentiss Willson.

Members of the grievance committee are Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, Miss Inez Cadel, Mrs. L. B. Castell, James E. Colliflower, the Rev. Dr. W. L. Darby, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, Dr. Stephen Hopkins, Dr. William H. Hough, John Locher, Thomas E. Lodge, the Right Rev. John O'Grady, Alexander Richter, John Saul, Dr. Willson and Dr. Ruffin.

Hundreds of names have been signed to petitions, distributed during the last few weeks by the Council of Social Agencies, protesting "against the low appropriations allowed in the 1937 budget for the Health Department and the hospitals, under the Board of Public Welfare."

Petitions Sent.

The petitions are being sent to Chairman Elmer Thomas of the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations, and Chairman Blanton, of the corresponding committee in the House. Among those who have signed are the widow of Chauncey M. Depew, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. George P. Scriven, many Y. W. C. A. members and others.

Successful conclusion of plans for the Bald Eagle Hill project climaxed several months study, and made certain that, even if the Upshur street Tuberculosis Hospital is closed next year, as now contemplated, the annual children's health camps will not be interrupted. Heretofore the camps, sponsored by the Tuberculosis Association, have been held in temporary structures on the hospital grounds.

The site, which commands a view of the Potomac River, was approved by a committee consisting of Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan; Arno B. Cammerer, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; and Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, executive secretary of the Tuberculosis Association.

Parkway Link.

Difficulties with the Planning Commission, which is promoting development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway link to Fort Washington, Md., along which the site lies, were terminated by a stipulation that use of Bald Eagle Hill for a health camp should be confined to a five-year period.

Provisions has been made, said Cammerer, to extend the grant for another five years, if another location has not been found in the meantime.

Distinguished Events Continue to Punctuate Capital's Season of Living Drama

Lunt-Fontanne Play Due Here Week of Mar. 9

By Nelson B. Bell.

Not in many years has the theater of the living drama afforded a season so prolific in distinguished events as the present.

Elsewhere on this page will be found something concerning the American premiere of Jay Mallory's play of "Sweet Aloes," which introduces Evelyn Laye, that charming British prima donna, whose career and fame always heretofore have borne a direct and intimate relationship to the musical, rather than dramatic stage.

Miss Laye is an artiste whose activities would be fascinating whatever the particular medium of expression she might select. Washington had a foretaste of her histrionic ability, as well as her charm as a singer, in the picture "Evensong," which was shown on the screen of the Belasco Theater not so long ago.

Last night's premiere was only one of many that have preceded it—although not all have been hits—and a little in the nature of a precursor of others that are to follow.

A New Sherwood Play.

For example, on Monday, March 9, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine, whose likenesses decorate this page today, will appear on the stage of the National in a new play by Robert Emmett Sherwood, author of their earlier success, "Reunion in Vienna," and, incidentally, adaptor of "The Ghost Goes West," the screen play in which Robert Donat is appearing this week at RKO-Keith's.

It might be well at this point to pick up something of the provocative announcement that comes presumably from Russel Crouse and the Theater Guild, to wit:

Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne ended their New York run of "The Taming of the Shrew" at the height of its success, and while it still was playing to capacity audiences, in order to present immediately the new play by the author who gave them one of their greatest successes, "Reunion in Vienna."

The reason is that "Idiot's Delight" is of such timely interest that it could not wait for another season. It's characters step right out of the headlines which you are reading today and, without revealing his story, it may be said that it concerns itself with the wars and rumors of wars of today and is as timely as the next tick of your watch.

Boasts Strong Cast.

The cast is an unusual one, including Sydney Greenstreet, George Meader, Richard Whorf, Bretaigne Windust, Alan Hewitt, Edgar Barrier, Barry Thompson, Henry Compton—and, of all things, six beautiful blondes.

Six beautiful blondes in a Lunt-Fontanne play!

That should set you to guessing!

The play has been directed by Mr. Lunt and Bretaigne Windust and the settings are by Lee Simonson.

But probably the most astonishing news of all is that Mr. Lunt is learning to tap dance in order to fulfill the complete demands of a part that is said to be a bit different from anything he has done heretofore—and that goes clear back to "Clarence."

Then, to run the measure over, on Monday, March 16, along will come the Theater Guild's production of "Porgy and Bess," the folk opera composed by George Gershwin, with the original play of "Porgy," by Mr. and Mrs. DuBose Heyward, as the foundation of the libretto. Lyrics were written by Mr. Heyward and Ira Gershwin, who possesses a peculiar facility in shaping lines for his gifted brother's tunes.

This will be the fifth subscription play of the current season of the American Theater Society of Washington.

Director From Hollywood.

Rouben Mamoulian, who directed the original production of "Porgy," deserted Hollywood, where he has since become one of the ace directors of the audible cinema, to supervise the production of the new form that "Porgy" has taken.

Washington will find interest in the fact—as was celebrated here months ago—that Todd Duncan, a former instructor at Howard University, plays and sings the leading male role in "Porgy and Bess," with that inimitable team of sepia comics, Buck and Bubbles, in the foremost comedy parts. Anne Brown, Abbie Mitchell and that matchless contralto, Georgette Harvey, whom we once put on the air with the old Crandall Saturday Nighters, when she was singing her way to fame at the Howard, are members of the supporting cast who add further note to this vivid narrative of Negro life along Catfish Walk in Charleston.

If one can bring himself to be sufficiently patient, the chances are he will be competely sustained by the publicity department of the Loew Theaters in Washington, presided over by Ray Bell.

When Harold Lloyd's picturization of the stage hit, "The Milky Way," was about to open, the drama desks received quart bottles of milk to bulwark them against the wallowing in the aisles the comic aspects of the picture were supposed to induce—and largely did. And now comes along a linen handkerchief, I hope—at least, it is a handkerchief in a nice blue pasteboard container—with the admonition that today's private preview of "The Prisoner of Shark Island" probably will slay the critics right in their tracks. We are confidently expected to weep copiously as the pligth of the good Dr. Alexander Mudd unfolds itself upon the screen.

This thought is predicated upon the experience of Representative Jennings Randolph and the others who previewed the same subject at the Fox Film Exchange on Sunday afternoon. Strong women wept and weak men fell flat on their faces—or so one is led to believe from the other Mr. Bell's—no relation—report of the pathos and bathos of the occasion.

More of this after we have cried our eyes out at 1:30 today.

Arts and Ann Boleyn.

Tonight, tomorrow and Thursday nights, the Arts Club of Washington will present a program of excerpts from Edward H. Boker's play of "Ann Boleyn," with Ann Ives heading a cast that insures the integrity of the work and its keen appeal to those whose interest harks back to the days of the Tudor kings.

It is Miss Ives who calls up, closely seconded by Harold Long, to say that the arrangement of scenes is such as to consume no more than an hour and a half of playing time, although conveying a reasonably comprehensive survey of the life of one of the famous women of history.

Miss Ives' most recent appearance was in Morgan Baker's play of "Benevolent Blackmail," at Wardman Park.

In reporting on the many superlative qualities of excellence that characterize Charlie Chaplin's new picture, "Modern Times," in yesterday morning's column, it was the intention to remark a complete absence from the action of the film of those occasional vulgarities that have marred so many earlier vehicles for the talents of the screen's supreme pantomimist. There is nothing in "Modern Times" to cause even the most sensitively constituted to cringe or "wish he hadn't." Just a lot of good clean fun, with the cinema's foremost pantaloon giving the dye industry a break by making it appear that his hair is still raven black instead of almost pure white.

Do Not Miss Donat!

Robert Donat is one of the handsomest stars that have come along to the screen in many a productive year.

There is that about him that even permits the wearing of kilts without impairing the impression that here is a gay dog fully equipped to step up the distaff pulse and cause feminine hearts to flutter. Even as a ghost, who flits through closed doors as if they were not there, or else standing wide open, there is a substantial quality about the man that explains a great deal of the favor he has won in such pictures as "The Count of Monte Cristo," "The 39 Steps" and now this clever adaptation by Robert Emmett Sherwood of a ghost story to the purposes of the celluloids.

But there is one unfortunate handicap under which "The Ghost Goes West" perforce must labor. That is that it is one of those infrequent pictures that must be viewed from the beginning to be fully understood and its subtleties—if any—completely grasped. It is nothing that you can walk in on in the middle and make much of until it starts all over again.

Jean Parker Hits.

It is not a practicable suggestion, of course, that "The Ghost Goes West" should be restricted to a rigid schedule that would compel everyone who views it to see it from start to finish, instead of vice versa. But that would be the ideal arrangement, if it did not entail reserved steats and a complete disruption of the motion picture industry's fixed policy of the "all-day grind."

Not the least of the picture's assets is the demure and ingenuous charm of Jean Parker, one of the most utterly fascinating ingenues the gelatins can boast. This department has been oversold on Miss Parker ever since her incomparably fine performance in support of Katharine Hepburn in "Little Women."

"The Ghost Goes West" is a picture you will want to see, if for no other reason than to keep abreast of the discussion it is occasioning.

And that Donat fellow certainly has what some learned diagnostician has profoundly analyzed as "umph!" Plenty "umph" is what he's got!

It is Mrs. R. B. M., writing from 24 Kirke street, Chevy Chase, Md., who joins Sidney Skolsky's "Movie-Boners Club." by pointing out that in "The Ghost Goes West." Peggy arrives without luggage, spends the night in the castle and comes down to breakfast next morning in a suitable morning frock, quite different from the costume she had had on the night before. "That whole sequence," says my correspondent, "is particularly cockeyed, but who would quibble with anything in so delicious a film? It induces a feeling for whimsy in the best of us. No doubt it was while under this influence that your reviewer transferred the Houses of Parliament from London to Edinburgh!"

I presume that must have been it.

Learn-One-Thing-Each-Day Note.

So how do you pronounce "Aloes?"

That's what I thought, so don't let anybody kid you about that long "a" business.

Coming to Capital in New Play

Although it will eliminate the possibility of Washington's viewing their high-spirited interpretation of Will Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," the National Capital will be favored by an early appearance of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne on the stage of the National Theater in a new play by Robert Emmett Sherwood, bearing the title of "Idiot's Delight." This is scheduled for the week of Monday, March 9. Unless memory is getting tricky again, Lunt and Fontanne have not been seen on a local stage since their appearance here with Noel Coward in his "Design for Living," prior to which they had scored a tremendous hit in "Reunion in Vienna," also by Mr. Sherwood.

Shouse Denies League Is 'Subversive' Agent

By the Associated Press.

Jouett Shouse, president of the American Liberty League, yesterday termed "distressing" and "inaccurate" a statement of Prof. George S. Counts, before the National Education Association in St. Louis, that the league was a "subversive" organization.

He wired Counts that "this organization is committed to the principles of free speech, freedom of the press, freedom of religious worship, the right of petition and the right of peaceable assembly, as basic tenets of American liberty."

Counts was quoted as saying "like Hearst, Belgrano, the D. A. R. and other subversive agents, the American Liberty League characterizes all those who believe in the real liberties set forth in the Declaration of Independence as Reds, Bolsheviks or Communists."

Evelyn Laye Is A Hit in First Dramatic Role

'Sweet Aloes,' Off to Slow Start, Gathers Momentum and Wins Eight Calls.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"SWEET ALOES," Lee Ephraim presents the play in three acts and five scenes by Jay Mallory, with Evelyn Laye, Rex Harrison and John Litel. Directed by Tyrone Guthrie, with settings by Raymond Sovey.

THE CAST.

Miss Esther Warren.....Elliot Mason
Rose.....Marjorie Martyn
Miss Alice Dodd.....Ruth Vivian
Belinda Warren.....Evelyn Laye
Tubbs Barrow.....Rex Harrison
Lord Farrington.....Charles Bryant
Clara.....Myra Hampton
Jim Baker.....John Litel
Johnson.....Henry Vincent
Florence Cudahy.....Doris Dalton
Maid.....Elizabeth Chase
Hon. Robert Melford.....John Emery
Lady Farrington.....Joyce Carey

The anguish of unfortunate motherhood, the solace of understanding on the part of one who might have deemed herself an aggrieved victim of circumstance and the consequent eradication of mental bogies on the part of a beautiful young woman, are the elements that comprise the foundation of this new play that gets under way with a laggard's step, but brings down its final curtain on a study of feminine human nature that is interesting, authentic and compelling.

In her first stellar essay in a work that makes no use of music, Evelyn Laye acquits herself as an actress of charm, authority and poise.

She is surrounded by a cast that gives the play a distinctly British flavor, but one of such rounded literacy, such brittle humor and such finesse as to bring the work out on the side of an enthusiastic public reception that accorded it eight curtain calls following the fall of the final curtain on its first public performance in America last night.

Pursues Cumulative Course.

The first act moves slowly, is considerably cluttered with inconsequential small-talk and gives promise of getting nowhere rapidly. The second and third acts, however, compile dramatic situations that are both suspenseful and primed with those qualities of universal appeal that make them immune to whatever conversational redundancies Jay Mallory may have written into her script.

There is an infallible tug at the heart in the fundamentals of this drama that may not be laughed off or lightly shunted aside. These fundamentals get pretty close to the basic impulses of the mother instinct. They are stressed, not to the point of lachrymose drama, but only to the degree that is necessary to make of "Sweet Aloes" a human document that will appeal especially to women, but will not fail to engage masculine interest as well.

There are several performances that stand out in the execution of this play by the authoress, who masquerades as Jay Mallory, but plays an important part in the cast under the name of Joyce Carey.

Foremost among these, of course, is the thoroughly engaging portrayal of the young mother of a son who is intrusted to the care of the woman who is supposed to be his mother by Evelyn Laye. As we already have attempted to indicate, Miss Laye offers an impersonation that ranks high in a season of fine impersonations. Her work last evening was letter-perfect—and the same cannot be said of some of the other members of the cast—ingratiating, variegated and charming. The promise of the motion picture "Evensong" that Miss Laye is an actress as well as singer was completely fulfilled on the National stage last night.

Her leading man, Rex Harrison, is an actor who captivated last evening's subscription audience to the point where it was moved to accord him a bit of an ovation on his final exit with Doris Dalton, as the feminine osteopath whose activities form so important a factor in the development of the plot of a play that is so expertly based on a taboo situation that it gives no offense whatever, but rather creates an impression of sound and impeccable human experience.

Mr. Harrison is almost the sole source of comedy in a drama that is not primarily intended to be laughable. He is bulwarked in his fine excursions into the fertile fields of levity by Miss Dalton and John Litel, former leading man of the National Theater Players, who last was seen on the same stage with Osgood Perkins in the original production of Commander Frank Wead's "Ceiling Zero," recently played on the screen by Pat O'Brien and Jimmy Cagney.

Joyce Carey, the author of the piece, does a finely drawn impersonation of the wife who should have resented a son that was her husband's, but not hers, but did not. Charles Bryant, a former costellar associate on both stage and screen, of Mme. Alla Nazimova, appears in the role of Lord Farrington and plays the part with distinction, even though a line or two seemed to elude him last evening.

Is Nicely Set and Directed.

A distinguished first-night audience, which included, among numerous others of note, Milton Shubert, Genevieve Tobin, brilliant star of both stage and screen; Frank Lawton, young English actor, remembered for his work in "David Copperfield." "The Last River" and other screen hits, and in private life Miss Laye's husband; C. P. Greneker, of the Shubert forces, and Sol Rosenblatt, erstwhile head of the theatrical activities of the NRA, gave "Sweet Aloes" such a send-off at the fall of the final curtain as to forecast as brilliant a success on this side as it has enjoyed in London.

I recommend it as an interesting and intelligent evening in the theater.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Music Teachers' Association holds February meeting at 1227 Sixteenth street Monday night, presenting as guest artist, James Friskin, pianist, of New York. Program: Johann Sebastian Bach's "Goldberg Variations."

Not even to the music critic, who is supposed to go everywhere and hear everything, does the opportunity often come to listen to the aria with 30 variations which is known by the name of the harpsichordist to whom Bach dedicated it. I can recall only three such occasions in the last decade, and two of these were private performances. Miss Maud G. Sewall, who is the Capital's musical historian, declares that last night's was the first public performance ever given here of the work in its entirety.

It is, therefore, a matter of congratulation both to James Friskin and his auditors that the local premiere, as it were, of the "Goldberg Variations" should have been so capably and expertly played, with technical precision and expositional clarity. The audition was made the more enjoyable by Mr. Friskin's prefatory remarks on the various types of variation, and on the curious fact that so many great composers have been fascinated by the harmonic and rhythmic factors involved.

Although mindful of the adage about disputing over tastes, I venture to say that in my opinion the two greatest works in the variation genre are Bach's and the 33 variations of Beethoven on a theme by Diabelli. A study of the two will show how close the two composers came in spirit despite their separation in time. Of the many places that could be pointed out, the most striking comparison is between the twenty-fifth variation of Bach and the thirty-first of Beethoven.

The variety of moods in the "Goldberg Variations" and the peculiar intimacy of the music make this work virtually a self-portrait of the composer. Nowhere else does he bring together and fuse his own traits of mind in one composition, or put side by side for contrast his scholarly skill and his happy humor, as he does in the use of the canon in all positions.

Perhaps the master-stroke in the work is at the end—the simple restatement of the aria after all the previous transmutations. The effect of that surprise cannot be better expressed than in the words of Donald Francis Tovey: "It is as if a charming old ancestress of a living line of great folk were to step from the frame of her Holbein portrait and bow to her assembled posterity."

Broadway

Goes to Havana. By Ed Sullivan

Heading North.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 24.—We dropped anchor here a few minutes ago to spend the Sabbath on a stretch of water so green that it appears to be a bowl of liquid emerald . . . There is no preacher or pulpit in this harbor, which is a pity, for his vestments could be the finest of blue or greenest of green cassocks. The foam of the whitecaps could be the candles, the seagulls could be the ushers and take up the collection, the organ music would be the swelling roar of the Atlantic.

Before we left Havana we paid a visit to the race track that once was world-famous Oriental Park. Effects of the revolution are clearly indexed at the race track. Once, in the lush years when sugar was selling at peak prices, Oriental Park was the winter rendezvous of the world. The greatest thoroughbreds raced here and the clubhouse and grandstand were crowded. Today the horses racing here compete for $250 purses. This is now the port of last call for thoroughbreds that lack the speed and class of their brethren. These are the black sheep of famous racing families. The Mad Hatter strain is represented and there are colts here that trace back to Bubbling Over and Chance Play and Kai-Sang. But they lack the spark that distinguished their sires and dams, and now they go through the motions at Oriental Park, big time colts on a small time track.

We left Havana at daybreak. The S. S. Georgic and the Hollander Statendam were swinging at anchor when we pulled out, and the S. S. Lafayette had departed a few hours previously. Never saw a harbor to match the Cuban metropolis, a natural aquatic roadway that could accommodate an entire fleet. Only one disappointment, so far as this reporter was concerned. They told us that the waters were shark-infested and that we'd be able to see them. But nary a shark showed up. Maybe they were holding a convention some place else.

Most vivid memory I retain of the Havana night club circuit is the bartender at Club Florida, an amazing mite of a man who is a great artist. They say that he can measure the ingredients of a drink so expertly that he never loses a drop. He proved it to us, lining up eight glasses on his bar and then mixing eight Daquiri cocktails. So help me, when he poured them out, each glass was filled exactly to the brim with not a drop wasted. We went back several times to see if we could catch him in a blunder, but each time he clicked. Broadway has some great bartenders but none of them match this genius of alcohol.

Most stunning spot in Havana is the Grand National Casino. This is sheer magnificence. The high, vaulted room in which stand the roulette and dice tables is eye arresting . . . It makes losing a pleasure, sort of a painless extraction.

Most interesting person I met in Havana was Jefferson Caffrey, the American Ambassador . . . For 25 years he has been in the diplomatic service and prior to his thrilling post in Cuba, he was in strife-torn Central American countries. As a result, his grasp of Latin-American psychology is founded on experience under fire and his handling of the difficult Cuban situation was a tribute to his courage and tact. Even now, guards with bayonets are stationed at his office and residence. He has a stern thoughful face, but he colored a bit under his tan when I suggested that he looked like an older brother of Gary Cooper.

Cuban radio programs are all pretty much alike. Apparently the announcers are given free rein, for the programs are cluttered up with talk. Never heard so much jabbering. They need a Ben Gross down here. He'd make them behave.

Most thrilling radio experience was tuning in on the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap while we were anchored in Havana harbor. Underneath the frowning parapets of Morro Castle, we sat and sipped cocktails while the short waves brought us the staccato tones of Clem McCarthy, broadcasting from the Coast. All of us had bet on Discovery, but he never showed. The deck steward was wise. He cashed in when Top Row showed his heels to the rest of 'em.

The amazing conclusion of a Broadway columnist is that Americans do the rhumba better than the Cubans themselves do it. The eyefuls at El Morocco are better rhumba dancers than any of the Havana belles. But in the past 72 hours I've heard "La Cucaracha" so often that if a New York band ever plays it in my hearing I'll tear the bass fiddle into strips.

Tonight we take off for Miami, we go on to New York. Time won't permit me to go on to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras, and there are other reasons, too. Your correspondent is homesick for Broadway, homesick for the noises and tumult of New York. It's nice to get away, but I think it's even nicer to be heading home again, even though the Atlantic is not pacific at present writing.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

The Gossipel Truth.

Hollywood, Feb. 24.

ELAINE BARRIE had lunch with John Barrymore at the Metro Studio but she couldn't get on the set of "Romeo and Juliet" to watch him work . . . Allan Jones has been Club Trocadering with Irene Hervey . . . There is the possibility that Herbert Bayard Swope will be the president of United Artists . . . Charles Boyer has had 15 consecutive winings at the Clover Club and is now $30,000 in front . . . Virginia Faulkner is calling her book about Hollywood, "Present Company Accepted" . . . Douglas Fairbanks sent Mary Pickford a large valentine made of orchids . . . At Countess Di Frasso's "Red and White Party" a microphone was hidden under a couch and everything said by the people who sat on that couch during the evening was recorded on wax . . . The Countess says she is going to play the records at her next party . . . Many couples have asked Frasso not to do this, for they said things to each other which never should be overheard.

Rouben Mamoulian took Tamara to the Clifford Odets party . . . Odets made a speech in which he thanked New Theater Magazine for publishing "Waiting for Lefty," claiming this really helped him to get recognition as a playwright . . . The highlight of the party was supplied by Lee Brody, who sang a parody of "The Object of My Affection" . . . The tag of the parody says: "The object of my dejection refuses my affection, he'd rather be a pal. All night he sits in bed and sings—the Internationale" . . . Tom Jenks has a name for those actresses who love to gossip. He calls them "malice madams."

Clark Gable, from the set of "San Francisco," telephoned Carole Lombard on the set of "A Princess Comes Across" . . . Ann Sothern, her blonde hair now a dark brown, roller skating down Wilshire Boulevard with Roger Pryor . . . The papers with the records of the meeting between James Cagney and the Warners before the Motion Picture Academy, which is supposed to be evidence in the new law suit, have been lost by the academy . . . Marlene Dietrich, after reading those yarns which had her walking out on "I Loved a Soldier" because Ernst Lubitsch was no longer with Paramount, said: "It isn't true. I find myself turned into a queen of loyalty—and I hate it" . . . Lionel Stander's secretary, who will tell you she is really more than that, is Alice Twitchell. Really . . . Edith Wilkerson's party at the Trocadero ended with most of the guests getting on bicycles and riding about on the dance floor . . . Douglas Fairbanks jr., and Betty Furness became acquainted on "A Bicycle Built for Two."

Virginia Pine leaves for New York today and probably will appear in a Broadway show . . . The Irene Ware-William Demarest romance which flourished in Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," is now back for retakes . . . They previewed "These Three," the movie version of "The Children's Hour," the other evening . . . It was a double feature attraction for me, for I sat with Herman Shumlin, who produced the play . . . Lillian Hellman, author of both the stage and screen play, rates much applause for her fine adaptation, despite all the obstacles . . . Surprisingly, the best performance is given by the child who steals the bracelet, played by Marcia May Jones . . . The picture will surprise the skeptics . . . Herman Mankiewicz describes a certain producer as a sheep in sheep's clothing.

Gloria Swanson and Herbert Marshall are as romantic as ever . . . Bella and Sam Spewack, authors of "Boy Meets Girl," leave for New York this week. They will write a play with music for Max Gordon. The music will be by Jerome Kern . . . James Stewart, one of the screen's new favorites, and Kay English, the Metro stock player, have been going places . . . John Mosby, the patent medicine man, is in Hollywood, and his new gal friend is Lucielle Thayer, a copper heiress . . . Clifford Odets, now at Lake Arrowhead working on his flicker with Director Lewis Milestone, phones Tess Slesinger . . . At Metro they now call Tess "Waiting for Slessinger" . . . Gene Fowler is really the poet laureate of Hollywood and his new poem, "The Testament of a Dying Ham," is the greatest indictment of the movie town ever penned . . .

Delaney Wins Fight From Ketchell

Nicky Scores Surprise Second-Round K. O. Over Anderson.

By Bill McCormick.

AL DELANEY, Buffalo "White Hope," was tossed in with an animated punching bag for eight rounds at Turner's Arena last night—and, the punching bag snapped back in surprising fashion, Delaney won, and the near-capacity crowd of more than 2,000 saw another good fight.

Delaney won every round but the sixth on The Post scoresheet, and that was given to Ketchell more or less as an act of charity. Despite Delaney's overwhelming margin of victory, Ketchell kept plodding in, remained always a threat, always rough and always giving the customers a very long run for their money.

The winner fought the perfect fight, excepting for one important thing—he did not follow up when he had Ketchell out on his feet and wobbly, which happened several times during the engagement.

During all this Ketchell kept shuffling hopelessly in, swinging both hands from the floor in wild blows that only once and awhile landed on the elusive person of the Buffalo Belter. As the rounds passed into history and Delaney began to wilt after the fashion of 20-year-old fighters who are not attuned to the long route, Ketchell staged brief rallies in which he seemed destined to upset the highly regarded Buffalo lad, but always Al's superior strength, natural fighting ability and punch turned the tide back in his favor.

Softens Up Rival.

As early as the first round Delaney had Ketchell in a bad way as the result of a short right to the head, but he lacked the experience—or the inclination—to finish Billy. In almost every round after that Al had the loser softened up for the knockout wallop which he failed to apply.

The sixth, Ketchell's best round, found Billy answering the bell with a rush as he tossed a venomous left and right cross to the chin, which caused Al to clinch desperately. Ketchell pounded away at Delaney person for about a minute before Al finally mapped into a two-fisted attack which came within a punch or two of evening the round.

Nichy Wins By K. O.

Billy Nichy, Pittsburgh heavyweight, scored a surprising and sensational second round knockout over the highly regarded Ernie Anderson, of, Flint, Mich., in a semi-final scheduled for six rounds. On the verge of being stopped himself in the first round, Nichy dropped Anderson for the full count with a right which terminted the fight in 1 minute and 15 seconds of the second round.

In the six-round preliminary, Bobby Dechter, Philadelphia lightweight piloted by former District heavyweight Natie Brown, scored handily over Joe Doty, also of Washington, to take a unanimous decision.

In a brace of fours, Tony Livingstone scored a first round technical knockout over Buster Wages, and Harry Thompson did the same thing to Jack Robinson. The Livingstone bout terminted when Wages' seconds tossed in the towel at the count of seven over their charge. Robinson injured his hand in the first round and was unable to answer the bell for the second.

Rinaldi Will Play Picked Loop Five

At 1:30 Rinaldi Tailors, winners of the Heurich Cup Series, will play an aggregation of picked players who starred for the various clubs in the Heurich Amateur League.

Second place in league play will be at stake at 2:30, when Delaware & Hudson and Resettlement Administration clash. The D. & H. club has but to win this game to gain the silver cup and silver basketballs donated by Chris Heurich, jr., to the second placing outfit.

Should Resettlement win, it can take the runner-up title away from D. & H. by a second win over the coalmen. The Heurich Pros' opponent will be announced later.

Wake Forest Bows, 45-18, to G. W.

Tribute Is Paid Leemans as Colonial Five Ends Fine Season.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE greatest basketball team and athlete in George Washington University's history bowed out of the 1936 sports picture last night before an audience of some 500 fans, who saw their favorites grind out a perfunctory 49-to-18 victory over a big and rugged, albeit impotent, Wake Forest quintet.

The greatest team, Kiesel, Leemans, O'Brien, et al, occupied itself with chasing Wake Forest from one end of the court to the other, making baskets with great gusto all the while. The greatest athlete, Alphonse (Tuffy) Leemans, joined in the chase and managed to contribute 7 points to the scoring column.

The scoring bench would have been a paradise for a budding accountant, what with noting fouls committed, made and missed, and the field goals that were flung around with great abandon. But it was a fairly interesting game withal.

Tribute Paid Leemans.

Just before the second half opened, Jim Pixlee, director of athletics, borrowed the timekeeper's Swiss horn and almost blew himself a stroke of apoplexy summoning Leemans to the middle of the court. There, while the greatest athlete tried furiously to erase the crossline with his right foot, Pixlee paid tribute to him. It was brief but eloquent.

"Lest we should forget," he said, "Tuffy Leemans is participating in his last game of varsity sport for the university tonight. He is without doubt the greatest athlete we've ever had here and the grandest fellow I've ever worked with and I think he deserves a hand."

The crowd evidently thought so, too. It was five minutes before apple-cheeked Joe Mitchell and his brother, Orrel, the officials, could get the teams under way, so loud and long was the applause.

Applauded Furiously.

Leemans evidently thought he should help Pixlee make good on his statement and he went out and got those seven points, each of which was the signal for another outburst of handclapping. He finally gave way to a substitute with one minute of play left, jogging to the showers amid another rain of applause.

George Washington led at half time, 16-10, but Coach Bill Reinhart sent his men out for the second half with instructions to get going, and they did. Almost eight minutes elapsed before the Deacons added their eleventh point and George Washington, meanwhile, had boosted its own total to 28. From then on it was just a gale, with George Washington adding up points like a book machine.

The Nats Have Landed in Orlando and Have the Situation Well in Hand

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 24.

AS USUAL, there are a lotta guys named Joe in and around the training camp Clark Griffith has set up here for his Washington ball club and they have no more chance of making good in the big leagues than I have, and I couldn't get one over the plate with a bird gun.

POVICH.

They always turn up, unasked, unsolicited, usually hitch-hiking their way after having won some small fame on the sandlots somewhere and letting their imaginations and their ambitions play hob with them. They show up at the ball park, are scorned and insulted by the clubhouse boys who give 'em uniforms on orders from the higher-ups, are permitted to work out for a day, maybe two, and sent on their way.

It's a fact—anybody can get a tryout with a big league ball club. Owners and managers, who tell you in one breath that none of these hitch-hikers or imaginative kids ever made good in the big leagues, still like to play that long chance and they'll take a look at anybody in uniform. One look is usually sufficient and vows are made that this foolishness won't be permitted again, but the next season owners and managers become imaginative, too, and any kid who turns up gets a once-over.

Not within the memory of Clark Griffith, whose baseball span now covers 50 years, has any lad ever walked into a training camp unasked and displayed enough talent to warrant a contract. The closest thing to that kind of a case Griffith says occurred back in 1915 when, as a publicity stunt, he advertised in the classified columns of The Washington Post for four young pitchers to work out with the Senators and among the group who answered the ad was Jack Bentley, who later was sold by the Baltimore Orioles to the New York Giants for $75,000.

Except in isolated cases, it's a long haul in baseball for the kid with big league ambitions. Rare is the lad who makes the big jump from the sandlots to the majors as George Uhle did for the Cleveland club. The hop from college baseball is almost as big, though two of the game's most famed stars—Eddie Collins and Frankie Frisch—were from the campus when plucked by big league teams.

An apprenticeship in the minor leagues where they develop action, poise and baseball sense is a prerequisite to a big league debut, and this department vows it's not far wrong when it says that 99 per cent of all big leaguers served in the minors before they got their big league chance.

In uniform they're an ill-kempt lot, these lads who haven't had minor league experience, and some never acquire the knack of wearing a big league monkey suit until they've spent years in the minors. You can spot hicks by the angle of their caps, the billows in their pants, the distinct minor league business where their baseball socks meet their trousers. It's a baseball adage that every good ball player looks well in his uniform which may be dirt-smeared and torn, but which he knows how to wear.

And in the same manner you never know from a guy's appearance in civilian clothes how he is gonna look in uniform. He can look like an Adonis in mufti but in baseball flannels he's apt to personify all the class of Seth Perkins of Pumpkin Center. My idea of a swell-looking ball player in uniform who appears to be every inch a big leaguer when he has on his monkey suit is Ossie Bluege, but in civilian clothes, Bluege looks like something less than a guy who has just stepped out of a Bond street toggery.

In Short—

Jimmy DeShong actually makes you believe he is glad to get away from the Yankees, who traded him to the Nats . . . He says the Yanks have more than their share of prima donnas, that you speak to Lou Gehrig only when spoken to and unless you're a big-shot star you never get a chance to pitch . . . Connie Mack, who released DeShong at the age of 18 to the Sacramento club in 1929, persuaded him to stay in baseball against his notion to quit the game . . . The caliber of the volley ball games the Nats stage at the finish of their morning workouts has dropped considerably as the result of the release of Bob Burke, the greatest volley ball player the team ever had . . . Burke, who had a nine-year tryout with Washington, is currently trying to buy his release from Albany and sign with the St. Louis Browns, who picked up Tommy Thomas, another Washington castoff . . . Whenever Jake Powell and Jimmy DeShong meet at golf it will be a classic . . . They haven't been on the fairway in a week's play here and reach every green by the great circle route popularized by Lindbergh.

Red Sox Farms To Be Headed By Evans

Naming Indicates Yawkey Plans to Develop Future Players.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—Billy Evans, former Cleveland baseball executive and a veteran American League umpire, was made director of all of the Boston Red Sox's minor league operations tonight by General Manager Eddie Collins.

His appointment indicated that owner Tom Yawkey plans widespread changes in his farm team system, which now includes only ownership of the Rocky Mount Club in the Piedmont League, working agreements with Syracuse in the International League and Little Rock and Memphis in the Southern Association.

Although Collins refused to disclose the club's immediate farm plans, reports were that Yawkey, who has spent millions purchasing tested stars for the Red Sox, would develop future players by operating a system similar to the famous St. Louis chain.

To Direct Scouting.

Evans, according to Collins, also will direct the Red Sox scouting activities, as he did at Cleveland, where he discovered such outstanding stars as Joe Vosmik, Earl Averill, Wes Ferrell, current Boston pitching ace, and Dick Porter.

Evans, who has been in professional baseball for about 30 years started out as an umpire in the old Ohio-Penn League. He was such a success that he was immediately signed by the American League, where he officiated for more than 20 years. He became general manager of the Cleveland Indians five years ago and recently he resigned that position because of salary differences.

Roosevelt High Trims Gonzaga Team, 27-17

Roosevelt High's runners-up for the interhigh basketball championship added a 27-17 victory over Gonzaga High to their impressive 1935-36 record yesterday at the Roosevelt gymnasium. The Rough Riders doubled the score on the private school team in the first half, enabling Coach Herman Littman to use his entire squ ad of ten men.

Gonzaga likewise used its entire personnel in an effort to nalt the run-away. Only in the first quarter did Gonzaga battle the Gold close to evenly. Roosevelt led, 6-4, going into the second quarter and 14-7 at half-time. The lead was stretched to 22-11 by the close of the third quarter.

Helen Wills Excused From Duty on Jury

San Francisco, Feb. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, pleading she intended to defend her Wimbledon tennis crown in England this summer and needed all the time possible to practice, was excused from jury duty today by Superior Court Judge Lyle T. Jacks. Her name was drawn while she was in New York recently.

Baseball Game in Tie.

Key West, Feb. 24 (AP).—Cuba's navy baseball team and the Key West All-Stars played a scoreless tie in a nine-inning game here today in the first of a five-game series. Key West collected four hits to Cuba's three.

Bids Wired Two Baers For a Fight in Garden

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, today wired Max and Buddy Baer offers to meet the winner of the Primo Carnera-Isidor Gastanaga heavyweight match, scheduled for March 6 in the Garden.

Baer was quoted last week as planning a comeback. However, if he is not serious about it, Johnston hopes Buddy Baer will take the fight.

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 24 (AP).—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max and Buddy Baer, said today his reply will be "no" to the messages of James J. Johnson, Madison Square Garden promoter, offering to match either of the Baers against the winner of the Carnera-Castagna heavyweight fight next month.

"Max at present is in no condition for a fight, but he is continuing his gymnasium work," said Hoffman. "As for Buddy, he is only 20 years old, and I am going to nurse him along with four-round fights for some time to come. My answer is going to be 'no' to the combination offer."

Didrikson and Partner Beat Mrs. Vare, Ruth

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 24 (U.P.). Babe Didrikson, teamed with Lloyd Gullickson, local professional, today defeated National Woman's Champion Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, and Babe Ruth in an exhibition golf match. Gullickson and Babe won, 6 and 4.

Gullickson was low, with a 76 for the 18 holes. The two Babes had cards of 79 and Mrs. Vare finished with 82.

Herman Holding Out —Against Sea Voyage

During a visit to the Chicago Cub training camp today, Herman told his former mates that the offered salary didn't bother him nearly as much as the Reds' program to train at Puerto Rico. He said he would train out here and probably sign his contract when the Reds return to Florida.

Leiber, Holdout, Gets Final Bid From Giants

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—The New York Giants will make no further efforts to come to terms with Hank Leiber, holdout outfielder, Horace Stoneham, president of the club, said today.

"We have made him our best and last offer. We are so far apart it is useless to negotiate further unless Leiber wants to sign at our figure," he said.

Canzoneri Faces Halaiko.

Hafey Desires A Comeback In Minors

By the Associated Press.

WALNUT CREEK, Calif., Feb. 24.—Chick Hafey, once a batting king of baseball, is ready to try a comeback in a manner unbelievably strange—with a minor club.

Instead of immediately rejoining the Cincinnati Club, which own his contract, Hafey wants to come out of voluntary retirement as a Pacific Coast League player, preferably with the San Francisco Seals.

Tanned to the color of leather through months of outdoor work on his 26-acre ranch near here, Hafey rubbed a big hand through a stubble of whiskers today as he outlined his idea.

Suggested Trying Out.

"Manager Charley Dressen of Cincinnati wrote suggesting I go to Arizona and dry out for a couple of months," Hafey related. "He said I wouldn't have to report to the club until the middle of May, when the rainy season is over.

"I would like to try myself out around here if it could be arranged. I could go to camp with a Coast League team, work into condition and start the season with the idea of playing a few games a week and acting as a pinch hitter."

The rangy be-spectacled outfielder, who starred in the National League for ten years and led the hitters in 1931, has virtually recovered from illness which forced him to leave Cincinnati suddenly last May.

Low Prices to Prevail At Guard Boxing Show

The same low prices that prevailed when the National Guard boxing shows were held in the Armory will prevail when the guardsmen move their next show to Turner's Arena March 4.

Ringside chairs are being sold for 75 cents and all other seats, including reserved ringside elevated locations, are scaled at 40 cents.

High Mark in Trials Set by Indianan's Dog

Grand Junction, Tenn., Feb. 24 (AP). Dr. Willing, big white and lemon pointer owned by L. D. Johnson, of Evansville, Ind., set a high mark over a muddy eight-mile course today for 24 other blue-blooded dogs entered in the National Championship Bird Trials.

Griffith Firm in His Offer of $9,000

'He Can Retire for All I Care,' Owner Asserts; Cites Record.

By Shirley Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 24.—Up in Hartsville, S. C., Buck Newsom, the pitcher the Washington club paid $40,000 for in 1935, is threatening to stay out of baseball this season unless Clark Griffith meets his salary demands to the fullest. The Washington Post learned today.

Repying to a telegram sent him by this correspondent today after Griffith declared that Newsom had been informed not to report to training camp unless he was ready to sign a contract, the big pitcher telegraphed the following statement:

"As to whether I play this year absolutely is left to Mr. Griffith. I will not play for less than I told him. Can probably make that much here. Sorry we can't get together. Regards—Buck Newsom."

Most Stubborn Case.

Thus Griffith, who has been the author of countless salary ultimatums to his ball players during the last 35 years, himself was the recipient of one today. The big, loquacious pitcher, now bristling with defiance in the salary argument, appears to be Griffith's most stubborn hold-out case, a fact which Griffith himself predicted last week.

Newson and Griffith are $3,000 apart on the salary question, according to the Nat owner's admission. His offer to Newsom for 1936 was $9,000 and the pitcher is demanding $12,000, Griffith says.

Given 1935 Raise.

"Why, Newsom was drawing only $5,500 when I bought him from the Browns last June," said Griffith. "I gave him a $2,000 raise immediately and his 1936 contract calls for $1,500 more than he was getting last year. At that figure he will be as highly paid as any pitcher on the club, but he's insane if he thinks I will pay him $12,000.

"Look at his record—as far as games lost goes he had the worst record of any pitcher in the league with 18 defeats and 13 wins. On the basis of those figures, he's overpaid at the offer I made him, but I know he's a better pitcher than that. But $12,000? Bosh. He can stay in Hartsville and retire for all I care."

Newsom's threat to stay out of the game is not taken seriously by Griffith, of course, but the big pitcher's demands presage a bitter and long-drawn contract battle. Griffith intimated tonight that Newsom would be able to earn more than $9,000 on a bonus basis if he won more than 15 games. But with the Nats crying for pitching strength, Newsom is in a choice spot to enforce most of his demands.

Five Still Unsigned.

The Nats' unsigned players still number five, with Griffith unconcerned about the prospects of signing the others. Buddy Myer, reputed to have asked for a salary double the $10,000 he was drawing in 1935, has been offered $12,000, according to Griffith, and the Nats' owner expects him to sign at that figure.

Griffith anticipates no difficulty in signing Earl Whitehill despite the veteran southpaw's dilatory tactics. Whitehill's contract contains a bonus clause and the two are expected to reach an agreement within a few hours after Whitehill reports to camp.

Outfielder Johnny Stone, offered the same salary he drew in 1935, is demanding a $1,000 increase, but Griffith is in no mood to oblige him as a result of Stone's lethargic play of last season. Never before has the club experienced trouble in

Mishap Ends Ski Career of Hall

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—The ski-jumpin career of Henry Hall, who rocketed into international prominence in the sport 19 years ago with the first leap of more than 200 feet ever recorded, apparently was at an end today as the result of another 200-foot jump.

The 43-year-old jumper is in a hospital with a broken hip, fractured breast bone, and a brain concussion suffered in a spill Sunday after a leap from the 130-foot tower he built at Brighton, near here.

Hall, eldest of the six Hall brothers of ski-jumping fame, made a perfect landing, but one ski struck a soft spot, the dread of all riders. The ski snapped, the tip striking Hall as he was catapulted down the steep landing hill.

"Only an accident like this would make him give up riding," said his wife, business manager for the Michigan Ski Club, for which her husband promoted meets at Brighton. "He said before climbing the tower that conditions were just right for a 200-foot jump and that because wind and snow conditions had prevented one of that distance before this winter he was determined to show the crowd it could be done."

Hall, who, physicians said, may be confined to a wheel chair for months, was principally responsible for the rapid growth in popularity of the ski-jumping sport here and for years was one of the country's foremost riders. In 1916 he won the national championship.

Venzke, Cunningham Renew Track Rivalry on March 14

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Gene Venzke and Glenn Cunningham will renew their record-breaking foot-race rivalry in the Columbian mile of the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square Garden March 14.

Frank Brennan, director of the K. of C. meet, said today he had received the entries of Venzke, who won the A. A. U. 1,500-meter race Saturday night in world-record time of 3:49.9, and Cunningham, who was clocked in 3:50.1, four-tenths of a second under his own former record.

Plans are afoot to make it a three-man race, with Joe Mangan returning to action. Mangan, forced out of the N. Y. A. C. and A. A. U. meets because of influenza, still is confined to the infirmary at Cornell University, where he is a law student.

If Mangan still is unable to match strides with the rivals he defeated in the Wanamaker mile in a 4:11 performance at the Millrose games three weeks ago, Brennan will invite Bill Daly, University of Detroit runner, who finished third behind Cunningham Saturday night, and Harry Williamson, of the University of North Carolina.

Rinaldi-Senates Meet in A. A. U. Feature at Heurich Tonight

Large Crowd Expected at Game

J. C. C. Takes Thriller; G-Men, D. & H. Win in Tournament.

DELAWARE & HUDSON, one of the favored teams, entered the third round of the District A. A. U.-Washington Post basketball championships last night with a smashing 44-26 victory over Latter Day Saints at the Heurich Gym.

Rinaldi Plays Tonight.

Tonight marks the debut in the championship games of the high-powered Rinaldi Tailors, who will meet the Heurich Senates in the feature of the triple-header program at Heurich's Gym at 9:30. A capacity crowd is expected.

Department of Agriculture and Central Y. M. C. A., both of whom triumphed by large scores in opening-round games last week, will battle at 8:30, in another unlimited contest.

Police Boys' Club and Terrapins, 145-pound teams, will open the card at 7:30.

While Rinaldi is favored to defeat the Heurich boys, the game promises to be close and hotly contested. The Senates eliminated Bliss Electrical School last Friday, 48-42. The Tailors, coached by Davey Keppel, have won something like 44 out of 48 games, while the Senates also have an impressive record.

Cliff Keyser and Bobby Lucas, forwards; Bill Noonan, center, and Sammy Hook and Ollie Tipton, guards, will make up the starting Rinaldi line-up. Heurich will rely on Anthony Latona, Huck Cavanaugh, Paul Adkinson, Fred and Lou Scheele, and Frank Williams.

Basketball Chairman Winfree Johnson announced a change in the unlimited schedule for this week. The George Washington University freshmen one of the seeded teams, will play Mount Vernon tomorrow night at 8:30 at Heurich in the feature game instead of Friday night. The Bureau of Investigation Whites-Ramblers game originally scheduled for tomorrow night has been shifted to Friday night at 9:30.

Harry (Doc) Fiedesop, official weigher-in, has requested the two 145-pound teams playing tonight to appear at the gym at 7 p. m., to weigh in.

That Man's Here

SERGEI KALMIKOFF, bewhiskered pride of the Steppes who wrestles Joe Cox at Turner's Thursday night, is shown being all puffed up about something.

Sergei Natural On Mat and In Movies

Bearded Wrestler Grunts and Growls Fluidly in Three Languages.

WHEN you see a newsreel shot of a wrestling match in which one of the gentlemen concerned has the physique of a Man Mountain Dean, the beard of a mattress and the pantomime of a Chaplin—that is Sergei Kalmikoff, whose face probably has adorned more miles of celluloid than any other grappler. For, Sergei, who meets Joe Cox at Turner's Arena next Thursday night, not only is a natural on the mat, but a natural in the pictures as well.

Sergei can turn on—or off—at will practically every expression ever devised, and he keeps turning those expressions on and off for the edification of the customers, who have made him the biggest favorite in New York. Nor is Kalmikoff's art entirely confined to pantomime. He groans and grunts very fluidly in English, Russian and the Scandinavian.

Strongely enough, Kalmy also is some shucks as a wrestler, knowing practically every hold ever discovered and employing them very skillfully. About the only certain way of beating him that has yet been invented is to pull his beard—a strategy that has cost him most of the few bouts he has lost and some self-respect.

Sleuth Pinmen Victors Over Printers

BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION'S representatives in the Federal Bowling League took the odd game from G. P. O. in an odd match rolled last night at the Arcadia alleys.

The Printers blasted the maples for a total of 1,802 pins—high team set for the evening, and Jerry Cowden, a member of the team, shot 165 for high game and finished with a set of 418, also high for the night. But Investigation, by persistent, if not brilliant bowling, managed to amass 636 pins in its final game—second highest score of the season—to clinch the decision.

The team standing remained unchanged, with National Capital Parks retaining command by clinching the odd game from Navy Yard. I. B. E. W., challenger for the No. 1 position, suffered a two-game set back from the G. P. O. (Union Printers) and Investigation's two victories left it within one game of second place. Highway Department, one game out of fourth place, was defeated twice by the last place I. C. C. quint and Veterans Administration gained the only three-game verdict by trouncing Public Schools.

Despits Tom Galleher's set of 389, the second highest in the Navy Department League, the second place Hydrographic team bowed twice to the leading S. & R. crew last night at Arcadia. The pacesetters scattered the maples for a 576 game and 1661 set which were tops for the night. Joe Gauzza, of Navigation, splintered the duckpins to the tune of a 160 game.

Bowlers under an average of 118 will be given an opportunity to win some spending money next Saturday at the Takoma alleys in the second annual rolling of the "Dutch" Sherbahn Handicap sweepstakes. The entrance fee is $5 and includes the cost of competing in the ten-game stretch. The stakes will be divided into two blocks, the final being scheduled for the following Saturday.

Congressman to Try Dollar-Tossing Feat

REPRESENTATIVE AUBERT C. DUNN.

'I Think Any Fellow Like Me Can Throw Farther Than Johnson Did,' Representative Dunn Asserts; Will Begin 'Practice' Today.

By Ben Dulaney.

The cartwheel pitching diadem, held for some years by a Mr. G. Washington until Walter Johnson showed him up last Saturday as 10,000 cheered, is now being sought by Representative Aubert C. Dunn, of Mississippi. The new aspirant claims that any citizen in good health should be able to duplicate the feat and that he, himself, within the week confidently expects to toss the buck farther than Johnson's heave of about 315 feet.

"I'm not betting on myself," Dunn said in the House gymnasium yesterday as he flexed his 6 feet 2 inches of brawn, "but I certainly advise anyone else to do so. I'm so confident I'm even borrowing the $3 from the Treasury."

The whole cash-throwing-away business started last week, when Representative Sol Bloom stood to lose $100,000 if the former great pitcher could stand on the river bank at Fredericksburg and duplicate Washington's reputed act. The bet fell through because Bloom insisted that the first President sailed the dollar some 1,700 feet, while the present width of the stream is but 275. All wagers were off, but the throng gathered just the same to marvel as the speedball hurler sped one buck spang into the water and two more to the opposite bank.

"I'm a former pitcher myself and a great admirer of Walter's," said Dunn, "but I am firmly convinced that I can better his record. Serious practice begins at once."

So today at 9:30 a. m. Dunn and his secretary, Lawrence Bouligny, will repair to East Potomac golf course and begin a little scientific work with the borrowed bucks. "We'll start at 25 feet, then 50 and 75 and so on up," he explained. "In that way I can get the technique and gradually work for distance. But I won't really let loose until I'm down there in Fredericksburg ready to go.

"I realize that I'm up against a mechanically perfect arm—that right one that Johnson has—but I believe that I can do it. Strength, of course, is important, but timing is the real thing.

"I don't know whether I'll sail or toss," Dunn said, "I'm just going to throw."

Pitcher at Alabama.

Dunn came here this year from the Fifth District of Mississippi. Before that he was district attorney in his home town of Meridian and before that he pitched for the University of Alabama. He once got an offer from the Cincinnati Reds. He weighs 205 pounds and is 37 years old.

"Understand, I'm not trying to show Johnson up," he concluded. "Next to Christy Mathewson, whom I knew personally, I believed he's the greatest pitcher that ever lived. I just think any fellow like me can throw a dollar farther than Walter did."

Dunn is a strictly amateur dollar-tosser although he throws a baseball almost every day in the gym. Once, he avers, he hurled one 275 feet without any trouble.

The exhibition has been tentatively set for Thursday or Friday, thereby giving believers and disbelievers time to get their bets down.

Mrs. Dowdall Named Golf Chairman

Will Succeed Mrs. Miller as Tourney Leader; Fee Plan Voted.

By Dave Herman.

MRS. JOSEPH F. DOWDALL, of Congressional Country Club, yesterday was appointed tournament chairman of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association at a special meeting of the executive committee at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments.

Mrs Dowdall, who has been active in District golf circles for the last ten years, succeeds Mrs. R. C. Miller. Named as vice chairman was Mrs. R. S. Thompson, of Army and Navy Country Club.

The District team captaincy was awarded Mrs. B. C. Hartig, of Columbia. Her assistant will be Mrs. N. J. Waldron.

Tourney Site Urged.

The executive committee, of which Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, of Congressional, is chairman, recommended to the tournament committee that the District championship be held at Congressional. Last season's tournament, in which Miss Winifred Faunce, of Manor, won her second straight title, was conducted at Indian Spring. Congressional, next in line, is almost certain to land it. Dates early in June are likely to be chosen.

Beaver Dam was recommended for the Star Cup.

Approved by a unanimous vote was the three-team plan for the District team matches, with four-ball foursomes instead of Scotch foursomes to prevail. Congressional, Chevy Chase, Columbia, Army and Navy and Kenwood stated they would place three teams in the field this season Manor will have a first and second team; Woodmont, a first and third team; Beaver Dam, a second and third team; Indian Spring a first team and Washington a second team. Thus there will be 8 first teams, 8 second teams and 7 third teams competing.

New Fee Plan Voted.

The new tournament fee plan, whereby a $4 season's ticket for playing in all association tournaments would be sold to contestants, also was written into the books by a unanimous vote. This, the committee pointed out, would cure one of the association's budget ills.

Home-and-home matches with Richmond and Baltimore will be booked. A newcomer on the schedule will be Hagerstown, Md., which has asked the District association for dates.

On March 30 the association will hold an important meeting at which time the schedule for the season will be drafted.

Tournament chairman, Mrs. J. F. Dowdall (Congressional); vice chairman, Mrs. R. S. Thompson (Army and Navy).

District team captain, Mrs. B. C. Hartig (Columbia); assistant, Mrs. N. J. Waldron (Beaver Dam).

Second team captain—Mrs. E. A. Rule (Kenwood); assistant, Mrs. E. M. Amick (Columbia).

Year book, Mrs. R. E. Burks (Congressional).

Prizes—Chairman, Mrs. H. L. Simcoe (Manor); assistant, Mrs. G. C. Roney.

Publicity—Meetings and tournament, Mrs. J. H. Bullock (Indian Spring).

Team matches—Mrs. N. J. Waldron.

Although seldom out of the money, the son of Diavolo had disappointed many times, this being the second triumph of his career. He covered the 8 furlongs in 1.37 flat, to win by a length and a half in a drive.

F. J. Buchanan's Trebor, a forward contender from the break, held on to the place, a length better than Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jamboree. The latter closed a slight choice over the winner, which paid $9.20 in an open betting race.

Florida Derby Hopefuls.

All in the field except the dull-running Miss Bab—Play Chance, Greek Idol and Free Spirit—were named for the Florida Derby.

Ceiling outran Trebor into the final furlong, with Jamboree not far behind. Ira Hanford brought Faust from well off the pace and got through on the inside at the turn for home. The colt pounded down along the inner rail, picked up the leaders nearing the sixteenth pole and won going away. Trebor held on well to beat Jamboree, while Ceiling stopped to fourth position.

Dear Al:

Time Supply was close, fellows. But they were not pitching horseshoes, so close didn't count. And before letting that Santa Anita thing drop, I'll say that I was tickled by the West Coast sports writers who claimed that henceforth the Kentucky Derby must play second fiddle to that Santa Anita Handicap. I don't care if they raise the purse to $300,000 and run giraffes instead of horses, the Derby will still be the Derby, and it can't be trumped. California raises the biggest oranges, the biggest lemons, the biggest cabbages and, unless I'm mistaken, the biggest "suckers." I haven't seen it printed since the big race, so there may be some interest in how Top Row got his name. His pop's name was Peanuts and his ma's was Too High. So they called the colt Top Row, indicating peanut gallery. Good time, California; better time, Florida. BILL.

First race—Lookabout has shown some fair form and I would not be surprised if he took this sprint at good odds. Johnny Cake and Our Crest will be ready if the top one makes mistakes.

Second race—Bravo Caruso has had numerous chances to graduate. However his opposition continues to get cheaper. Despite the fact that he breaks from the inside, I'm going to string along. Lady Marlboro and Hildur Queen to take care of the others.

Third race—Granny's Trade goes postward with 116 pounds but I see no reason for mistakes. Kawagoe is speedy when in a running mood. Light weight makes Miss Subway a possibility.

Fourth race—Portden carries top weight of 120 pounds here but he is a sharp horse and deserves top ranking. Broad Meadows for the place and the feather-weighted Toano to show. The last named might awake to take it all.

Fifth race—Torita will like this long sprint route. She has worked well and gets my call. Naughty and Fairisk seem headed for money positions.

Sixth race—Pot au Brooms, asked to carry only 103 pounds, may be the one to catch in this field. Coequel and Laughing Sun to divide the remainder of the spoils.

Seventh race—Tragedian is the logical choice in the day's turf event. John D. will appreciate the distance and may go well on the grass. Stumptown, the rascal, could fool me by scoring.

Eighth race—The We-Beat-Each-Other Club has a meeting in the days finale. I'll take War Pledge, Jezreel and Happy Flag.

FIRST BID, permitted to gain his best stride before moving into contention, saved ground roundings the final bend, then, finishing resolutely when taken to the outside in the stretch run, wore the leaders down inside the final sixteenth. COMBAHEE in the stretch run, wore the leaders down inside the final sixteenth. COMBAHEE went well placed from the beginning, rallied strongly after being rated for six furlongs and held on determinedly after joining the pacemaker at the stretch turn. AIRFORCE, in trouble going into the final turn, gained racing room thereafter and finished full of run on the outside.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOWO, $17.80, $6.70, $4.90; STORY TIME, $5.00, $3.30; BUTTERMILK, $4.80.

WOWO raced straight and true along the inside after getting into a forward position, rallied under vigorous urging approaching the finish and was up in the last strides. STORY TIME, away in the first flight, came over and crowded his field after the opening sixteenth, swerved repeatedly inside the closing furlong and held on stubbornly under vicious punishment. BUTTERMILK was stoutly ridden while holding a forward position and was gaining steadily nearing the end.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:26. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Winner, Mrs. Mildred J. White's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JODA, $15.40, $8.10, $5.40; WHITE GINGER, $20.70, $8.00; FOUR SPOT, $4.20.

JODA, avoiding interference while racing on the outside of the field, moved up willingly to reach a contending position at the final turn, came strongly during the stretch drive and wore WHITE GINGER down in the last 20 yards. WHITE GINGER shook off BLACK FALCON after reaching the homestretch, responded to punishment and fought it out with excellent courage. FOUR SPOT fought his way through tight quarters midway of the homestretch and was gaining steadily at the close.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:57. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Winner, A. G. Tarn's br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BACK LOG, $15.40, $5.80, $3.80; SONGMAKER, $14.80, $6.30; BELOW ZERO, $3.10.

BACK LOG, squeezed back leaving the backstretch, recovered nicely to engage the leaders when reaching the homestretch, withstood a hard drive gamely and was up in the last 50 yards. SONGMAKER, slow to get going, circled his field and closed with a belated rush. BELOW ZERO had a lot taken out of her racing CHARACTER into submission and she faltered in the final drive after saving much ground.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. The Redlands. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:29½. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Winner, Miss A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREAT HASTE, $19.80, $5.00, $3.40; HIGH GLEE, $2.90, $2.40; COLONEL ED, $3.10.

GREAT HASTE, nicely handled and a keen factor in the early racing, took a slight lead midway of the homestretch, responded readily to vigorous pressure and outstayed HIGH GLEE. Latter, riders GLEE being outrun, raced close to the leaders after the five furlongs, rallied to punishment when straightened into the homestretch and was catching the winner slowly approaching the finish. COLONEL ED was rushed hard to gain a short advantage, saved ground all the way and continued strongly in the closing drive.

SIXTH RACE—One mile; allowances. The Fort Pierce. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds. Went to post at 4:56. Off at 5:00. Start good. Won driving; place same. Winner, Wheatley Stable's ch. c. FAUST, bettering his position steadily on the inside in the last half mile, rallied to severe punishment when reaching the home stretch, secured room on the inside of the leaders and drew out gradually after gaining the lead in the final sixteenth. TREBOR raced in his best form, followed close up from the beginning and held on strongly after moving to the front in the last furlong. JAMBOREE, rated close up in the first 6 furlongs, was placed to intermittent punishment in the final 5 sixteenths, but failed to better his position under a vigorous drive.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRANDON PRINCE, $8.50, $4.30, $3.20; MOTLEY, $7.10, $4.20; FOXIANA, $3.00.

BRANDON PRINCE outbroke his field, raced under slight reserve while going in improved fashion, gained strongly for the final drive when coming through on the inside and was up in the last 50 yards. MOTLEY, slow to get into full stride, had a lot taken out of him to reach the front and he weakened inside the final sixteenth mile. FOXIANA, rated closest to the early pacemaker, went up strongly when making her effort and held on courageously under punishment.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ORINOCO, $7.10, $4.60, $2.60; HIGHEST POINT, $3.70, $2.60; PALASA, $2.90.

ORINOCO, taken to the outside for the start, raced into the lead midway of the back stretch after breaking in the first flight, drew into a safe lead and had much in reserve at the finish. HIGHEST POINT, prominent all during the running, held on stubbornly to outstay PALASA in the final issue. The latter, slow to get into her best stride, obtained racing room on the inside rounding the final elbow, responded to punishment when coming to the outside in the stretch drive and finished stoutly.

General Motors Employes Get $11,000,000

Cash and Stock Represent Savings and Company Contribution.

New York, Feb. 24.—More than $11,000,000 in cash and General Motors common stock has been distributed to about 25,000 General Motors employes in factories and offices throughout the United States and Canada in the annual disbursement under General Motors Corporation's employes' savings and investment plan, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president, announced today.

Of the $11,000,000 total, $4,800,000 represented savings paid in by the employes during the year 1930 and the balance of $6,200,000 represented interest and General Motors common stock resulting from the corporation's contribution under the plan.

The distribution was the second largest in eleven years. The average amount received by each employe participating was $438. Those employes who participated to the full extent permitted under the plan received $691 in cash and securities.

Court Allows St. Paul Budget Of $9,344,423

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—An improvement budget of $9,344,423 for 1936 for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad was approved today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The line is in reorganization under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act.

O. W. Dykes, Milwaukee general counsel, petitioned Judge Wilkerson for approval of the budget, necessary, he said, for safe and economical operation. Expenditures in recent years, he said, had been kept at a minimum.

The money would be spent, he said, for new rails, building and repair of bridges, and the purchase of additional freight and passenger cars. He said about $660,000 was earmarked for air-conditioning equipment installations.

Present plans of the management are to finance the program in part through issuance of $3,500,000 of new equipment trust certificates.

Wheat Advances To Month's High

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Wheat rose a cent a bushel today to the highest price that with but a single exception the July future has reached since January 27. Uneasiness over dust storms in the American Southwest, together with buoyancy of markets at Liverpool and Winnipeg, was in large measure responsible. Trade reports from the dust-bowl region said a new series of "dusters" damaging to crops was feared.

Wheat closed firm at the same as Friday's finish to ⅝ higher; May, 99¼@99⅜; corn, ⅜@⅞ down; May, 60⅛@60¼; oats, ⅛@½ off, and provisions varying from 5 cents decline to an equal gain.

The Market

Stocks Dip to Lower Levels in Less Active Trading; Government Bonds Lower.

New York, Feb. 24.—Stock market speculators began to wonder what had kept them excited last week, and they made little effort either to go short of the market or to change their long positions. The market was allowed to drift, and more stocks lost a little than gained. Sales volume of 2,250,000 shares was the smallest in a month. May wheat closed a half cent higher at 99¼ cents a bushel.

Food and drink were in demand in the stock trading, but outside those groups, and the textiles, strength could be found only in a small number of miscellaneous stocks. Fractional losses were the rule for the motor accessory, mail order, rubber, oil and copper stocks. Silvers were weak, with prices drooping 1 to 3 points, United States Smelting heading the retreat. Amusements also were soft. Chemicals and equipments were mixed. American Locomotive and Baldwin were bid up to new high prices. Baldwin preferred jumped more than 3 points. Neither United States Steel nor others of that sector found more than temporary encouragement from the estimated rise in the steel industry's operating rate this week from 51.7 to 52.9 per cent of capacity.

Some Cheerful Spots.

American Can continued to disappoint its followers by sinking to a new low price, losing 2 points. It is currently quoted 20 points under the best price of last year. Standard Brands led the food stocks higher. National Dairy was strong. Stocks to move independently against the downward drift were Checker Cab, Yellow Truck, Celanese, Industrial Rayon, Midland Steel, New York Railways preferred and Cuban American Sugar.

In the motor division Chrysler held a point or so under last week's final sale. General Motors was weak. Utilities gave up a fraction to more than a point. Utility preferred shares dropped 1 to 2 points. Railroad shares had their first dose of profit taking. Great Northern backed up two points. Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, D. & H., Nickel Plate, Baltimore and Union Pacific weakened. Farm implements were firm.

Holidays abroad helped to stupefy the foreign exchanges. Dollars were a shade lower, but the easier quotations had no special significance. Government bonds softened a little more, probably because of the large new loans about to be made.

Stable Currency.

Recent events have quieted for the moment fears of an early outburst of inflation, and especially so in view of the reported intention of Congress to pass a measure heavily increasing taxes to provide for some of the various bonus payments. Markets are therefore beginning to take fresh stock of business influences likely to be exerted over the next few months. Without much statistical evidence on the point, the assertion frequently is made that the rapid pace of last autumn was not maintained in the early part of the first quarter of the new year, but spring with its usual expansion is near.

Among the principal influences is that of agriculture. So far as the farmers' ability to lay hands on ready cash is concerned, neither drought nor abundant crops is likely to change that much from last year, as in spite of the AAA decision of the Supreme Court, Congress is preparing to see to it that the farmer gets money, whether he produces too little or too much. Dust storms are beginning earlier than usual in the Southwest, but the probable effects are somewhat buried under the snowdrifts of the Northwest.

Export trade ought to be helped by the fact that the dollar to all practical purposes is stabilized, and by the increasing stability of foreign currencies. The whole business might be upset by wars abroad or by panicky inflation in the gold bloc countries, but that seems to be no likely possibility. On the domestic side two special forces are coming. One is the long-delayed building construction and railroad and factory repair and improvement. Early orders suggest much greater activity than a year ago. The other force is the spending of the bonus money.

Less Purchasing Power.

On that point the current issue of the Guaranty Trust Survey, basing its assumption on the raising of the cash through Treasury borrowing, thinks the money will be new purchasing power, and not that withdrawn from other sources. It will therefore act as a net addition to the current volume of demand for commodities, services, securities and so on. It says much of it will go into the building and automotive industries. The Guaranty economist warns that while the immediate effect may be beneficial, on the long run it will be unfortunate from an economic point of view.

Some will dispute the claim that the first effects will do much to help business. We are told that the excess reserves, which will be used by the banks as a basis for Treasury loans, were built up on shipments of gold from abroad, and to that extent the farmers will be getting cash based on a transfer of funds from Europe. Their gain ought to be offset by shorter rations for business abroad, i. e., for our foreign trade. The point is that the farmers are acquiring no new wealth or real purchasing power, for in the main they are producing less, and their only genuine purchasing power rests on what they produce.

Taxation.

Senator Byrd, of Virginia, would slap on a billion more in taxes, because, for one reason, he thinks it would be a good idea for the taxpayer to know what all these insane outpourings of money made by the New Dealers and braintrusters mean. The idea is all right, but the application probably will be all wrong. Taxpayers have realized from the beginning what it all meant and what it all would mean. Those who vote the taxes and who whoop it up for more spending are in the main people who never paid any direct taxes to amount to anything. What is needed is a change in the tax system so that the exempt classes will be brought face to face with an income tax blank instead of having their reading confined exclusively to bonus and benefit checks and to dissertations on the abundant life. They are trying to escape through advocacy of inflation, which, if they only realized it, in the long run will involve a far heavier cost to them—the people of low incomes—than any direct system of taxation possibly could do. Inflation may be the opium for the poor and the debtor class, but it carries with it a lethal after effect in the form of crushing living costs and prostration of industry.

Encouraging Speculation.

Chairman Landis of SEC has added his word to the many now being tossed about on the question of responsibility for speculative activity in the stock market. What he says has some bearing on the current discussion of what to do with the buying of stocks, which on the face of things seem to be overpriced, particularly as regards the disparity between common and preferred stocks figuring in reorganizations and in companies undergoing liquidation. It would, all agree, be highly undesirable either for SEC or the stock exchange to attempt to say what are proper values—that is a matter which only the all wise Congressmen seem fit to handle, with their farm price controls, and their attempts to manage money and commodity markets. What can be done on the part of the stock exchange, as many view it, is for the brokers (and many of them do) to live up to their proper responsibility and see to it that a customer be fully informed about the stocks which he buys through them. Mr. Landis touches on this point when he asserts that a good deal of the current rush to buy stocks is induced by customers' men, actuated solely by the desire for a large turnover. They may be partly to blame, but the fault really lies, if it is a fault, with their employers, the members of the stock exchanges, who get the major share of the commissions.

Changes.

Chairman Landis' philosophy of stock market control is now clear as crystal to all who read in his latest address that "our only mechanism is to induce change by inculcating the wish for change." Seems to be a sort of well diluted soup from the bowl formerly used by the late Federal Reserve Board in its credit control experience.

New York Life Policies Total 6.62 Billions

$209,593,512 Paid Last Year to Holders or Beneficiaries.

During 1935 the New York Life Insurance Co. paid or credited $141,602,272 to living policyholders and $67,991,240 to the beneficiaries of those who died, it is stated by Thomas A. Buckner, president, in the company's annual statement which appears today in this newspaper. "These huge disbursements," he added, "reflect the great social service rendered by this mutual company through the co-operative effort of its policyholders."

On December 31, 1935 the company had 2,672,636 policies in force giving insurance protection of more than $6,620,800,000 to homes, families and business interests. The amount of new insurance issued by the company during the year was $466,356,000. In addition, men and women paid $40,428,582 to the company for annuities to provide a guaranteed life income.

Assets at the close of 1935 totaled $2,243,587,652. This represents an increase of $134,082,528 over the previous year. Liabilities, which President Buckner stated included policy reserves calculated on the most conservative basis used by American life insurance companies, were $2,126,880,881. Included in the liabilities are a special investment reserve of $40,000,000 not required by law and reserves of $40,073,472 for dividends payable to policyholders in 1936. Surplus funds reserved for general contingencies amounted to $116,706,871.

Chicago Union Refunding.

Warm Weather Tumbles Eggs 8½c a Dozen

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 24 (AP).—Egg prices tumbled 8½ cents a dozen today, the sharpest break in the market veteran traders said they recalled. Warmer weather, stimulating the flow of eggs from country to market, prompted the decline.

Spot eggs were selling around 22½ to 23½ cents a dozen compared with 30 to 32 on Friday. Receipts totaled 17,325 cases.

During the prolonged cold weather egg prices scored spectacular gains because of greatly reduced production and crippled transportation facilities keeping market receipts at a minimum.

Butter prices also dropped back rather sharply. Cash butter was 1 to 1¾ cents lower, with extras selling at 35½ cents, compared with 37 cents last week, the highest in six years.

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Egg quotations in the New York market declined from 2 to 3½ cents a dozen today, with standard and commercial standard firsts down about 3 cents, to 33 cents a dozen. Today's decline brought the price of standard and commercial standard firsts down 6 cents a dozen from the recent high of 39 cents a dozen 10 days ago.

4.7 Billions Is Invested in Steel Industry

Cost of Financing Job Averages $11,500 Per Employee.

New York Feb. 24.—The total investment in the steel industry is $4,700,000,000, a survey by the American Iron & Steel Institute reveals. The average is $11,500 per employe. Expressed another way approximately $11,500 of capital is required to finance and maintain the average job for a steel worker. That amount represents the average cost of providing a worker with a place to work, tools to work with and materials to work on.

The manufacture of iron and steel products requires such a concentration of heavy, complicated machinery and such a large investment in raw materials, equipment and manufacturing lands, buildings and machinery that for each employe an average of $8,990 is required for the necessary real estate, buildings, machinery and other equipment.

Semi-finished materials and products, and current cash needs to provide a steady flow of materials and operation of plants pending time of shipment of finished products to customers, payrolls, taxes and other charges call for an average of $2,510 per steel worker, it is calculated.

Gov. Talmadge Ousts Two State Finance Heads

Executive Names Friends to Vacated Offices; Troops Back Order.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Feb. 24.—Gov. Eugene Talmadge ousted two State officials today on charges of misconduct in office for their refusal to honor warrants under the financial "dictatorship" he set up January 1.

National Guardsmen stood by as Adjutant Gen. Lindley Camp served the orders upon Comptroller General William B. Harrison and Treasurer George B. Hamilton, but none was in uniform and the papers quoted civil, not martial, law.

Talmadge immediately named two supporters to the offices, C. B. Carreker for Comptroller General and J. B. "Tobe" Daniel of La Grange, Ga., for treasurer, to obtain indorsement of a $139,000 board of control warrant Harrison and Hamilton had refused to honor.

Bond of $20,000 was supplied for Carreker and $200,000 for Daniel.

Employes Walk Out.

All treasury employes save one walked out as Hamilton was escorted from his office by Camp.

Other crises developed quickly in the Georgia political situation which forced Talmadge last week to cancel out-State speaking engagements against the Administration of President Roosevelt.

Harrison issued a statement "to the people of the State of Georgia," warning that "this unwarranted and illegal attempted assumption of my office by Mr. Carreker may subject those who pay taxes or other funds to him to double payment, as he has no lawful authority to receive them."

Legality Questioned.

Clement E. Sutton, Wilkes County legislator, advised tax collectors their bondsmen "can be held responsible" if funds are transmitted "to a person illegally placed" in the office of comptroller.

Georgians were divided sharply over the legality of Talmadge's plan for meeting State expenses with $7,500,000 in unspent appropriations of the last four years, in which he called upon the two finance officers by proclamation to honor drafts on 1936 revenue.

The removal orders, almost identical, were in the form of suspensions.

The order for removal of Hamilton alleged gross neglect of duties and conduct "plainly violative" of duty.

The financial "dictatorship" was brought on by the failure of the 1935 Legislature—in which the House was hostile to Talmadge—to pass an appropriations bill for the ensuing two years.

Talmadge declined to call a special session and his spokesmen asserted the State legislative machinery "has broken down."

Governor Grants Reprieve to Briton

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 14 (AP).—Alexander MacKay, British subject sentenced to be executed next Friday, was granted a 90-day reprieve today by Gov. Frank Merriam.

MacKay was convicted of participation in a San Quentin Prison break and kidnaping January 15, 1935. The British government asked clemency.

Gov. Merriam also granted a 90-day reprieve to Joe Kristy, another convict participant in the prison break. Kristy, a citizen of this country, has pending an appeal from the death sentence.

Admiral Byrd, Rested, To Open Lecture Tour

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 24 (AP).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, polar explorer, left here today to fill a lecture engagement in Oklahoma City, relatives said.

Nervous fatigue which kept the admiral in Dallas Sunday while reception committees awaited him in Oklahoma City, has lessened, they said.

No comment came from the White House or the Interior Department.

Talked to Committee.

Before the House sub-committee, Hagood had said in urging that $150,000,000 be appropriated for Army housing:

"At the present time there is a vast flow of silver—I won't say gold—spreading out all over the country like mud. It will soon dry up without anything permanent to show for it. I shall not be accused of profanity when I say, 'for God's sake, put some of it into stone and steel.'"

He continued by explaining that while he was not "familiar with the various pockets in which Uncle Sam keeps his money," he understood there was three classes of it under the present setup.

"A vast quantity of WPA money which is very easy to get for trifling projects, but is almost impossible to get for anything worth while."

He also remarked:

"It is harder for me to get 5 cents to buy a lead pencil than to get a thousand dollars to teach hobbies to CCC boys."

Apparently marked to succeed Gen. Hagood, Maj. Gen. Charles E. Kilbourne, now en route to this country from the Philippines, will likely be named commander of the Third Army and Eighth Corps. Gen. Kilbourne recently was ordered back from the islands to take over the command of the Second Division at Fort Sam Houston, but he will now be the senior general in that area.

Hagood, now eligible for retirement because of his more than 30 years' service, may await automatic retirement, it was believed, which comes about when he reaches the statutory age of 64 next year. His pay as a major general is $8,000 per year. On retirement he will receive two-thirds of that sum.

Chairman John P. McSwain (Democrat), of South Carolina, of the House Military Affairs Committee, said:

"My opinion of Gen. Hagood as an officer and a man has not been changed in the least. I'm sure that Gen. Hagood is capable of taking care of himself at the proper time. It seems that some of the best men in the Army sometimes get crossed up with the powers that be."

Hagood's Army record is long and distinguished, and was spotlighted on various occasions by his habit of vigorous statement of his beliefs. When Congress debated the problem whether to set the limit of alcoholic content for non-intoxicating beer at 2.75 or 3.2 per cent, Hagood, then commanding the Seventh Corps Area, described the 2.75 content as "mere bellywash."

He contended soldiers would not be satisfied with less than the larger content, and would continue patronizing bootleggers unless Congress relented.

He once also criticised the Government's "flyspecking system of accounting," in answer to auditors who discovered discrepancies in the subsistence records of enlisted men under his command and asked their trial before a military court.

He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1896, served in the Philippines and throughout this country, commanded the Seventh Regiment, First Expeditionary Brigade, Coast Artillery Corps, during the World War, and the artillery in the American Army of Occupation in Germany. He held three decorations, Distinguished Service (American), Legion of Honor Cross (French) and Order of the Crown of Italy (Italian).

Lewis Will Seek Money Without 'Strings' in Steel Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

Contending there were "strings attached" to the proposal, the American Federation of Labor's high command decided yesterday to disregard for the present an offer of $500,000 by the industrial union faction to help finance a campaign to organize steel workers.

William Green, A. F. of L. president, said he would refer the cash offer from eight unions represented on the committee for industrial organization to the May meeting of the executive council.

"I am now working out a budget for the steel campaign directed by the last convention," Green told reporters. "That campaign will start this spring.

To Ask Contributions.

"As soon as I complete the budget, I will ask every union in the federation—including those in the industrial union committee—to contribute money and organizers, with no strings attached."

In offering the $500,000, the industrial unionists specified "some of the main conditions which we consider necessary to the launching of a campaign." Among them was the proposal that "organization must be along industrial lines."

The committee for industrial organization was ordered dissolved by the A. F. of L., executive council at its January meeting. Defying this order, the committee decided last week to continue its fight to bring all workers in each big industry into one big union.

Opposes Craft Policy.

Headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, this faction is opposed by the group which contends that all workers should be organized by craft. The craft unionists now control the federation.

In enforcing the federation's craft policy, Green has often been called leader of the craft faction, although he privately is known to favor industrial unionism, and rose to the federation leadership from the mine workers.

About 12 craft unions claim a place in the steel industry. The leader of one of them, declining to be quoted by name, told reporters today they should ask Lewis whether he intended to surrender to a steel union the miners in the steel company coal mines. This leader said the answer would be an emphatic "no" and that the answer from the machinists, electricians, blacksmiths and other crafts would be just as emphatic.

Dog Finds Body of Boy Beneath Ice in Harbor

The boy disappeared yesterday. Police said they believed he fell while playing on the ice, became wedged between two floating cakes of ice and drowned.

The boy's father, Edward, police and neighbors had searched all night for the youngster. The dog, "Rusy," owned by a neighbor, led his master to the body. Workmen with picks and shovels freed the body.
